CONVICTED OF MURDER

East St. Louis Jury Agreed at Once on Conviction, but Took Six Ballots to Fix Penalty.

By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer
MRS. ETHEL HENDER.

Mrs. Ethel Hender, East St. Louis clubwoman and real estate dealer, was found guilty of the murder of her husband, Percel Hender, a hog buyer, by a jury in East St. Louis City Court late yesterday. Her punishment was fixed at 14 years in the penitentiary, the minimum for murder.

The jurors, most of whom are farmers or residents of outlying towns, reached their verdict at 4:10 p. m., one hour and 40 minutes after Judge Cook had finished reading his instructions. A member of the jury told reporters that they had agreed immediately that Mrs. Hender should be punished but took six ballots before agreeing on the penalty to be imposed.

Mrs. Hender was permitted to go home and will remain at liberty under bond pending a hearing next week on a motion for a new trial.

Defendant Faints in Court.

When the jury announced ready, Mrs. Hender was not in the courtroom, having been permitted to return to her home because a long wait was anticipated. An attorney hurried to her home in an automobile and produced her in the courtroom at 4:30, when the jury was brought in.

As the foreman, C. J. Revelle of Dupo, completed the reading of the verdict, Mrs. Hender fainted. Her brother, Ernest Bryant, and a woman friend applied smelling salts and she was able to walk to an automobile unassisted a few minutes later.

The court room was only about half-filled at the time, many of the spectators having departed in the expectation that the jury would deliberate for several hours. There was no demonstration.

Jurors Hurry Away.

As soon as they were discharged the jurors hurried from the courtroom, all but one refusing to discuss their deliberations. This spokesman said that when the first poll was taken it was discovered that each of the jurors had already decided that Mrs. Hender was guilty.

Besides Foreman Revelle, the members of the jury were Lewis C. Barthel, H. A. Slade, Oswald Brenfleck and August Bolte of Belleville; Elmer Schaller of New Athens; Lloyd Barlow of Dupo; George Kriegesholte and R. F. Carr of Freeburg; Clarence Boyberger of Lebanon, and John Kolp and Paul Jentsch of East St. Louis.

Three Possible Verdicts.

The case went to the jury at 2:30 p. m., after four hours of argument by opposing counsel. Under Judge Cook's instructions the jury had the choice of three verdicts—acquittal or conviction for murder or manslaughter — with penalties ranging from an indeterminate sentence of from one to 14 years to life imprisonment or death in the electric chair.

The jury consisted of eight married men and four unmarried men, one of whom was a widower and another divorced.

Mrs. Hender, 41 years old, shot and killed her husband, four years her junior, in the bathroom of their home at 1607 State street, Dec. 8. She pleaded self-defense, declaring she had wrested the revolver from his hand after he had drawn it from hi ship pocket to shoot her.

Victim's Strength Stressed.

In argument, State's Attorney Lindauer emphasized the fact that Hender was a powerful man—it had been told that he lifted a 500-pound scale at National Stockyards with ease—and declared that it would have been impossible to wrest a large weapon from him and point it at him in a small bathroom.

He picked up the revolver, which is 11 inches long, and demonstrated that it would not remain unsupported in his hip pocket, and expressed the opinion that Mrs. Hender had shot her husband in the abdomen and then, after he had fallen had shot him in the back.

State's witnesses had testified that Mrs. Hender had predicted trouble in her home and had threatened to kill her husband. Others had declared that she followed her husband on various occasions and had employed private investigators to trail him, because of jealousy.

P. K. Johnson, chief of defense counsel, described Mrs. Hender as a home-loving woman and a good citizen who had been abused physically and mentally by a husband who drank to excess and associated with other women. He reviewed the indignities recited by Mrs. Hender and asked the jurors to consider the "human element" in the case and "send this poor woman home to her little adopted daughter."

12 SAVED BY BOAT AFTER HEAVY RAIN INUNDATES HOMES

Man and Mother Rescued From Auto With Water Up to Necks — Flooded Streets Delay Traffic.

Twelve persons were taken from their flooded homes in a rowboat and two persons were taken from an automobile by men who used life-saving methods in water eight feet deep, in the series of thunder showers which burst over St. Louis and St. Louis County after 9 o'clock last night.

The sections hardest hit were in Maplewood, Richmond Heights and the part of St. Louis adjoining. In the section of Richmond Heights at the St. Louis line, two blocks in the vicinity of Glades avenue and Blendon place were under water which at some points hid the lampposts from view.

Twelve persons were rescued from the roofs of three flooded homes by Firemen Robert Kelly and John Keelan of the Richmond Heights Fire Department in a rowboat. Among them were Ned Pann, 1923 Blendon place, his wife, father-in-law and five children, and Frank Biddel, 2061 Blendon place, his wife and 2-year-old son. The rowboat was one which City Forester Elmer Thorwigeln of Richmond Heights had taken to his home for a spring painting.

At Big Bend road and Arlington avenue, Richmond Heights, Richard Horn, of Bellevue and Mitchell avenues, and his mother, found themselves stranded in an automobile with the water up to their necks. Policemen Harry Cline and J. K. June and Charles Dubois, director of the Fire Department, who observed their plight, swam to the machine and assisted them from the deep water.

Four Kirkwood-Ferguson street cars and some 75 automobiles were stalled in water between Maplewood and Webster Groves. Three department automobiles were under 10 feet of water in the Richmond Heights police station.

Most of the telephone lines in Richmond Heights, Maplewood and Webster Groves were out of order during the storm but were quickly restored to service afterwards.

The condition, it was said, was caused by the inability of the sewers to carry off the heavy flow of rain water. Along McCausland avenue, traffic was tied up by deep water, and the River des Peres in Forest Park rose close to the danger mark.

Street cars and automobiles were blocked at Union and Page boulevards and at Page and Marcus avenue for some time after the storm because of water in the street. Lightning struck a house at 3829 Washington boulevard, tearing a hole in the roof. At Kingshighway boulevard and McPherson avenue, the street was flooded and several automobiles were stalled.

$10,000,000 TAX UPON ESTATE OF JOHN WANAMAKER CANCELED BY U. S.

Appeals Board Rules Millionaire, 82, Constantly Under Doctor's Care, Had No Idea of Death.

LEVY ON $40,000,000 GIFT MADE TO SON

Dissenting Opinion Presumes This to Have Been Done in Contemplation of the Grave.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—When the late John Wanamaker was 82 years old, and suffering from ailments which required the constant attendance of a physician, he was without any serious thoughts of death, the Federal Board of Tax Appeals held this week, in cancelling an inheritance tax assessment of $10,000,000 which had been levied on the estate of the famous department store magnate.

The outcome of the case turned squarely on the question of whether Wanamaker had death in mind in 1920, when he made an outright gift of his $40,000,000 estate to his son, Rodman. The revenue laws provide that such gifts, made a comparatively short time before the death of the giver, shall not prevent the levying of an inheritance tax unless it can be plainly shown that the gift was not made "in contemplation of death."

Wanamaker died less than two years after he had transferred his estate to his son, and the Internal Revenue Commissioner, acting on the prima facie evidence that that transfer was carried out for the purpose of avoiding the inheritance tax, levied an assessment in the sum of $10,041,932. Attorneys for the estate appealed to the Board of Tax Appeals. While the case was pending, Rodman Wanamaker also died, consequently the final decision is in favor of Rodman's heirs.

Board States Its Reasons.

The board's statement of its reasons for concluding that John Wanamaker positively had no idea that death was approaching when he gave his property to his son, is one of the most extraordinary documents that ever issued from a Government agency.

It concedes that the founder of the famous Wanamaker stores in Philadelphia and New York was past 82, and that for several years he had had an artificial tube in his body which required changing every five days. It concedes that he had a pronounced tendency to colds, one of which finally developed into pneumonia with fatal results. It concedes that he was under constant observation and treatment for his heart and that the physician who signed his death certificate stated that he had suffered from myocarditis for an estimated period of two years.

Nevertheless, the board drew upon the evidence to prove that "death was farthest from his mind." It quotes from the testimony of a witness who said he had once heard Mr. Wanamaker declare that he "expected to live to be a hundred." It quotes another witness who remarked to the venerable magnate shortly before his end that "you will live to see a hundred, Mr. Wanamaker," and the latter's retort: "Why limit it to a hundred?" Finally, as conclusive proof that the 82-year-old man had no idea of dying soon, it reports that an acquaintance invited him to deliver a speech at a celebration scheduled to take place in 1932, to which Wanamaker replied: "I see no reason why I shouldn't do it if I am alive."

Evidence of Mental Vigor.

As evidence of his mental vigor at the age of 82, the board quotes from editorials which he composed to accompany the Wanamaker Stores' advertisements in the newspapers. One passage is: "Today we climb over the top in October." Another is: "You have often to make a strong battle with yourself to win out, as the politicians say." And still another: "The patrons of this store will always have our first consideration."

As further evidence that Mr. Wanamaker was mentally and physically robust, and "far from thoughts of death," the board produced excerpts from a large number of letters and telegrams which he sent to Rodman Wanamaker

JOINT RAIL-BARGE RATE ORDER BY I. C. C. AFFECTS WHOLE COUNTRY

Gen. Ashburn Predicts Railroads, as Well as Waterways, Will Profit by New Arrangement.

SCHEDULE TO BE IN EFFECT AUG. 27

Charges Will Vary From 10 to 20 Per Cent Below Existing All-Rail Transportation Cost.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—In a decision of supreme importance to the shipping interests of the country, and through them to all the people of the country, the Interstate Commerce Commission today granted the application of the Government-owned Inland Waterways Corporation for the establishment of a nation-wide system of joint rail and water rates.

The rates in general are to be 20 per cent less than the existing all-rail rates between the points affected, though in some cases the differential is fixed at 10 per cent. Virtually the whole country comes within the scope of the order. It will be efective next Aug. 27.

Application for a "certificate of public convenience and necessity," requiring the railroads to co-operate with the Government barge lines in joint rates, was filed with the Commission last May, a few days after the passage by Congress of the enabling law known as the Denison act.

"Victory for Waterways."

"The Commission has responded," said Major-General T. Q. Ashburn, the chairman and executive of the Inland Waterways Corporation, "by granting us practically all that we asked for. It has made the 10-year dream of waterway advocates come true. I predict that within the next five years the benefits from the joint rates will be so apparent to everybody in the country, the railroads included, that the value of inland waterway transportation will never again be questioned. The railroads as well as the waterways will profit from the Commission order.

"The commission has ushered in a new transportation era, in which will be developed a unified system of rail-and-water freight movement beneficial to every section of the country.

The decision not only represents a tremendous victory for the waterways, but, in my opinion, it is the most far-reaching decision on any phase of transportation that has been rendered by any tribunal in our time."

Affects Whole Country.

"In order to illustrate the broad territorial application of the proposed joint rates and the multiplicity of routes involved," says the commission's opinion, "involves rates between practically all points in the States of Washington, Northern Oregon, Northern Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, Northern South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan, on the one hand, and ports of call on the lower Mississippi division, and Mobile on the other hand, via Minneapolis or St. Paul and the barge line.

"The twenty-seventh proposal seeks rates between practically all points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia and portions of Maryland and Ohio on the one hand, and points in Southern Texas, Southern Louisiana, Southern Mississippi and a small portion of Southern Alabama, on the other via the barge line between Memphis and Vicksburg in connection with rail lines beyond those two ports.

"In view of the length of the barge line's proposals and the conclusions hereinafter reached, it is both undesirable and unnecessary to set forth in greater detail herein the through routes and joint rates sought in the application; but generally speaking, it appears that an effort has been made to confine the proposed rates to routes not grossly circuitous as compared with the direct routes and to routes over which the transportation by barge would constitute a substantial portion of the total transportation."

Atlantic Coast Rates Denied.

The commission denied the application of the corporation for barge-rail-water rates affecting shipments from Northeastern points by ocean to New Orleans

HOOVER AGAINST DEBENTURE PLAN IN FARM RELIEF BILL

Project Has Considerable Support Among Members of Congress, However — Norris to Continue Fight for It.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—From the White House today came the virtual assurance that President Hoover is preparing to declare openly against the debenture plan of farm relief. Simultaneously from farm leaders in the Senate came the belligerent assertion that the President had waited too long to disclose his position, and that the plan would not be abandoned now.

In a belated effort to head it off before it reaches the Senate floor, the President yesterday called in Chairman McNary of the Senate Committee on Agriculture; L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange, which is advocating the plan, and Senator Gerald Nye (Rep.), North Dakota. It was understood that he asked Taber if the Grange would withdraw its support from the plan and that Taber said he doubted it.

McNary already has been directed by his committee to report the plan favorably to the Senate Monday, and he must either do so or call a special meeting to reconsider. McNary intimated he was not disposed to do this, one reason being that the committee had agreed that no further meetings would be held, and another being that the vote for a favorable report was unanimous.

Has Kept Long Silence.

The fact is that President Hoover, anxious to avoid the appearance of dictating to Congress, has waited so long to disclose his position that the debenture plan has gained considerable momentum. Moreover, a number of his own supporters in the Senate, misled by his silence, have committed themselves to the plan, and now face the dilemma of either reversing themselves or opposing the President's wishes.

"Why didn't Mr. Hoover make up his mind on the subject when he was asked about it last week?" asked Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, when he learned today of the President's preparations to oppose the plan. "Why did he have to wait until the committee had considered it and voted unanimously to report it favorably to the Senate? He is inconsistent.

"Mr. Hoover's eleventh-hour determination to oppose the plan is incomprehensible to me. So far as I am concerned, I do not intend to abandon the bill now. The President's influence is very powerful, and undoubtedly will change some votes in the Senate—perhaps enough to defeat the plan, but it won't change mine."

Democratic Support.

Notice of the President's intention to oppose the plan had the definite effect of rallying Democrats to its support. Congressman Jones of Arkansas gave notice that he would move to have the debenture plan included in the House farm bill, and Congressman Garner, minority leader, announced he would support it.

"It seems to be that the President has put his own adherents in an embarrassing position," commented Senator Caraway (Dem.), Arkansas. "When they asked him what kind of a bill he wanted, he told them to go ahead and draft one to suit themselves. They followed that advice and now he repudiates their handiwork.

"The fact is that he gave the country to understand that he had a solution of the problem. Then it turned out that he had none, and isn't satisfied with the solutions worked out by Congress. The question in my mind is—does he really want to find a solution?"

It was indicated today that the President would communicate his opposition Monday in the form of a letter to the Senate Committee on Agriculture.

NEW STRUCTURE OF MONUMENTAL TYPE WILL COST ABOUT $3,000,000

Plan Commission Primarily Responsible for Selection Postmaster-General Brown Declares.

OLD BUILDING TO BE PUT ON MARKET

Cochran Says Extra Funds Will Be Granted to Erect Edifice at Cost Originally Planned.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The Government will proceed immediately to acquire the Memorial Plaza site, officially selected today for the new $3,000,000 St. Louis Federal Building. The site is the block bounded by Twelfth, Market, Walnut and Eleventh streets, south of the new Civil Courthouse and east of City Hall.

The new structure is to be pushed to completion as early as possible, will be of monumental type and will be a fitting neighbor to the new Courthouse, with which it will share in creating the southeast boundary of the Plaza picture.

Following a mandate of President Hoover that the St. Louis building be located without further delay, the decision was reached by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Postmaster-General Brown. This decision, which is irrevocable, ends a deadlock between subordinate officials of the two departments. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Schuneman had favored a site at Eighth and Chestnut streets, and Assistant Postmaster-General Bartlett had advocated use of the Government-owned property at Fourth and Chestnut.

Why Site Was Chosen.

Postmaster-General Brown said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent that the Plaza site was chosen primarily because of the recommendation of the City Plan Commission. E. J. Russell, chairman of the commission, and Harland Bartholomew, engineer, had set forth the Commission's position to Brown, while Circuit Judge C. W. Rutledge had furnished a mass of data showing the support of the Plaza site by civic organizations.

"When an American city sets up a legal statutory tribunal to revamp the city, and when it makes a substantial contribution, as St. Louis has done, through its $87,000,000 bond issue, then I think that Uncle Sam should co-operate," said the Postmaster-General.

He said that so soon as title to the site can be acquired by the Government contracts will be let to demolish the buildings now on the block.

The decision means in effect not merely one new building for St. Louis, but two, the other certain to be provided by private enterprise on the present Federal building site, Eighth, Ninth, Olive and Locust streets.

The present building, 45 years old, will be occupied by the downtown postoffice branch, the Federal courts and various offices, until completion of the new structure, when it will be vacated and sold. Because of its central location it is a highly valuable block, and is estimated to bring at least $4,000,000. The purchase price will go directly into the Treasury, the appropriation for the new building being independent of the sale of the old property.

To Sell River Front Site.

The Government, it is expected, will also sell the southeast corner of Fourth and Chestnut streets, acquired several years ago with a view to placing the new building there. This site is a part of the city's outlined plan for a river front plaza, a plan for which no financial provision has yet been made by St. Louis voters.

The first floor of the new building on the Plaza will be used for postal purposes. Because it is not so centrally located to the

PILOT IN AIR CRASH ARRESTED

NEWARK, N. J., April 20.—Lou Foote, pilot and sole survivor of the Colonial Airways Sightseeing airplane, which crashed March 17 with a loss of 14 lives, was discharged today from St. James Hospital and arrested immediately on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Foote's injuries included fractures of both legs and an arm. Hobbling on crutches, he was taken to the office of Prosecutor Joseph L. Smith, where bond was furnished by a surety company. The Essex County grand jury has been charged to investigate the accident, and the pilot will await its action.

STRAWBERRIES AND CREAM ON MENU OF BYRD PARTY

Steward Aims to Give Men Same Food as They Would Have at Home.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Strawberries and cream are on the menu of the men of the Byrd Antarctic expedition of the Ross Ice barrier, Sidney Greason, chief steward of the expedition, said on his arrival here. Greason was one of 12 who returned to spend the summer here before going back to the expedition.

He also said there were plenty of raspberries and "goodies" of cream as "the expedition is making an attempt to give the men the same food they would have at home."

The chief steward superintended the buying of enough foodstuffs to last the expedition for two years. In buying the food he said he didn't pay any attention to calories and vitamins, "just went ahead on the principle of giving a man enough to eat."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Messages of cheer and appreciation were broadcast to Commander Richard E. Byrd and his expedition in the Antarctic tonight by members of the American Newspaper Publishers Association from the organization's New York clubrooms. The program was broadcast over Station WGY and associated short-wave stations.

SEVEN DRY AGENTS DROPPED FOR FAILING IN EXAMINATIONS

Men Who Were Unable to Pass Second Test Have Been Training Recruits Appointed in February.

Seven prohibition agents, who failed to pass a civil service examination for reappointment and took another examination last December were advised by mail yesterday that they also had failed in the second examination and that they will be dropped from the department.

They have been training a squad of nine new men appointed last February by the prohibition bureau, in addition to carrying on their regular work.

The agents who failed are Paul Toelle, Thomas Harris, Charles Stanley, John H. Waters, Fred J. Niebruegge, Thomas Kearney and Velmer Gamble, a Negro. Joseph Wolf, who failed the first examination, did not take the second.

STIMSON ATTACKS PROPOSED DUTY ON PHILIPPINE SUGAR

Says to Impose It Would Be Taken as 'Betrayal of Trust Toward a Dependent People.'

CUBAN INTERESTS URGE IT, HE THINKS

Denies Domestic Production Is Affected — His Testimony in Secret Session Made Public.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Secretary of State Stimson has informed the House Ways and Means Committee that if proposed restriction of free sugar imports from the Philippines is carried out, it would be "inevitably interpreted as a betrayal of trust by the United States toward a dependent people."

He told the committee the proposed restriction was entirely unnecessary to protect American beet or cane sugar interests, as free entry of Philippine sugar into the United States "does not and cannot affect the price of sugar in the American market."

Stimson said the issue lay between Cuban and Philippine sugar rather than between Philippine and domestic sugar. He added that the present attempt to restrict sugar from the Philippines "comes directly from those interests which have invested in Cuban sugar."

Testified at Secret Session.

The publication of the testimony of Stimson, who appeared before the committee in executive session Thursday, caused a stir at the capitol as it was the first time since the Republican members went behind closed doors to write the new tariff bill that any of their proceedings had been officially made public.

It was said at the committee offices that since Stimson's testimony was public property, there was no reason to withhold it from the press.

Representative Garner, of Texas, ranking Democrat on the committee, the minority members of which have been excluded since public hearings closed and the preparation of the rates begun, asserted he had "smoked the committee out" on the question of publicity. He charged in the House yesterday that "leaks" were coming from the tariff framers and that any testimony taken in executive session should be made public immediately.

Frear Favors Home Bounty.

Stimson's view that proposed restriction of Philippine sugar imports came from interests having investments in Cuban sugar ran counter to a statement made on the floor of the House during the day by Representative Frear (Rep.), Wisconsin, and a member of the Ways and Means Committee. Such statements, Frear said, "do not add weight to others of like character that seek to minimize a rapidly growing sugar production by the (Philippine) Islands."

Frear made this statement in the course of his espousal of his proposal for a bounty of two cents a pound on sugar produced in this country instead of a higher tariff. Any additional tariff, he said, would serve only to stimulate and more than double sugar production in the Philippines, Porto Rico and Hawaii, whose products pay no duty upon entry into this country.

Where U. S. Gets Its Sugar.

Roughly speaking, Stimson told the committee, three-fifths of the sugar consumed in this country came from foreign sources, nearly all of it Cuban; one-fifth from continental United States, and the other one-fifth from its insular possessions.

"The issue, therefore," he said, "does not rest between domestic sugar and Philippine sugar; domestic sugar is not, in any way affected by free importation from the Philippines."

The Secretary, who recently retired as Governor-General of the Philippine islands to become a member of the Hoover Cabinet declared that duty-paying sugar imports had been far above 3,000,000 tons during the last five years and that inasmuch as practically all of this came from Cuba its price fixed the American price.

Domestic sugar interests had admitted, he said, that their production could not be greatly or suddenly increased.

"Therefore," he said, "even if the free entry of Philippine sugar should be cut off entirely, the only effect would be to increase the amount of foreign sugar which would enter the American market, that is, to sacrifice Philippine sugar for Cuban sugar."

"Betrayal of Trust."

Stimson declared the increased Philippine production, at which the resolution of Representative Timberlake (Rep.), Colorado, and a member of the Tariff Framing Committee, is aimed, was not due to increased acreage, but to improvements in milling. He added that no increase in acreage could be expected owing to the land laws of the islands which forbid the purchase by corporations of tracts of land exceeding 2500 acres.

"To sum up," he said, "this committee is asked by the proposers of this limitation to strike a blow at an industry which is at present not affecting the price of any domestic sugar; and which cannot possibly affect such price within any reasonable period of years to come, owing to the democratic method of its cultivation fostered under the laws of an American Congress.

"Such a limitation would be inevitably interpreted as a betrayal of trust by the United States toward a dependent people and such betrayal would not only violate American principles of government which had been initiated by a Republican administration and carried out without a difference of opinion by all parties, but it would arouse a widespread criticism in the Orient as well as in other parts of the world with which we desire commercial relations, and would inflict a lasting blow upon our credit and good name."

Site of New Federal Building; Diagram Showing How It Fits Into Plaza

FEDERAL BUILDING PLAZA SITE TO BE ACQUIRED AT ONCE

downtown district as the present Federal Building, the Government will probably seek quarters for a new downtown branch station. The present downtown postoffice branch, in the old Federal Building, is the headquarters for carriers for the territory from Broadway to Twelfth boulevard and from Market to Biddle street.

The authorized appropriation for the new building is $3,800,000, to include site. St. Louis representatives in Congress said they believed additional funds could be obtained, if necessary, for an adequate structure. If the site costs $1,000,000, at least another $200,000 would be needed to provide for a $3,000,000 building. The new courthouse, when completed, is to cost about $5,000,000.

Representative Cochran of the Eleventh District said he was certain that the necessary cost of the new building would be provided, through an additional appropriation, if necessary. "It will be a building of which the city can be proud," he said. He added that apparently his talk with President Hoover last Monday, in which he spoke of the prolonged delay in selection of a location, had something to do with expediting the action taken.

Site by Condemnation.

William N. Collier, Treasury Department engineer, who recommended the Plaza site as his first choice, reported that the Government would probably have to obtain the site by condemnation proceedings. He estimated the cost of the block, thus acquired, at about $1,000,000, though the lowest amount fixed by the owners was $1,147,750.

Plans for the building will be drawn in the office of the supervising architect of the Treasury Department, and building operations will be under that department's direction.

Condemnation proceedings, in such cases, are filed through the Department of Justice, in the Federal Court of the district where the property is located. Appeals may be taken to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The length of time required to get a decree varies, but such proceedings usually take about as long in Federal courts as in state courts. In the Government's suit to condemn land for the new Supreme Court Building, the trial took 14 months. Condemnation proceedings are not undertaken until the Government has found it impossible to get a fair price by negotiation. In the St. Louis case, the present litigation over most of the site makes it appear that condemnation will be necessary.

The Government, it was announced today, is going ahead as rapidly as possible with the addition to the main St. Louis Postoffice, to be erected on the east side of Seventeenth street near Clark avenue.

Judge Rutledge Has Been Leader in Fixing Plaza Location.

Circuit Judge Charles W. Rutledge, chairman and moving spirit of the Memorial Plaza Committee, has been instrumental in fixing the Plaza location for the Civil Courthouse and now for the Federal Building. In the case of the Courthouse, there was a public movement in favor of the Plaza site. In the case of the Federal Building location, much less public interest was shown, and Judge Rutledge had to stir up organizations for favorable expressions. These came in considerable number, and, as indicated by the Postmaster-General's statement, they were powerfully seconded by the City Plan Commission.

In recent weeks, when Washington dispatches have told of a deadlock between subordinate department officials over the site, and when both these officials endeavored to eliminate the Plaza site from consideration, Judge Rutledge has shown confidence. When told of the decision yesterday afternoon, he said:

"That's fine, and I'm awfully glad. I had expected this, but am relieved to get the official announcement. I had been quite hopeful since receiving a letter recently from the Postmaster-General."

Postmaster-General Brown's letter to Judge Rutledge, dated April 2, follows: "I have read your letter of March 28 with interest. Most of the facts which you state had previously been brought to my attention by Mr. Bartholomew (engineer of the City Plan Commission), whose judgment in all matters relating to city planning I value highly.

"It is my belief that when the citizens of any of our great American cities evolve a definite plan for rebuilding their city, in whole or in part, and contribute their own money generously to the enterprise, the Federal Government should co-operate to the fullest extent consistent with the public interest."

Cronin Saloon on Site.

The southeast corner of Twelfth and Market, on which the new structure will front, was occupied until a few years ago by an abandoned tobacco warehouse, property of the Peper estate. At the Walnut street corner is the building which housed Jim Cronin's saloon, a focal point of city politics when Cronin was Speaker of the House of Delegates in 1901-02.

The Peper heirs owned three-fourths of the block, all but the Eleventh-Walnut corner. They gave a deed of trust to the First National Co., which foreclosed on the property in November, 1922. At foreclosure sale, the property was bought by Orson E. Scott for $175,000, the deed of trust being for $150,000. This was before the bond issue for the Plaza had been voted. In 1926, after the Courthouse had been located across Market street from the property, the Peper heirs sued to recover it from Scott, alleging that he had acted as their agent. Scott denied this, saying he had been in negotiation with the Pepers, but that they had failed to meet his terms. A decision in favor of the Peper heirs was given by Circuit Judge Ossing Dec. 31 last, and Scott's motion for a new trial is still pending. Scott said last night that he would take the matter to the State Supreme Court if necessary.

While fighting Scott, the Peper heirs have also been in conflict among themselves, other heirs objecting to control of the property by Mrs. Estelle Barlow, daughter of the former Caroline J. Peper, and owner of a seven-ninths interest. In case of condemnation of the property, the Government will pay the awarded price into court, and the distribution to the owners will be subject to Court orders.

The site, after the widening of Twelfth and Market streets, will have a frontage of 220 feet on Market and 246 feet on Twelfth, which will then be a part of Twelfth boulevard. The boulevard designation now ends at Market. The present assessed valuation of ground and buildings on the block is a total of $455,000. Several smaller owners beside the Peper heirs have holdings in the block.

Plans for utilization of the block now occupied by the Federal Building, one of the most valuable squares of city realty, are expected to become active. The block has been considered a highly desirable site for an office building, or a large retail establishment, or a combination of the two.

The late Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., was credited with saying that he would offer $5,000,000 for the block if it were to become vacant. The late Paul Brown, a large downtown realty operator, closely associated with Wade, disputed his estimate of the value of the block. He said that, considering the probable expense of demolishing the massive granite structure, a cost which he figured at $250,000, he could not see his way to offer more than $2,500,000 for the property.

The foundations of the Federal Building are set far back, and this, it is believed, would make it impracticable to use them for a commercial structure, as business would insist on going out to the building line.

Records in Washington show that the Eighth-Olive site was acquired by condemnation proceedings instituted June 4, 1872, the Circuit Court decree being rendered Sept. 13 of that year and affirmed later by the Supreme Court. The cost of the site was $368,882.65. The contract was awarded Sept. 2, 1873. The building, finished in 1884, rests on pile foundation covered with concrete. The granite for the superstructure was brought from Hurricane Island, Me. The building contains 5,885,000 cubic feet and cost $5,686,854, exclusive of site.

INQUIRY INTO MISSOURI U. SEX SURVEY OUSTERS VOTED

Special to the Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The Council of the American Association of University Professors, meeting here today, authorized an investigation of the questionnaire episode at the University of Missouri which resulted in the dismissal of Prof. H. O. DeGraff and a student instructor and the suspension of Prof. Max Meyer for a year.

Henry Crew of Northwestern University, president of the Association, was empowered to name an investigating committee.

HUNTED LAWYER WHO KILLED SELF BLAMED HIS AID

Letter Left by David Steinhardt, Who Ended Life on Friends' Advice, Given Out.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Federal Attorney Charles Tuttle made public today the letter addressed to him found in the clothing of David Steinhardt, fugitive attorney, who committed suicide in Philadelphia with poison after arranging to surrender.

The letter was largely a plea for Steinhardt's wife and daughter, who, he said, were innocent of any wrong-doing, and an excoriation of Max Pinner, court attache, who attempted suicide when official investigation connected him with Steinhardt's defalcations.

Pinner was alleged to have given Steinhardt advance information about bankruptcy receivership appointments. The Federal charge against Steinhardt was defaulting with $50,000 from bankruptcy funds he held as trustee and receiver. He was also charged in county indictments with defrauding private clients of between $500,000 and $1,000,000 in a get-rich-quick scheme.

When Pinner was connected with the case he promised to "tell all," then stabbed himself with a penknife. He recovered and became a star witness for the Government in its investigation into the bankruptcy situation here.

Blames Associate's "Squealing."

Steinhardt characterized Pinner in the letter as a shrewd grafter who took 28 and 30 per cent bonuses from Steinhardt for the loan of money. Steinhardt blamed Pinner for his downfall, saying that but for Pinner's "squealing," Steinhardt would have been able to prevent losses to his clients.

Steinhardt wrote that he regretted he had not ended his life here rather than "roam about the country like a tramp, without funds, without friends, and away from those I love."

He expressed the opinion that his death would be no hindrance to the bankruptcy investigation.

"In one paper," he wrote, "there appeared a statement that I was wanted not so much for prosecution as for testimony, as a key witness. Now that you unearthed almost everything worth while my testimony will be of no additional benefit to you, particularly in view of the resignation of Judge Winslow."

Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow recently resigned as a Congressional committee was about to begin investigation of his administration of justice in bankruptcy cases.

Steinhardt said he was one of those husbands who do not discuss their business affairs with their wives, but if he had consulted her "my present predicament would not exist."

Witness Says Steinhardt Killed Self on Advice of Friends.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—Herbert L. Maris testified at a Coroner's inquest today that David Steinhardt, fugitive New York attorney, killed himself on the advice of friends and because he couldn't stand the "gaff" of arrest and prosecution.

Steinhardt, under both Federal and New York County indictment since January, took poison yesterday as he was preparing to surrender to the authorities at his wife's request.

Both Maris, a Philadelphia lawyer and close friend of Steinhardt and the man who negotiated for surrender of the fugitive, and Mrs. Steinhardt were exonerated of any blame at the inquest today. The Coroner's jury found that Steinhardt committed suicide by poison taken when temporarily deranged.

"Steinhardt told me," Maris said at the inquest, "that he had been advised to commit suicide and I begged him not to. He just could not stand the gaff."

There was no testimony to indicate whether Steinhardt killed himself to shield others as well as to escape prosecution himself, or whether the persons who advised him to commit suicide were thinking of him or of themselves when they did so.

TWO BOYS WITHOUT FOOD THREE DAYS IN LOCKED BOX CAR

Runaways From Toledo, O., Released When Railroad Agent Hears Pounding.

Two runaway boys from Toledo, O., got their first meal in three days yesterday when a special agent walking through the Scanlan avenue yards of the Frisco Railroad heard them beating on the door of a sealed box car and released them.

The boys, Thomas Spencly and Norman Sutton, both 16 years old, were taken to the Mounted District Police Station, where they ravenously partook of holdover fare and then were permitted to wash up.

They said they climbed in the car Wednesday afternoon in Toledo, intending to go to Indiana, but while the train lay over in Peru, Ind., the car was sealed. It arrived in St. Louis yesterday afternoon. When they had finished their meal, the runaways were taken to the House of Detention, where they are being held, pending word from their parents, who have been notified.

The Kaw River in Kansas, an important tributary of the Missouri, was out of its banks near Topeka and in other sections. Southeastern Kansas was hard hit, water from the Labette River covering several city blocks in Parsons.

Trackage of the Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific and St. Louis & San Francisco Railroads was washed out and service suspended. Many motor busses were halted.

The snow was greeted warmly by wheat farmers in northern Colorado. The moisture is expected to save thousands of acres of winter wheat, in desperate condition from winds.

Heavy rains in western Kansas today also were of great value to wheat and spring crops there.

Three persons were injured and two houses, two barns and a store were blown down by a tornado which struck Oil City, two miles south of Batesville, Ark., tonight.

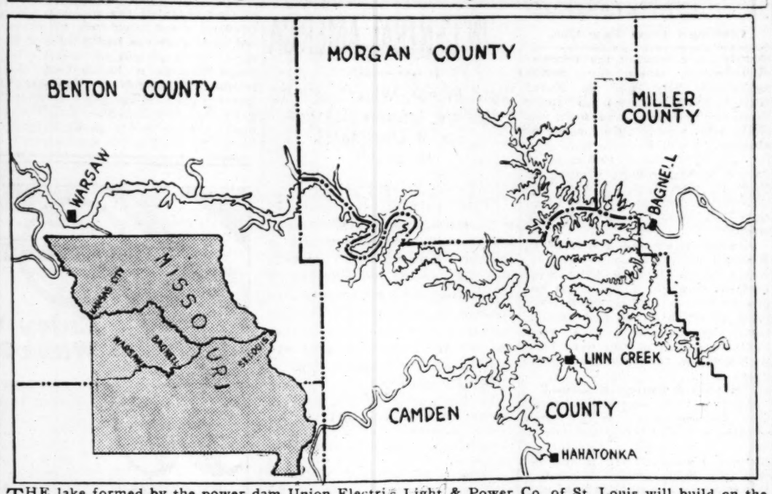
Map Showing Situation of Projected Power Dam



THE lake formed by the power dam Union Electric Light & Power Co. of St. Louis will build on the Osage River near Bagnell will extend 125 miles up the river to Warsaw in Benton County, and will have irregular shore line of about 1400 miles. The power plant will be one of the largest hydro-electric projects in the Mississippi Valley, with an ultimate capacity of 215,000 horse power.

$30,000,000 POWER PLANT TO BE BUILT IN OZARK REGION

forts to obtain the St. Joseph Lead Co. as a power customer. The lead company operates its own power plant at Rivermines for which it brings in 175,000 tons of coal a year over the two railroads that it owned. These roads are the Missouri-Illinois running from Salem, Ill., to Bismarck, Mo., and the Mississippi River & Bonne Terre running from Riverside, south of St. Louis, to Doe Run, Mo. The combined length of the two lines is about 200 miles.

Union Electric offered to buy the lead company's power plant and maintain it as an emergency reserve power source, but the lead company objected that it would lose the coal hauling business for its railroads. Union Electric offered to find a buyer for these lines and interested the Missouri Pacific. It was pointed out to the Missouri Pacific that construction of the Bagnell dam would require the transporting to the site of about 1,000,000 tons of materials which would have to be hauled over the Bagnell branch of the Missouri Pacific from Jefferson City.

The Missouri Pacific made the deal to purchase 51 per cent of the stock of the Missouri-Illinois for $1,200,000, including a lease of the Mississippi River & Bonne Terre, which virtually becomes a Missouri Pacific property. The lead company, together with some other large industries, retains a 49 per cent interest in the Missouri-Illinois line.

The Cravens Fiasco.

The original promoter of the Bagnell dam was Walter Cravens, former president of the Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank, who organized the Missouri Hydro-Electric Power Co. to develop the project. This company made preliminary surveys and spent about $200,000 on the project before it got into financial difficulties in 1926. At the time it had an application pending with the State Public Service Commission for permission to issue $20,921,000 of securities.

As a result of his financial operations, Cravens was investigated by Federal agents, stockholders in the Joint Stock Land Bank having made complaint. Cravens and his secretary, Miss Alice Todd, were indicted by a Federal grand jury on charges of misapplication of funds of the bank and false entries. The Government charged that Cravens had used lands acquired by the bank under foreclosure to exchange for lands needed for the dam project, and that he had used fictitious mortgages to make it appear that the bank had been reimbursed when in fact it had not.

Both Cravens and Miss Todd were found guilty on all counts and the former was sentenced to six years in the Federal penitentiary and to pay a fine of $25,000, and the latter to one year and a day in prison. Both have appeals pending.

Aid to Flood Control.

The site of the dam is five miles up the Osage River from Bagnell and is about 40 miles south of Jefferson City. The Osage is the largest of the secondary rivers in Missouri, being next in size to the Missouri, into which it flows about eight miles east of Jefferson City. It contributes about 10 per cent of the water carried by the Missouri below the confluence.

Egan said the dam would help to control the river in time of flood and that in case of exceptionally high water there would go over the spillway a sheet of water 300 feet wide and 30 feet thick, falling 125 feet, providing a scenic attraction.

Egan said definite arrangements for financing the dam construction had not been made and he could not say now what effect, if any, the new power source would have on electric rates in St. Louis. He said the contract for construction of the dam had been let to Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation. He said the reservoir, dam and power house would cost $20,000,000 and the transmission lines and substation $10,000,000.

IDENTITY OF MOB THAT TOOK NEGRO FROM JAIL IS UNKNOWN

Prisoner at Richmond, Mo., Suffers Beating; Said to Have Confessed Robberies.

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Mo., April 20.—Identity of a mob of about 15 masked and armed men who last night stormed the county jail, seized Fred Allen, 30-year-old confessed Negro housebreaker, and flogged him before returning him to jail, remained unknown tonight.

County Prosecutor W. T. Thompson said an investigation had failed to develop any evidence as to the perpetrators of the attack. Sheriff Reed Woolard, who was seized by the mob and locked in a clothes closet in his apartment at the jail, could not identify his attackers, the Prosecutor said.

Allen was taken before the Prosecutor this afternoon and was said by the official to have signed a confession admitting he had entered five houses. The Negro has been charged with burglary and grand larceny and will be arraigned, probably Monday, it was said.

Following the arrest of the Negro after a chase by four officers yesterday, various persons expressed their desire to do bodily harm to him. Two women, at houses which were entered about daylight Friday, were struck by the intruder.

The talk crystalized into action about 9:30 o'clock, when the mob surprised the Sheriff and a deputy in the Sheriff's apartment. They took the Negro with them in an automobile, flogged him and then, 45 minutes later, thrust him back inside a door of the prison.

Today the victim was covered with welts, but was otherwise unharmed.

SANTA FE REPORTED READY TO GIVE UP ORIENT IN MEXICO

Kansas City Star Says Information Comes From Authentic Sources.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, April 21.—(Sunday)—The Kansas City Star today says that the Santa Fe Railroad has determined to divest itself of the Orient lines in Mexico.

The paper said its information was confirmed from authentic sources in Texas, where W. B. Storey, Santa Fe president, and other officials have been on an inspection tour. The Santa Fe is more concerned with a possible entry to St. Louis, it is said.

JEWISH TEMPLES DROP MERGER PLAN

Congregation Shaare Emeth Obtains Option to Purchase Egyptian Building.

Congregation Shaare Emeth, a Jewish reformed church now at Vandeventer avenue and Lindell boulevard, has obtained an option on the Egyptian Building, 6900 Delmar boulevard, University City, and is considering removal to that location, a contemplated merger with Tempel Israel and the B'Nai El congregation having been abandoned.

Temple Israel and Congregation Shaare Emeth are looking for rabbis, as the result of the death of Dr. Leon H. Harrison of Israel and the removal of Dr. Louis Witt of Shaare Emeth to Dayton, O. B'Nai El is considering the purchase of a site in the West End and the sale of its present church at Spring and Flad avenues. Rabbi Julian H. Miller will remain with B'Nai El. Temple Israel will retain its edifice at Kingshighway and Washington boulevard and erect a community house on property adjoining on the west, where it now owns two residences.

Removal of Shaare Emeth is necessary because the widening of Vandeventer avenue soon will force abandonment of the present temple. It has been thought that the property left after that improvement will not be adequate for the congregation. Directors of the congregation acquired a 30-day option on the Egyptian Building, expiring May 10, at a price of $175,000.

Building Now Vacant.

This notable structure, of characteristic Egyptian architecture, was erected about 25 years ago by E. G. Lewis as part of his ill-fated publishing enterprises. It is built of marble in the exterior walls, concrete and brick, and might cost $500,000 to reproduce now, interested persons have estimated. It is owned by the Jeannette Realty Co. and is vacant. The city block on which it stands measures about 300x375 feet.

It was learned yesterday that the congregation is considering whether to retain this building, if the purchase is made, and fit it out as a temple, with a new community house of similar design erected beside it, or whether to raze the structure and construct an altogether new one. The congregation has assets of $250,000 available.

An invitation has been sent to members of Shaare Emeth by Edwin B. Meissner, president, to visit the Egyptian Building any afternoon this week, between 1 and 4 p. m. A congregational meeting to act on the proposal is set for April 30.

Several applications have been received to fill the vacancy as rabbi of Shaare Emeth, and a committee soon will call on the men under consideration.

Walter Freund, president of B'Nai El, said that congregation had several West End sites under consideration and had some funds available. A committee of Temple Israel is seeking a new rabbi.

Why Plan Was Dropped.

The three congregations had voted to merge and erect a large and expensive new church in the West End, but about 10 days ago the directors of Temple Israel voted to drop the project and the other groups have agreed without formal action. In explanation, Julius Glaser, president of Temple Israel, told the Post-Dispatch yesterday:

"Each congregation has 550-odd members, representing families with 6000 persons. We concluded it would be a physical impossibility for any one or two men to serve a congregation of that size. It would have been necessary to have a building to accommodate 1500 children, and the whole project probably would have cost $1,500,000.

"We felt we would serve religion best by each of us staying alone, that it would be better for the entire community to have the three congregations. There was no conflict, no argument and no disagreement. We will continue to co-operate with each other. Rabbi Miller of B'Nai El had been conducting joint services of the two congregations at Temple Israel until today, but hereafter he will hold services for B'Nai El in their own temple and we will get men to take care of Israel temporarily from the Hebrew Union College at Cincinnati."

The only other reformed Jewish congregation here is the United Hebrew Temple.

FIVE ARRESTED AFTER $2000 IN WOMEN'S APPAREL IS FOUND

Department Store Men to Be Asked to View Property Taken in Room at 4174A Delmar.

Women's apparel valued at $2000 were found by Detectives Cliffe and Bean yesterday afternoon, when they followed Elste Ziern, who was served a sentence for shoplifting, and a man who accompanied her to a room at 4174A Delmar boulevard.

There they found nine coats, 19 pair of silk hose, 171 handkerchiefs and a miscellaneous assortment of lingerie. Three other women, residents of the house were arrested later.

Representatives of department stores will be asked to view the property.

4 KILLED, 4 HURT, BY STEEL GIRDERS FALLING 20 STORIES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20. — Four workmen were killed today by steel girders that fell 20 stories at the new Western Union Telegraph Building, and four other men were injured. The avalanche of steel, weighing three and one-half tons, did considerable property damage. Four men were arrested, charged with criminal carlessness in connection with the accident.

The stone coping of a building across the street was sliced off and the girders cut through the steel framework in the Western Union Building as if it were matchwood.

24 STUDENTS HAVE MUMPS

Epidemic at Missouri U. Not Alarming, Says Medical Dean.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 20.—Twelve men and 12 women students were confined in the University of Missouri Hospital today suffering with mumps. The disease has spread to epidemic proportions but is not alarming, according to Dr. Guy L. Noyes, dean of the School of Medicine.

"With a student population of 3500 we are always bound to have some infectious disease during the spring," Dr. Noyes said. "There are always students susceptible to disease. Fortunately, the mumps of this spring are of mild form.'

EXPERT TO MAKE METROPOLITAN AREA SURVEY

Dr. Thomas H. Reed of University of Michigan Employed by City and County Committees.

A definite step has been taken towards bringing about metropolitan expansion for St. Louis and St. Louis County, through creation of a metropolitan area, merger or otherwise.

The Metropolitan Committee of the St. Louis and St. Louis County Chambers of Commerce, acting jointly, have employed an expert to make a survey with the object of formulating a plan of governmental consolidation. He is Dr. Thomas H. Reed, dean of political science of the University of Michigan and a widely known authority on his subject. In connection with the expansion of Pittsburg, he is consultant of the Metropolitan Commission of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania.

Dr. Reed will come here early in May to start his research and open an office. In accepting the work he pointed out that the success of the eventual plan will depend on accurate and fair assembly of fundamental facts. It will be several months, he declared, before results of the survey that will interest the public will be available.

Financed by Industrial Club.

The Industrial Club, believing metropolitan expansion to be one of the chief factors in the district's growth, has financed the employment of Dr. Reed. F. W. A. Vesper is chairman of the Metropolitan Committee of the city Chamber of Commerce and Robert A. Roessel of the corresponding group of the county chamber.

St. Louis became an independent city with quasi-county functions when it withdrew from the county in 1878 and since then its boundaries have been rigidly fixed. More than 20 years ago the talk of annexation by the city of parts of the county began. An amendment to the State Constitution in 1924 made possible the appointment of a Board of Freeholders from the city and county which presented a plan of the city members for complete absorption of the county by the city, which failed at a special election in 1926 because the people of the county voted it down, although the city was overwhelmingly in favor of it.

Formerly there was an aspect of the city merely seeking the county for enlargement purposes, said Erastus Wells, chairman of the board of the city chamber yesterday, but the situation has changed. He added: "St. Louis County has grown so rapidly that the enthusiasm for some sort of a better relationship that will protect and solely regulate this metropolitan growth comes as strong now from one side of the line as the other."

Not So Hard as Pittsburg.

In a statement issued yesterday, Dr. Reed said:

"I will say this, from my first observations, that the St. Louis problem, while hard, does not look so difficult as Pittsburg's. There they will have to go twice to the Legislature and twice to the voters of the State before they are through. They started this movement in 1923, and it is just reaching a culmination now. It may be dangerous to estimate casually, but I believe that it will take at least two years to do this thing in St. Louis on a square-deal-for-all basis, and that one vote of the State and another by both sides involved will, as I see it now, be sufficient legal procedure. As to plan, there is none and cannot be one until weeks of research and findings have been made, to which I shall devote much of the summer here and in my laboratory of research in Ann Arbor."

Dr. Reed's Experience.

Dr. Reed drafted a charter for a citizens' committee of Alameda County, California, which contains Oakland and Berkeley, in 1916, this being the first attempt to apply the "federal" principle to municipal expansion. He finished recently a metropolitan charter for Pittsburg, to be submitted to the Pennsylvania Legislature. He drafted or aided in preparing charters for a number of cities in California, where considerable attention has been attracted to the advanced status of cities. He helped draw up a model city charter for the National Municipal League, being a member of the league's Committee on Metropolitan Government. Metropolitan expansion of London, Paris, Berlin and Brussels has been studied by him. He is the author of a book, "Municipal Government in the United States," and of numerous other publications on political science. Next season he will give a four-months course on political science at Harvard University.

Chairman Vesper of the city committee yesterday said: "It will take some time to make this survey in a careful, logical fashion, based on research and facts rather than on group or personal desire, as in the past. There is no plan now and it probably will take the best part of a year for Dr. Reed to formulate one. He will not be hampered by any dictates of the committee. He is asked to make an unbiased recommendation after a study of every phase of the subject."

Chairman Roessel of the county committee said: "This means sane, studied progress on this subject. A move like this, that takes the rights and interests of both sides, minorities as well as majorities, into consideration is bound to get the support of thinking people on both sides."

STREET CAR KILLS PEDESTRIAN AND TRUCK ANOTHER

John Cain, Salesman, Fatally Injured by Trolley, and Edward Hughes by Motor Vehicle.

Two men were killed in traffic accidents yesterday one when struck by a motor truck, the other by a street car.

Edward Hughes, 46 years old, of 2516 North Spring avenue, died at the City Hospital two hours after he was knocked down by a truck driven by Robert Frisby, 33, of 3913 North Ninth street as he attempted to cross North Market street, a half block west of Grand boulevard.

John Cain, 38, a salesman, of 5962 Labadie avenue, was fatally injured by a Broadway street car in front of 8000 South Broadway. He died within three hours at the City Hospital. Witnesses told police he ran across the street into the path of the car. The motorman and conductor were ordered to appear at the inquest.

James Anderson, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Anderson, 1404 Pine street, suffered a skull injury yesterday when he ran between parked automobiles at Fourteenth and Chestnut streets and was struck by an automobile driven by William Miller, 37, of 4559 Chouteau avenue.

Two newsboys, Richard Henseler, 14 years old, 1929 Destrehan street, and Fred Henn Jr., 13, 3515 North Twentieth street, pushing their wagons north in Angelica street between Nineteenth street and Blair avenue during a heavy downpour of rain at 9:30 p. m. yesterday, were struck by an automobile, the driver of which fled.

They were taken to city hospital suffering from shock, lacerations and abrasions.

DUO-ART
REPRODUCING PIANO

Among the Great Wonders —here is one that outstands

To take from a great musician's finger tips his actual performance and to imbue that performance with his very soul transcends anything devised by genius before. This is the Duo-Art.

But even this marvelous instrument has been given a deeper and richer meaning. AudioGraphic Music has brought to this wonder the mind of the composer, giving the contacts that inspired the opus as the music proceeds.

That you may fully understand and indeed comprehend the virtues of the epoch-making Duo-Art, you are invited to our Duo-Art Salon, where, as in the Steinway, Weber, Steck, Stroud, you may listen to this marvel of the times.

It is not necessary to come with an idea of purchase. Even if you wish to inquire of prices and terms, our great desire is that you shall know that from the smartest Broadway hit to an ultra classic the Duo-Art offers a source of musical entertainment and spiritual uplift for your home, greater perhaps than you have ever known.

Duo-Art Prices are from $535
Convenient Terms

The Duo-Art is combined with the leading pianos of the world only • • Steinway, Weber, Steck, Stroud • • making the Duo-Art Salon the most important exhibit of reproducing pianos in America.

SCHACHT CALLED BACK BY GERMANY, POLICY IN DISFAVOR

Delegate at Reparations Conference Leaves for Berlin to Confer With Heads of Government.

DEADLOCK IN PARLEY ATTRIBUTED TO HIM

Owen D. Young Tells Reich Expert to Come Back With Spirit of Compromise or Not at All.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT,
Paris Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1929, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (the New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, April 20.—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht left for Berlin on the afternoon train, declaring he would spend Sunday in Berlin and take the night train back for Paris, returning in time to appear before the plenary session of the Experts' Committee Monday afternoon.

It is possible he may not return, as the German Government is dissatisfied with him for breaking down the conference in a manner which places the blame on the German delegation.

Before he left, Dr. Schacht had a long talk with Owen D. Young, not, however, with the patient Young of the last 10 weeks, but a Young who said to him in effect that he had better come back in a spirit of compromise or not come back at all.

The correspondent is in a position to state that the United States delegation is most perturbed by Dr. Schacht's attitude. Whatever denials he made, the United States delegation holds it infantile for him to deny that he made it clear he wanted political compensations or was unwilling to present any acceptable offer.

Why Berlin Called Schacht.

The criticisms of the American delegation at what it considers Schacht's lack of tact is thought to be the principal reason for the German Government's calling him abruptly back to Berlin. He was able to take with him some idea of what compromise would be acceptable, but it is reported to be so far from his offer that it may prove impossible now to make a compromise.

If the returns with an offer which would approach 2,000,000,000 marks, (about $480,000,000) annually for 37 years and make that part of it to be paid as actual reparations unconditional, so it could be commercialized, he will get a hearing. Otherwise the conference risks coming to a final breakdown.

In fact, the coldness which has grown up in the conference since Thursday will in any event make it difficult for Schacht to be Germany's negotiator. But regardless of who presents Germany's new offer, it will now have to make large concessions, whereas Schacht himself could have made headway with very small concessions Thursday if he had not had a brainstorm.

Would Need Bigger Annuities.

Of Schacht's two plans, plan A, which he submitted only on condition that Germany regain access to practically the same raw materials as in pre-war times—the Saar and Upper Silesia, a reunited country agriculturally, abolition of the Polish corridor, and restored or newly opened colonial outlets—will have to be presented with bigger annuities to get a hearing.

His Plan B, which provided for no payments that were not under transfer and moratorium restrictions, will not receive a hearing in any form, the correspondent learns from important sources in the conference.

According to Plan A, Schacht offered the following payments:

$108,000,000 annually unconditionally.

$54,000,000 more in the first year, increasing to $144,000,000 after the tenth year with transfer protection.

$54,000,000 more in the first year, also increasing to $144,000,000 after the tenth year with transfer and payment protection. And,

Deliveries in kind of $180,000,000 in the first decreasing nothing in the tenth year.

Annuities Over 37 Years.

The entire plan is to extend over a period of 37 years, offering a total of $396,000,000 a year.

An increase of each of the above categories by $12,000,000 or a total increase of $48,000,000 annually, without any political conditions, Schacht will be able to tell Berlin, would be sufficient to bring the conference back to life.

Former Premier Clemenceau, when the subject of Schacht was mentioned to him, exclaimed:

"His claims tend to nothing less than a fresh war. The Germans now have only to refuse to make the payments scheduled in the Wawes plan and the maintennance of our occupation of the Rhineland beyond the date indicated in the treaty for a new war to be justified."

Restores Tinkle to Old Music Boxes

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

THEODORE HARRIS, in the music-box repair shop.

Disabled, He Is Expert Repairer of Music Boxes

Theodore Harris, Who Travels in Electric Powered Invalids' Chair, Has Collection of Antique Instruments.

THAT serene young man, to be seen daily scurrying along the lesser traveled thoroughfares of St. Louis in a little three-wheeled electric car that is painted green, is Theodore Harris, 26 years old. His home is in a comfortable but small brick building at the rear of the Bethesda Home and Hospital group at 2649-2651 Vista avenue, and his life, literally, is a gayly musical affair.

For Harris is held by music-box connoisseurs to be the only dependable repair man of these lovely old machines in the country. The intricacies of the most complicated Swiss music box or of the superior American console types do not daunt Harris. He knows how to diagnose the troubles of their wonderfully designed gears and cams until the merry tinkling notes of "Meet Me in St. Louis, Louis, Meet Me at the Fair," or any of those other numbers of by-gone days again issue from the most woefully neglected box.

Disabled Since Babyhood.

"Yes," said Harris, leaning on his crutches—it is because his legs have been paralyzed since babyhood that he rides about in his little electric car—"the Americans made the best music boxes. For a long time, though, up to 1895 or thereabouts, the Swiss models were the rage, mainly because the Americans didn't turn out very good ones. Then there came the New Jersey company.—"

Forerunners by a good 30 years of the present-day automatic phonographs that change their own records, several of these elaborted music boxes in beautiful mahogany and oaken cabinets stand about in Harris' workshop. His shop, incidentally, is on the third floor of T. M. Sayman Products Co., 2117 Franklin avenue, where he occupies a corner of the employes' big recreational room.

This arrangement, effective for the last month, was made possible by Dr. J. S. Brewer, a chemist for the firm, himself a collector of music boxes. Brewer owns several Swiss and American models of music boxes, one of them costing $300 in the gay '90's when it was in vogue. It is handsomely inlaid with mother-of-pearl and ivory, the bell-clappers are in the form of gilded bees and and the bells themselves are intricately engraved. This little box, designed for a table, looks like a radio set. It has a drum and castinets as accompaniment for the tinkle which results when the prickly cylinder, or record, is set revolving and vibrates the teeth of a musically graduated steel "comb."

Buys Old Musical Clock.

Prized among the machines that Harris owns is an elaborate musical clock in a carved mahogany case, nine and a half feet high. Thirty years ago, when there were still "belles," spirited horses and smart carriages, this clock adorned the aristocratic old Southern Hotel here. While it pined away in an antique shop, losing the luster of its fine old case and its weights and pendulum going where no one knew, Harris also pined. He pined for 10 years, always hoping to be able, some day, to buy it and put it back in commission. Due to the increased patronage which followed establishment in his new quarters, he was recently able to buy the old timepiece.

He did not personally covet the clock, he said. He just hated to see it so forlorn and neglected. He wanted to nurse it back to life and find a nice home for it. Negotiations are in progress now for placing it in a home where its sweet music will be appreciated. About all that remains to be done is completing the repairs and reviving the mahogany case's lost luster.

That musical history also repeats itself is shown by the present conflict between the phonograph and the radio. This is only a duplication, Harris explained, of the "survival of the fittest" contest between the music box and the phonograph in the early years of the twentieth century. Manufacturers of the intricately constructed music boxes were confronted with the specter of ugly, bell-mouth "gramophones."

It was a serious situation and, as is the case today, a compromise was effected for a time by manufacturing a combined music box and phonograph—just as there are combined radio and phonograph sets today. One type of music box of the period of its decline looks precisely like a modern table style phonograph. It plays the copper-plated or lacquered steel records, called "disc" and is equipped with the usual crank on one side.

These smaller models, however, do not change their records like their big brothers. The records, ranging from 6 to 27 inches in diameter, are more attractive artistically than the somber black records of today. Exposed in the glass-covered magazines in the lower part of one of the bigger machines, they are reminiscent of Oriental gongs. The designs of their numerous perforations which serve to pluck the steel teeth of the tone-combs also smack of Oriental things.

Several in St. Louis Homes.

A number of St. Louisans own music boxes, Harris said. Some have been in the families for many years; others have been acquired recently, along with antique furniture and hooked rugs. In several homes, the melancholy yet gay tones as these instruments elegantly reel off the classics or those jolly old "fin-de-siecle" airs, the music box is considered quite the thing in dinner music, he stated.

Shuffling discs is no simple task, but an examination of some of the many on hand in Harris' shop brought to light such quaint old titles as "Waltz Me Around Again, Willie," "The Mocking Bird," "Sweet Sixteen," "Last Rose of Summer" and "Hear Dem Bells."

Harris was born in Bethesda Home. His mother died in his infancy, so he has no memory of her. Stricken early with infantile paralysis, he was among those treated by the famous children's specialist, the late Dr. Edward Watt Saunders, one of the founders of the Bethesda institution. His only education war received at the old St. Louis Industrial School and his interest in music boxes began with his acquisition of an old-time phonograph when he was 15 years old. Its big horn was painted to resemble a morning glory.

Two years later he learned there was a broken music box for sale in University City, and he scraped together his savings and bought it. His skil in reparing these machines was acquired gradually through his deep love for them. Every time he heard of one, he never rested until he had managed to see it and had listened to its music. Sometimes they were out of order, and he usualy undertook to repair them, doing the work in his litle room at Bethesda.

NAVY TO LET GRAF ZEPPELIN REFUEL AT LAKEHURST, N. J.

Agrees to Permit Servicing of German Dirigible on Trans-Sea Flights in May and June.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The Navy Department today authorized the German airship Graf Zeppelin to make use of the facilities at the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., on its projected trip to America this year.

According to the Navy Department the graf Zeppelin wil lmake its first flight of the year to the United States in May and is expected to visit the Lakehurst station about May 10. The date for the second visit probably will be in June. It is not expected to remain at the Lakehurst station any longer than is necessary for refueling and servicing.

$10,000,000 TAX UPON WANAMAKER ESTATE CANCELED

shortly after making the transfer of his estate. One of these begins as follows: "My Ever & Never Dearer Precious Son: I am eager to see your face & be near you again after nearly three weeks of absence. I will be more than glad for the intervening two days to pass & bring the early evening on Thursday for which I have the reservation. Thanks to your usual care of me—I feel well and strong."

Another letter was addressed to Rodman on the latter's birthday, which happened to coincide with that of Abraham Lincoln. It began as follows: "Dearest & most loved of all men, you and Lincoln come along together with your birthdays—each of you were born with many of the same great qualities—."

"Mostest & Dearest Rodman."

Another letter was written from Mr. Wanamaker's yacht, then cruising off Key West, and begins with the salutation: "Mostest & Dearest Rodman." In it the father tells his son: "Slept like a top, feel stronger but still higgledy piggledy on my two feet—inside I feel I am 55 years old but walking with an old fellow shaky on his legs, but oh, so much better am I than the man you led into the train at 16 Dec."

Fortifying its contention that Mr. Wanamaker at the age of 82 had no reason to apprehend an early end, the board recites the fact that he taught a Sunday school class, conferred degrees for a school of which he was trustee, and participated in discussions of the then approaching sesqui-centennial celebration at Philadelphia.

He took virtually no medicine, the board continues—"occasionally a little strychnia as a tonic and bracer, a little digitalis to nourish his heart, a little atrophine to steady his heart action, and an occasional dose of whisky at night. For his colds the doctor gave him a very little ammonium hypophosphite, tincture of belladonna and liquor potassium citrate in a littie syrup of lemon."

On this and similar evidence, the majority of the board reached its decision that Mr. Wanamaker did not have death in his mind, but, on the contrary, was "constantly planning far into the future."

Minority of Six Dissents.

A minority consisting of six members dissented from the decision. Pointing out that the law presumes such transfers to be made "in contemplation of death," thus placing on the taxpayer the burden of showing conclusively to the contrary, they declared in their dissenting opinion that the evidence was insufficient to remove the presumption and that the majority, in order to void the assesment, had "erroneously construed the law."

The estate consisted of the Wanamaker stores in Philadelphia and New York and the real estate pertaining to them. In carrying out the transfer, the stock of the New York store was made over to the Philadelphia store, and the stock of the latter was then conveyed to Rodman Wanamaker.

TELLS OF SNAKE HUNTS IN CENTRAL AMERICA

'Pete' French, Who Caught 19 Reptiles, Informs St. Louisans of Unexplored Mountains.

"Pete" French, who caught 19 new reptiles, including several iguanas and poisonous snakes in Spanish Honduras two months ago and donated the collection to the St. Louis Zoological Garden, recounted his experiences on the collecting trip before a meeting of the St. Louis Herpetological Society at the St. Louis College of Pharmacy last night.

In the course of his address, French pointed out that the interior mountains of the Central American country, have never been explored.

"There's no telling what they'll find when they get up in there," he said. "Last August Dr. Douglas March, who discovered that a pentarium there, discovered that a new poisonous green snake had been killing the natives.

"He captured six specimens and sent them to Harvard University. The scientists there had never seen the variety before and could find no record of it in herpetological literature. So they named it after him, Bothrops Nigrovirdus Marchii.

"Dr. March collects snakes, extracts their venom, dries it and sends it to Pennsylvania, where it is made into anti-venin, a serum used to combat the effect of snake bite.

"We had quite a lot of trouble at first catching the iguanas. We tried to shoot them out of trees, but they were too badly injured to save. Then we got an Indian who could imitate a hawk that the iguanas are afraid of. When they heard that noise they cowered down on the branches and remained very quiet, as an ostrich buries its head in the sand when it is frightened. We were then able to get near enough to them to put a wire noose over their heads."

EX-KAISER'S BROTHER, PRINCE HENRY, DIES

Pneumonia Fatal After Three-Day Illness at Estate Near Kiel.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 20.—Prince Henry of Prussia, only brother of the former Kaiser, died today at the age of 66 on his estate at Hemmelmark, near Kiel, without having seen his exiled brother for more than a year.

Reports from Doorn described the ex-Kaiser as grief-stricken at the news of the death of his brother, who was the closest to him of all his kinsmen.

Every year Prince Henry had made it a point to visit Holland and spent the month of February at Doorn, arriving in time for William's birthday on Jan. 27. This year was the first time he had been unable to go there. Prince Henry had intended to visit Doorn in May.

The former Kaiser was informed of his brother's death by Henry's son, Prince Waldemar, who called Doorn on the telephone. A letter had told William at the beginning of the week that Prince Henry was ill with a bad cold, but he had had no intimation that death was feared.

Report of Serious Malady.

Laryngal trouble, from which Prince Henry had suffered for some months, prevented him from going to Doorn and resulted in his death. He developed pneumonia three days ago and died at 1:30 p. m. today. Earlier in the year, the Associated Press had been informed from a trustworthy source that Prince Henry had cancer of the larynx, the same malady with which his father, the late Emperor Frederick III, was stricken. The illness was said to be at an advanced stage.

His wife, Princess Irene; his son, Prince Waldemar, and Waldemar's wife were at Prince Henry's bedside. Prince Sigismund, his second son, is in Costa Rica.

Among the other relatives with him at the end was his sister, Margaret, wife of the former Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse. President von Hindenberg sent Princess Irene a personal telegram of condolence.

Interment will be at the family vault at Hemmelmark Castle, where funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon.

Washington Remembers Gala Visit of Prince 27 Years Ago.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Few men now active in American public life recall that day more than 27 years ago when Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia came to Washington with all the pomp and state befitting his royal blood and his special mission as goodwill Ambassador to the American Government and people from his brother, Emperor William of Germany.

Yet it was a gorgeous occasion that left its stamp on the news reports of that day, February 24, 1902. The Prince and his large suite were in Washington little more than 12 hours, arriving by special train in the morning and leaving again for New York at midnight. An exchange of visits with President Roosevelt, calls upon the resident Ambassadors in Washington of other great nations, visits to the House of Representatives and the Senate, and a State dinner at the White House made it a full day for the Royal guest of the Nation.

"A scene of regal splendor, marked by lavishness of glittering gold lace such as the historic old Pennsylvania Station at Sixth and B streets has never known before" is the way a reporter for the Washington Star described the arrival of the royal party. The news writer greatly impressed by the uniforms of Prince Henry's staff.

During his visit to the Capitol that afternoon, Prince Henry sat a while in the House gallery to hear debate on the Consular and Diplomatic bill. He was cheered and applauded from galleries and floor when he appeared, and later met personally all the members of the House.

The Senate greeted him in silence but with Senators standing in their places.

SENATE COMMITTEE CAUCUS

Republican Meeting Will Ratify Assignments of Members.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The first Republican caucus in the Senate this session will be held Monday for ratification of the new committee assignments worked out by the Committee on Committees.

There has been a scramble among the membership for place on some of the major committees, particularly foreign relations, interstate commerce and finance. However, leaders expect no trouble over the slate to be proposed Monday. Senator Watson of Indiana, the new Republican leader, is relinquishing his chairmanship of the Interstate Commerce Committee to Senator Couzens (Rep.) of Michigan, but Watson will retain his place on the committee.

Acquit Legislator in Dry Case.

CHICAGO, April 20.—A Federal Court jury yesterday acquitted State Representative John R. McSweeney of the Nineteenth District of charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act, requiring less than a half hour to find a verdict. The Government charged McSweeney was a partner in ownership of the Commodore Grill with Hirshie Miller, bootlegger, and two waiters. James Harrington and Joseph O'Keefe, and alleged that liquor was sold in the case. The other three defendants pleaded guilty but McSweeney elected to fight the charges, Miller testifying in his behalf.

SAYS U. S. MAY CURB BIRD HUNTING FURTHER

Chief of Biological Survey Addresses Izaak Walton League, Meeting in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Further restriction of the shooting of a wild fowl may be necessary despite the protection afforded by recent passage of the Norbeck-Anderson migratory bird bill, Paul C. Redington, chief of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, yesterday told delegates to the Izaak Walton League's annual convention.

"It is confidently expected that with the establishment of an adequate system of Federal refuges, as contemplated under the bill, a markedly improved condition will eventually result," he said. "It should be pointed out, however, that under this act a 10-year program is contemplated and it will be some years before the benefits will be available to wild fowl to any considerable degree."

Nominations were announced at last night's session. The official nominations were: Dr. Henry Baldwin Ward, Urbana, Ill., president; Thomas E. Lally of Spokane, Wash.; C. O. Robertson of Chicago; Dr. S. P. Cresap of Nebraska City, Neb.; Prof. Nelson C. Brown of New York; Ralph Morgan of Keene, N. H., vice presidents; Glen Griswold, Chicago, treasurer, and Fred N. Peet, Chicago, secretary.

President Hoover for the third successive year was nominated for honorary president. The election will be held at the closing session today.

Decision as to the next convention city also will be made today. Detroit and Milwaukee, it was learned, are leading in the race, with West Palm Beach, Fla., a strong contender.

May Padlock Stevens Hotel.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Possibility of institution of padlock proceedings against the Stevens and La Salle hotels, the former one of the largest in the world, loomed as the result of raids on drug stores in the two establishments tonight. A large quantity of liquor was seized by prohibition agents.

JOINT RAIL-BARGE RATES ORDERED BY I. C. C. TO BE EFFECTIVE AUG. 27

and thence up the Mississippi Valley by barge line and rail. Joint rates over "grossly circuitous" routes likewise were denied.

The terms of the general order and the exceptions to it are set out as follows:

"We find that all connecting common carriers by rail subject to the Interstate Commerce act and their rail connections should be required to establish through routes in connection with the inland waterways corporation from and to all points served by them, except that (a) no barge-rail route need be established where the short-line all-rail distance via the lines of the said rail carriers from point of destination through the tion through the port of interchange with the barge line exceeds by more than 40 per cent the shortest rail distance between such origin and destination; (b) no rail-barge-rail route need be established where the shortest all-rail distance from point of origin to point or destination through the ports of interchange with the barge line exceeds by more than 33 1-3 per cent the shortest all-rail distance between such origin and destination; (c) no barge-rail route need be established where the shortest all-rail distance between the inland point of origin (or destination, as the case may be) and the port of interchange exceeds three-fourths of the shortest all-rail distance between point of origin and point of destination; (d) no rail-barge-rail route need be established where the sum of the shortest all-rail distance from the point of origin to the port of interchange where the shipment is delivered to the barge line, plus the shortest all-rail distance from the port of interchange where the shipment is relinquished by the barge line to the point of destination exceeds two-thirds of the shortest all-rail distance between origin and destination; and (e) no barge-rail or rail-barge-rail route need be established if an agreement that it shall not be established is reached between the Inland Waterways Corporation and the carriers by rail involved.

Waterways Line Shows Profit.

The Inland Waterways Corporation is the outgrowth of the movement which led the Government in 1918 to establish barges on the Mississippi River for the purpose of relieving wartime freight congestion.

Barges are now operated on both the upper and lower stretches of the Mississippi River and on the Warrior River.

A recent annual report by Gen. Ashburn showed a net profit for the calendar year 1928 of about $250,000, notwithstanding the losses that were incurred in the establishment of the new line on the Upper River.

On the lower Mississippi division alone the corporation earned for the Government a net income of over $700,000.

The corporation already enjoys joint rate arrangements with a number of the railroads. By the commission's order, practically all the carriers are now brought into line.

The order further provides that within 30 days after the new rates become effective, the railroads shall enter into negotiations with the Waterways Corporation for the purpose of agreeing upon equitable divisions of the joint rates.

Most Rates "On All Commodities."

The opinion of the commission is by Commissioner Eastman. His report points out that in some instances the rates sought by the corporation apply between ports served by the barge lines, that in other instances they involve rail-water-rail routes, and in still others, routes served partly by rail carriers and partly by carriers on the ocean or lakes. In a few cases the corporation asked for joint rates on particular commodities, but in general it sought an order covering "all classes and commodities."

Commissioner Woodlock, in a separate concurring opinion, stressed the point that not only water transportation but traffic by rail must be preserved in full vigor. Neither, he said, should be allowed to prey upon the other. He asked that the results of the water-transportation "experiment" be closely watched. Salient parts of Woodlock's opinion were as follows:

"We are here prescribing joint through rail-water rates over a large part of the United States. We are doing it summarily because Congress told us to do it. We do not know whether the level of the rates prescribed is or is not, in fact, the proper level. We found the differential in existence as a relic of the war and we continue it. It may be too high, or it may be too low; we have not here the evidence on which to determine the question. We take what we find.

An Experiment in Rates.

"Further, in prescribing joint rates between rail and water lines, we take what we find and label them maxima. So far we leap in the dark. In prescribing through routes over which these joint rates are to apply, we adopt certain broad—but sound—limiting principles so as to preserve at least some degree of consistency with proper economic laws; in so doing, at all events, we are on solid ground.

"In all this, however, we are experimenting, and we are doing so under the positive mandate of Congress—which mandate we are assuming to be constitutional—and, therefore, our duty is clear. But the public should understand two things. One is that this is an experiment; and the other is, that its results should be closely observed, so that appropriate action may be taken in accordance with these results.

"The latter involves a strict scrutiny of two things. One is the operation of the government-owned Inland Waterways Corporation, to the end that we may be able to determine whether or not it is economically justified. The other is the effect of its operation upon the rail-carrier revenues so that we may be able to determine to what extent they are diminished by the water service. In both cases it is evidence and not propaganda which is required."

Manager of Line Hails Decision as "Great Victory."

The Interstate Commerce Commission's decision ordering railroads to establish a virtually national system of joint rates with the Government barge lines was described as "a great victory" yesterday by J. P. Higgins, operating manager of the Lower Mississippi division of the Mississippi-Warrior Service.

Rail-and-water rates 20 per cent lower than all-rail rates, except when use of barge lines requires a longer haul than existing all-rail routes, in which cases the Commission considered 10 per cent a sufficient differential, are called for in the order. Reducing the saving to shippers to 10 per cent in these particular instances, and ruling against establishment of barge-rail-ocean rates between the Lower Mississippi Valley and the Atlantic seaboard, were virtually the only points denied the Inland Waterways Corporation, the Government agency operating the barge lines.

"The victory is not complete," remarked Higgins, "until equitable divisions of these joint rates are established, so that both railroads and barge lines obtain a just return on their part of the joint haul. Many roads still insist that their part of the revenue must equal their all-rail rate to our port. In such cases, the entire 20 per cent rate saving to shippers would have to come out of the barge line's revenue for its part of the haul. Some of the railroads, however, as participating carriers in the 20 per cent differential, already are demanding somewhat less than their all-rail rate to the port of transfer to barge line.

Traffic Expansion Expected.

"Extension of the barge line's rate territory will be the great benefit of yesterday's decision. Whereas, now we may have a rate with one railroad into a certain territory, under the order we will have rates with all the connecting lines into that territory.

"As it is, almost all our traffic is handled in some relationship with the rail lines. The barge line could not support itself on the commerce originating at the river banks. Last year 70 per cent of our traffic on the Lower Mississippi was shipped in conjunction with railroads.

"Extension of territory of ... means expansion of traffic, ... the decision is timely, for th... of 40 new 2000-ton barges ... equal to our original equip... are to be delivered in July."

BAY STATE G. O. P. WORRIED OVER 1930 ELECTION

Massachusetts Politicians in Doubt as to Candidate for Senate Who Can Defeat Democrats.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, April 20.—With the primary a year and a half in the future, Massachusetts Republicans today are already looking for a candidate who can keep the State from having two Democratic Senators for the first time in its history. The question is, shall the candidate be former President Calvin Coolidge, as suggested by the influential Boston Transcript, or the incumbent, Senator Frederick Gillett, or former Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, an avowed candidate, or Loring B. Young, who aspired to Senatorial honors last fall, or the present Mayor of Boston, Malcolm Nichols? The Coolidge candidacy, brought forth a great mass of editorial comment from all over the country, but not much in the way of actual political support from the people who count in Massachusetts. The Transcript started the movement "on its own," without any word from Coolidge. Relations between the Transcript and Gillett have been none too friendly, and apparently the newspaper felt that he could not win over a strong Democrat in 1930.

At any rate, the Transcript's unexpected action precipitated developments and started Republican politicians maneuvering. Gillett immediately announced that if Coolidge wanted to run for the Senate, he would gladly step aside. Not so former Gov. Fuller. When he left the State House a few weeks ago he cautiously left open a way for a return to public life, which he enjoys. When reporters pointed out that he did not seem to be closing the door to possible candidacy for the Senate, Fuller replied: "On the contrary, I am opening the door; I think that is definite enough." When he was notified that the Transcript had proposed Coolidge as Republican candidate for Senator, Fuller declared that he did not think Coolidge would consider the Senatorship, and added that an appointment to the United States Supreme Court would be more suitable.

So far former President Coolidge has said nothing. Gillett came up to Massachusetts from Washington to confer with him, but the outcome of the discussion has not been made public.

Gillett Will Be 79.

Political observers here point out that Gillett, at President Coolidge's request, quit the speakership of the House in 1924 to run against David I. Walsh, whom he barely defeated, although Coolidge carried the State by an overwhelming majority. He could have been re-elected indefinitely to the House, say these observers and Coolidge would not be playing the game if he came out against him in 1930.

The Transcript's proposal has put Gillett in a difficult position. Born in 1851, he will be 79 years old in 1930. And 86 years old at the end of his term, if re-elected. Even if he does not want to run because of advancing years, he would not like to make the announcement at this time. If he could postpone the announcement until just before the primary, he probably could have a great deal to say about his successor. Observers say the odds slightly favor Fuller in a primary race against Gillett. Strange as it may seem to the outside world with the Sacco-Vanzetti case in mind, Fuller is regarded in Massachusetts as something of a radical.

"He's another Jim Couzens," a Boston editor, until recently a Washington correspondent, declared. Fuller has made millions out of automobile agencies, and to hear the local political writers talk, he is obsessed with the idea that the local financiers might try to influence him. A well-informed political observer solemnly asserted that Fuller invested his money in old masters for fear he might get tied up with the local capitalists. Fuller is not popular with the old guard, because he hopped on the escalator when it neared the top. The man the Republicans figure they have to beat is John F. Fitzgerald, former Mayor of Boston, whose nickname "Fitzy" is said to be worth lots of votes.

G. O. P. Papers Lose Prestige.

Andrew Peters is also mentioned, but usually the Democrats in fixing up a slate for the City of Boston, the State government and the senatorship, juggle names indiscriminately. The Republicans hopefully say that the Democrats have troubles of their own, and are likely to be split when election day comes. The Transcript came out for Coolidge, believing that he certainly would be elected Senator.

Republicans are not so hopeful of the others named. Gillett defeated Walsh by only 15,588 votes, while Coolidge defeated Davis 703,476 to 280,831. Walsh won last year by 129,000 majority. Another interesting angle of the forthcoming primary and election is the loss of political prestige suffered by two Republican papers, the Herald and the Traveler, by sale of half the stock to the International Paper and Power Co., a member of the "Power Trust."

Democrats declare that if these papers indorse any candidate, that candidate will immediately be labeled a "power" man, one acceptable to the "interests," and even Republicans admit that the indorsement of these papers may do more harm than good.

Be COOLER this Summer— be WARMER next Winter

A Balsam-Wool Blanket in the attic will give you comfort all year round—pays for itself . . . . . .

Why go through another summer in sweltering rooms? Why go through another winter paying excessive fuel bills to make your house comfortably warm? Your family need not suffer summer's heat. Your pocketbook need not be so seriously affected by winter's cold. A Balsam-Wool Blanket in the attic—installed now—will keep the house comfortably cool this summer, save you many dollars next winter.

The sun's heat passing in through the roof is what makes the house hot in summer. The furnace heat leaking out through the roof is what wastes money in the winter. A Balsam-Wool Blanket in the attic—stops the passage of heat in both directions.

Balsam-Wool is TRUE Insulation

Balsam-Wool is a flexible blanket, thick and efficient. The full inch thickness is recommended for attic insulation. It tucks in snugly. It fills the spaces around windows and doors and caulks all cracks as rigid boards cannot. It is made to insulate—to insulate thoroughly—and to do nothing but insulate.

Paid for by Fuel Saved

A Balsam-Wool Blanket in the attic costs surprisingly little—and the cost is quickly returned to you in fuel savings.

Easy to Apply

Balsam-Wool is easy to apply. Any good carpenter can do it. Ask one to figure on the job now, or 'phone your lumber dealer.

Balsam-Wool is a guaranteed Weyerhaeuser product—a blanket of fluffy wood fibre that looks and acts like sheep's wool. It is True Insulation—keeping the house warm in winter and cool in summer—because it is—

FLEXIBLE · THICK · EFFICIENT · WINDPROOF
WATERPROOF · FIRE RESISTANT · VERMIN PROOF · LIGHT WEIGHT · PERMANENT

5-CENT REDUCTION IN COAL RATES IN ILLINOIS UPHELD

State Supreme Court Approves Action of Commerce Body and Circuit Court.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 20.—Reduction of five cents on coal freight rates in Illinois, ordered by the Illinois Commerce Commission and affirmed by the Champaign County Circuit Court, was today affirmed by the Supreme Court.

The Santa Fe Railroad appealed the suit to the Supreme Court from Champaign County on the contention that the reduction was not justified and that it would cost the company $400,000 yearly in revenue.

Rates existing when the Commerce Commission ordered the cut were: Northern Illinois field, $1.25; Danville, $1.57; Peoria, fine, $1.36, lump $1.43; Springfield, $1.65; Fulton County, $1.55; and Southern Illinois, $1.95.

The Commerce Commission order was the result of a joint hearing held with Interstate Commerce Commission and Public Service Commission of Indiana, at which the variance in freight rates between Kentucky, Indiana, and Illinois coal fields and the Chicago switching district was discussed.

COUZENS $10,000,000 CHILD FUND CREATED

Michigan Senator Establishes Foundation to Promote Health and Welfare.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., April 20.—Creation of a trust fund of $10,000,000 to be known as the Children's Fund of Michigan, to "promote the health, welfare, happiness and development of the children of the State of Michigan and elsewhere throughout the world," was announced here today by United States Senator James Couzens.

The fund, including principal an dinterest, is to be expended in its entirety within 25 years after May 1, 1929. With the income to be derived from the fund during that time, Arthur J. Lacy, personal attorney for Couzens and one of the fund trustees, estimated that approximately $17,500,000 will be disbursed.

The trust agreement provides that approximately $700,000 shall be expended annually in carrying out the purposes of the fund. While it is to be devoted primarily to the welfare of the children of Michigan, the powers vested in the trustees are such that they may take their research work into any part of the world.

The gift brings Couzens' charitable contributions during the last 10 years to approximately $20,000,000.

Purposes of the Fund.

Dr. Hugo Freund, personal physician to Senator Couzens and one of the trustees, in discussing the fund said:

"It is too early to state all the lines of activity contemplated. Mental hygiene and child guidance clinics will be encouraged; vocational and educational problems will receive attention; plans for properly supervised group recreation will be assisted; dietetic, hygienic, nutritional and other subjects bearing upon the health of children will be investigated whenever and wherever the indication for their study arises. For the present no research in the pure sciences will be attempted, nor will any edifice be erected to serve as a center for the many activities."

Couzens, who names himself one of the trustees, reserves the right to "alter, amend, enlarge or restrict the gift."

In addition to Couzens, Dr. Freund and Lacy, the trustees are Frank Couzens, the Senator's son; McPherson Browning, president of the Detroit & Security Trust Co.; William J. Norton, executive secretary of the Detroit Community Fund, and Clarence E. Wilcox, prominent Detroit attorney.

Many of Couzens' charitable contributions during the last 10 years have been in the interest of children. Approximately $2,000,000 has been given to the Children's Hospital of Michigan; $650,000 was given to Harper Hospital in Detroit for a nurses' home and a like sum in 1923 to the University of Michigan for a nurses' home.

In 1927, when 44 children were killed in the destruction of a schoolhous at Bath, Mich., by an explosion set off by a maniac, Couzens gave $75,000 for the rebuilding of the school.

He has been a contributor to many other charitable undertakings which never have been made public.

SHIELD DEVISED TO PROTECT BALLOONISTS FROM LIGHTNING

AKRON, O., April 20.—The danger of balloonists being killed by lightning has been partly eliminated by the invention of a protective shield, according to Ward T. Van Orman, the designer, and he will use one of the devices in the 1929 national balloon races to be held May 4 at Pittsburg, Pa.

Van Orman, who won the national balloon races in 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927, and the international race at Antwerp in 1926, also is experimenting with a device to protect the balloon itself from lightning. In 1928 Van Orman's balloon in the national race at Pittsburg was struck by lightning. His aid, Walter W. Morton, was killed and Van Orman was injured. Lieut. Paul Everett, U. S. A., was killed similarly in the same contest.

The shied invented by Van Orman consists of crossarms extending diagonally across the metal load ring of the balloon above the basket. From the corners of the crossarms, 12 heavy copper wires hang down about a foot outside the edge of the basket. They extend downward about nine feet. Tests of the device have been made in the laboratories of the Ohio Insulator Works, Barberton, where single impact discharges of 3,000,00 volts, jumping 27 feet, were loosed against the balloon. Instruments placed in the basket showed that the shock did not go through the screen.

PLANS FOR COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES AT WASHINGTON U.

Orator Will Be Dr. Jesse Jones, and Baccalaureate Sermon Will Be Preached by Dr. J. W. MacIvor.

Dr. Jesse Jones, president emeritus of the University of Missouri, will be the orator at the commencement exercises of Washington University, June 11, Chancellor George R. Throop announced last night. Rabbi Samuel Thurman of the United Hebrew Congregation will pronounce the invocation and benediction.

The baccalaureate sermon for the 650 candidates for degrees will be preached by the Rev. John W. MacIvor of the Second Presbyterian Church, at Graham Memorial Chapel, June 9.

CENSORSHIP IDEA REJECTED BY SOCIETY OF EDITORS

W. H. Harrison of Oklahoma City Re-Elected President of National Organization.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—By a vote of 34 to 21 the American Society of Newspaper Editors refused today to approve an amendment to its constitution to permit its Board of Directors to censure, suspend or expel editors or publishers for violation of the journalistic code of ethics, by their newspapers.

The society, however, adopted several resolutions including one commending the Minnesota editors and the Chicago Tribune for their efforts to repeal the press injunction law in Minnesota, and to authorize the society to aid the fight against the statute with counsel if it is brought to the Supreme Court.

Walter H. Harrison, editor of the Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City, was re-elected president of the society.

Washington was selected as the 1930 meeting place.

Other officers elected were: Fred Fuller Shedd of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, first vice president; Paul Bellamy of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, second vice president; Edward S. Beck of the Chicago Tribune, treasurer and Marvin H. Creager of the Milwaukee Journal, secretary.

MODERN AIRPLANE EXPOSITION

Models of every type of modern airplane will tell the story of the development of aviation in a two weeks' exposition sponsored by the Universal Aviation Corporation which opens tomorrow afternoon in Exhibition Hall at the Famous-Barr Department Store.

A full size training plane will occupy a pedestal in the center of the hall, and surrounding it will be demonstrations of night flying beacons, landing lights, old and new airplane motors. Models to be shown here have been brought from the All-American aircraft show held recently in Detroit. Mayor Miller and Col. Halsey Dunwoody, executive vice president of Universal Aircraft Corp., will open the exposition at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Morrows at Ranch for Week-End.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, April 20.—Ambassador and Mrs. Dwight D. Morrow and their daughter, Anne, are spending the weekend at "La Llave," a ranch in the State of Queretaro, as guests of the owner, Jose Wurbe, a Mexican friend. The ranch is more than half way from the capital to the city of Queretaro. The party left this morning by train and expects to return on Monday.

SENT TO OBSERVATION WARD FOR WHIPPING SON WITH BELT

Arthur Wallace, 28, Found to Be Suffering From Effects of Injury.

A severe whipping with a leather belt administered to his 6-year-old son resulted yesterday in Arthur Wallace, 28 years old, of 1321A South Sixth street, being sent to the observation ward at City Hospital.

Wallace whipped his son, Logan, with the belt Thursday night when the boy failed to obey promptly. He was arrested when he took the boy to City Hospital for treatment for bruises. Wallace, charged with peace disturbance, was sent to the city psychiatric clinic for examination. Dr. William Nelson reported to Police Judge Roescan that the father is suffering from a nervous disorder resulting from a head injury suffered last September. Wallace was a patient at City Hospital for six months and was unconscious most of the time. Judge Rosecan ordered Wallace to the observation ward and continued the peace disturbance charge generally.

Doctor Sends New Truss on Trial

No Money Down Required; No Cash Deposit; No C. O. D.

Kansas City, Mo., (Special)—Having invented a rupture appliance with no leg straps, no elastic belt, no cruel spring bands, no hard gouging pads, an unusual offer is now being made by the Hernia Specialist, Dr. Andrew Kaiser, 2282 Koch Building, 2906 Main Street, Kansas City, Mo. Without a cent in advance, no cash deposit, no C. O. D., he will send his appliance for 30 days' trial. Hundreds of people, many with double rupture of long standing, have declared it brought them quick improvement and freedom from the hampering and discomfort of previous truss wearing. If ruptured, and wanting quick relief and improvement, make this test. If entirely pleased and satisfied after the 30 days' trial, pay its small price and keep the appliance. Otherwise, simply return it and owe nothing. Accept this offer by writing today. The coupon below will do.

Dr. Andrew Kaiser, 2282 Koch Bldg., 2906 Main, Kansas City, Mo.

NURSE'S DEATH IN AUTO AN ACCIDENT, JURY DECIDES

Miss Mary O'Donnell Died Friday of Injuries Suffered on Wednesday.

A verdict of accident was returned by a Coroner's jury yesterday in the death of Miss Mary O'Donnell, 22-year-old nurse, of 4434A Laclede avenue, at St. John's Hospital Friday, from internal injuries suffered Wednesday, when an automobile, in which she was riding, with five other nurses, went off the road and struck a concrete post on Illinois Highway No. 4, near Edwardsville.

Miss Mary Heraty of 4531 Chouteau avenue, one of the occupants of the machine, and the only one to testify at the inquest, said she and the other five young women, all employed as nurses at St. John's Hospital, had rented the automobile and spent Wednesday visiting friends in Illinois. Miss Heraty said the car was being driven by Miss Lynn Elsasses, 4574A Laclede avenue, an experienced driver. Miss Heraty said she did not know what caused the accident.

The other four young women, besides Miss Heraty, did not testify, as they are still patients at St. John's.

BUCHAREST, April 20. — The Rockefeller Foundation has offered through Princess Helen, to establish a National hygienic institute in Bucharest to combat social diseases. The offer was made contingent upon the Rumanian Government's bearing half the expenses.

INTERPRETATION OF RULING ON GAS RATE RISE SOUGHT

Laclede's Application of Higher Charge to Consumption Prior to April 6 Causes Protest.

The Public Service Commission will be asked by the city law department to construe the terms of its recent order by which the new rate schedule of the Laclede Gas Light Co. was made effective on "all meter readings on and after April 6, 1929."

Several consumers have complained that their meters were read a few days after April 6 and that they were charged for all the gas consumed since the previous monthly reading at the new rates which in the case of virtually all domestic consumers are higher.

The gas company acknowledges that bills are rendered in the manner in the manner complained of but says it is acting in strict compliance with the terms of the Commission's order. E. L. White, auditor, said it would have been impossible to have read all meters on April 6 to establish the division of rates, and that there is no other equitable means of prorating the charge.

Associate City Counselor Forrest G. Ferris Jr., said the Commission's order provided the new rates were to be effective "on all meter readings on and after April 6," and that under literal construction of the order the company is in the right, but he did not believe that was what the Commission intended. He said the city would ask the commission to interpret the order as to that point.

CHINESE BOARD SAYS ANDREWS DISTORTED FACTS IN DISPUTE

Statement Blames Explorer for Breakdown of Negotiations on Proposed Expedition.

PEKIN, April 20.—The Chinese commission for the preservation of ancient objects issued a statement yesterday saying that Roy Chapman Andrews, American explorer, had distorted the facts as to why negotiations for his projected 1929 expedition in the Gobi Desert had become deadlocked.

The statement asserted the negotiations broke down because of Andrews' insistence that the question of whether the fossils collected by the expedition duplicate finds made by previous expeditions and therefore should remain in China was to be determined alone by Walter Granger, chief paleontologist of the expedition. The Chinese proposed a committee of two, Granger and a Chinese scientist, but this, the statement says, Andrews refused to recognize.

Andrews, giving his side of the case last Tuesday, was quoted as saying that the commission was seeking to obtain the best finds of the expedition while the Americans furnished the money and the labor.

ROAD BILLS ONLY REAL LEGISLATION SO FAR PASSED

Major Portion of Governor's Program Appears to Be Lost Unless Decisive Steps Are Taken.

CAULFIELD BUSY WITH PATRONAGE

Has Made No Effort to Trade It for Votes on His Bills, However—Appointments Meet Approval.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 20. — Unless decisive steps are taken within the next two weeks, either by Gov. Caulfield, or by legislative leaders, the Legislature will adjourn with virtually no progressive legislation having been enacted, and with much of the forward looking program advocated by the Governor in his inaugural message defeated.

In almost four months, the Legislature has been in session the only outstanding piece of legislation has been the enactment of the road bond enabling acts, authorizing the expenditure by the State Highway Department in seven years of approximately $158,000,000, including $75,000,000 of bonds voted last November, on State highways.

The remainder of the bills covering the Governor's recommendations, with few exceptions, are slumbering without any vigorous effort toward their enactment.

Hasn't Traded in Patronage.

The Governor made his recommendations and then awaited legislative action on them, taking the position that he had not the right to interfere with legislation. The Senate has done virtually nothing except to attempt to frame a budget bill and a central purchasing bill, legislation which is now in such a muddle that it is questionable whether any of it will be enacted into law.

The outlook for the Governor's program must appear gloomy to any observer of legislative affairs.

The greater part of his time has been occupied in matters of patronage and gradually he is getting the important State positions filled. His appointments generally have met public approval, and in making them while not interfering in legislation, he has kept away from the practice of many Governors of the State in trading patronage for votes of Legislators on measures in which he was interested.

Chief Recommendations.

In the inaugural message the chief recommendations of the Governor were:

Enactment of proper legislation to enable the Highway Department to have a free hand in the expenditure of the road bond money.

Creation of a budget and central purchasing system, and consolidation of many state departments.

Creation of a commission to make a complete survey of the educational system of the State, and of the building needs of the educational, eleemosynary and penal institutions.

A bill increasing the salary of the State Superintendent of Insurance from $3000 to $7500 a year, and a change in the law to give the Governor the power to remove the superintendent.

A survey of county government with a view to eliminating wasteful methods and reducing the cost.

Revision of the criminal code.

The placing of authority in the Governor to remove derelict law enforcement officials.

Provision for contests of primary elections.

Provisions for increased funds for the Public Service Commission to enable it to speed up public utility rate cases.

Placing Lincoln University, a state school for Negroes in Jefferson City, on the same educational plane as the State University.

Measures Likely to Pass.

The road legislation has been enacted, and it appears reasonably certain that the educational, eleemosynary and penal survey will be made, that the primary election contest bill will be passed and that his recommendations regarding the Insurance Department will be adopted. But much of the remainder of the program is doomed, and there is doubt that any of it will be passed.

The criminal code revision already has been beaten. No bills have even been introduced to carry out the Governor's ideas for a survey of county governments or for authority to remove derelict law enforcement officials. The bill to provide increased funds for the Public Service Commission has failed of engrossment in the House, and there is no probability that it will be revived.

Without vigorous efforts in behalf of the public utility legislation, it at no time was in a favorable position. Representatives of public utility interests quietly worked against it, not because they objected to speeding up rate cases, but because they would have provided all the additional funds, the law calling for an assessment of one-fourth of 1 per cent on the gross earnings of the railroads and utilities to be paid to the commission. In the absence of official insistence for the measure, the utility representatives had little difficulty in defeating it.

Budget Bill Uncertain.

A budget bill may be passed, though the outlook is uncertain now. A comprehensive measure, which goes as far toward a good budget system as is possible under the Missouri constitution, is ready for engrossment in the Senate, but Democratic leaders, peeved because the Republicans with the support of four Democratic Senators amended it, are threatening to permit it to die on the calendar.

The Democrats included in the bill a provision to transfer from State Auditor Thompson supervision of the income tax collections and from State Treasurer Brunk supervision of inheritance tax collections, these duties to go to the proposed new Department of Budget and Revenue. To save the patronage Thompson and Brunk have under the present laws, the entire Republican membership of the Senate, with enough Democratic support to win, amended the bill.

The argument of the Republicans was that the tax collection duties were not essential to a budget system, and to that extent the argument undoubtedly was sound. They further suggested that the proposed change in tax collection should be in a separate bill.

The Democrats have prepared such a measure, and are discussing introducing it and making the passage of the budget bill contingent upon the passage of this bill.

Democrats Open to Attack.

While the transfer of the duties is considered desirable from the standpoint of the elimination of waste and duplication of work, it actually has nothing to do with the budget, and defeat of the budget bill by the Democrats because of the failure of the Republicans to support the transfer of tax collections supervision would lay the Democrats open to a charge of insincerity in their protestations of friendship for budget legislation.

The central purchasing bill, creating a purchasing agent to buy everything used by the State, has been engrossed in the Senate. It has been estimated by competent authorities that its passage would mean a saving of at least $600,000 a year to the State, but notwithstanding that it is in danger of defeat. It is even doubtful that it can pass the Senate, though it would seem probable the Republicans would oppose it. They attempted to emasculate it on engrossment and failed.

However, the bill, if passed in the Senate, will have to face the opposition of Secretary of State Becker and other State officials except the Governor, who objects to surrendering valuable political advantages derived from the supervision of the expenditure of huge sums of money.

Editors Visit Governor.

Becker's opposition is due principally to the fact it would take from him the power to dispense the State printing to rural newspapers. In the eight years he has been in office he has let the printing of constitutional amendments without bids and at the highest price permitted by law. In a recent public appeal to rural newspapers for support in his fight, Becker told them the passage of the central purchasing bill would mean that the excess amounts they had received for this printing would be eliminated.

His appeal brought representatives of the Republican Editorial Association to Jefferson City yesterday to appeal to Gov. Caulfield to save their patronage for them. A committee headed by W. R. Dutton, president of the Association and editor of the News Dispatch of Seneca, visited the Governor. Although no authentic information of the interview has been disclosed, it was reported at the capitol that the Governor gave them no satisfaction.

There are several budget, central purchasing and consolidation bills in the House, where they have been engrossed, but for the most part these are loosely drawn and would accomplish little. It is virtually certain the Senate will reject all the House bills covering these subjects.

There is no adequate consolidation bill pending and there will be no consolidation of departments by this legislature.

The insurance department legislation asked for by the Governor probably will be passed. The bills have been engrossed in the Senate and should be passed within the next 10 days.

State Institution Survey.

The survey of educational, eleemosynary and penal institutions, one of the important features of the Governor's program, has met general support in the Legislature. Under a bill which is well along toward passage, the Governor would appoint a commission with power to employ such expert assistance as might be needed, to examine exhaustively into the educational system and recommend plans for improvement, and to determine the building needs of the institutions. It is the expectation that this survey will lead to the submission of a bond issue of at least $25,000,000 for new buildings, and that from it will come a comprehensive plan for providing adequate revenues for the schools. A special session of the legislature next winter to attempt to enact into law of the recommendations of the commission is being considered by the Governor.

Measures providing for contests of primary elections have progressed well in both houses and apparently this legislation will be enacted. There is pending a bill for permanent registration of voters, which also is in prospect of passage.

The date of the adjournment of the legislature has not been fixed but it cannot be far off. After May 1 the salary of legislators automatically will drop from $5 to $1 a day and they will not remain in session long after that. The general opinion here is that adjournment will be about May 11.

ARMS CONFERENCE MAKES FEEBLE START

In First Week's Sessions It Merely Duplicates Work Covered by Treaty of 1925.

GENEVA, April 20.—After one week's labor, the preliminary disarmament conference has made a feeble start on the elaboration of provisions in a draft treaty which it is hoped to submit later to the first of a series of international conferences for limitation or reduction of armaments. It touches only the decision to abolish chemical warfare, which was already adequately covered by the protocol against the employment of poison gas and bacteria in wartime concluded at Geneva in 1925, on the initiative of the American delegation.

Considerable doubt is manifested as to the necessity or wisdom of incorporating the poison gas prohibition in the draft because it duplicates the Geneva protocol and it is feared may hamper the movement already gathering force to ratify that instrument.

The Soviet delegation continued to preach its conviction that the disarmament commission would get nowhere except by adopting the Soviet doctrine of disarmament, but decided not to bolt the conference. One reason for remaining is said to be fear of criticism from the workers throughout the world if it failed to contribute its efforts to all movements directed toward reduction of armaments.

A soviet representative today signed the treaty for international action against counterfeiting but with the reservation that Russia would decline to go to the World Court of Justice if any misunderstanding should arise betweeen the signatory states as to the true purport of the convention.

COLUMBUS STATUE UNVEILING IN SPAIN

110-Foot Monument, Donated by Americans, to Be Dedicated Tomorrow.

PALOS, Spain, April 20.—Extensive preparations have been made here for unveiling tomorrow of Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney's statue to Christopher Columbus. The statue was erected with funds contributed by Americans.

Premier Primo de Rivera, Ogden H. Hammond, the American Ambassador, the Spanish Navel Minister, and other prominent persons left Madrid last night to participate in the dedication, at which Mrs. Whitney herself will be present.

The U. S. Raleigh and the Spanish battleship Almirante Cervera are anchored in the harbor which is the same from which Columbus sailed on his first voyage to America. The Spanish ship will fly the flags of the United States and Spain during the unveiling.

The statue is a 70-foot figure of Columbus rising above a 40-foot base. He stands with his arms resting in the traverse of a great cross, his eyes directed westward. The angles of the great square base are softened by figures representing the four continents. Maps and charts used by Columbus adorn the walls of the chamber inside the base.

Saddle Horse Auction Sales Total $34,475

Altogether 82 Are Sold — Women, Men, Youngsters Among Bidders in Tanbark Ring.

"Here, gentlemen," said the stout auctioneer, "is a mighty pretty horse. She's five years old and sound and broke. Who'll start her off?"

He smiled benevolently at the colorful shifting crowd that scuffed in the tanbark about his stand, chatting and scribbling in catalogues. Shrewd-eyed men with hat brims turned down. Capable appearing women in every imaginable kind of clothes, from evening gowns to stained khaki riding breeches. Youngsters not yet out of high school, but well aware of the values and procedure of the business on hand.

The spring auction of saddle horses was about to start in the arena at the Missouri Stables, 5200 Berthold avenue. Col. P. M. Gross, the auctioneer, ran the fingers of one hand through his curly gray hair, twitched smooth the lapels of his brown suit and whistled shrilly for attention. The square wooden block which he uses instead of the conventional auctioneer's hammer, cracked down on the board in front of him and the sale was on.

"Three hundred dollars, gentlemen? Do I hear three hundred? Do I hear three hundred? Do I hear three hundred? Who'll give three hundred?" There was no sign from the crowd. "Two hundred then. HIP! Do you want two hundred, two hundred, two hundred? Who'll give two hundred?" There was still no sign and the Colonel went on without a break in his flow of words: "All right, then, a hundred dollars, a hundred dollars, a hundred dollars. Seventy-five, seventy-five—"

He stopped, whistled, and when silence had fallen, remarked conversationally: "Here's a horse that's sound and broke. You're not going to let me talk about $75 for her, are you?"

Mac, a big man with a cane, who was one of the auctioneer's assistants, smiled: "We're going to give her away, sure enough." He conversed shortly with one of the crowd and raised his cane, crying: "I've got $80 right now."

"Eighty," repeated Col. Gross' singsong. "Eighty. Now five, d'ye want her for five, who'll give me five who'll give me the five, gentlemen?"

The horses were sold for varying amounts. Words fairly bubbled from th Colonl's mouth when the bidding was slow, and when it became rapid, the amounts jumped $100 or more at a time. Occasionally owners addressed the crowd, reciting the merits of their horses.

The bidding continued, horses trotted and cantered, and the crowd chatted and bid and renewed old friendships until midnight.

The sale began Friday and closed last night after 82 horses had been sold for $34,475. The highest price paid yesterday was $1300 for Jo Anna, consigned by Schnieder and Zuber of Jefferson City, and sold to J. P. Miller of St. Louis. At yesterday's sale 45 horses were sold for $20,070.

KELLOGG PACT NEEDS ONLY O. K. OF JAPAN

France's Ratification to Be Deposited With U. S. Government Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Hope that the Kellogg treaty renouncing war as an instrument of national policy might soon become operative was revived today by word that France's ratification would be deposited with the American Government on Monday.

Deposit of the ratification of Japan alone is needed to put the treaty into effect. Ratification is in process in Tokio and is expected to be completed shortly. It will require two or three weeks after Japan's ratification before that country's instrument can be deposited in Washington.

Deposit of France's ratification will make a total of 14 out of the 15 original signatory nations which have deposited their instruments. Of the 49 nations invited to adhere to the treaty, 18 have deposited their instruments here.

Sixty-four nations are associated with the treaty. The negotiation of it began in June, 1927, between former Secretary Kellogg and Foreign Minister Briand of France, and was later extended to include 15 nations in all. Secretary Kellogg from the first insisted upon making the treaty universal and open to signatures by all nations of the world. The treaty was signed in Paris on Aug. 27, 1928.

The plenipotentiaries in signing the treaty were headed by Gustave Stresemann of Germany, the first German Foreign Minister to have been received by French officials in Paris for half a century. Secretary Kellogg signed second and was followed by the plenipotentiaries of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Irish Free State, India, Italy, Japan, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. The invitation extended to the 49 other nations to adhere to the treaty has been accepted by all but Argentina and Brazil.

VARICOSE VEINS
Of the Leg

It is highly important to watch for the beginning of varicosity of veins in the leg and reduce the bulges, even though they cause no suffering, other than the anguish of a disfigured appearance.

For several years past, Clinics have been held in schools and colleges, reducing varicose veins of the leg by Absorption Treatment. The new method has unqualified endorsement. It is said that nearly 95 per cent of all people can get rid of varicose veins without resorting to the knife.

If one is so unfortunate as to be denied absorption treatments because he suffers from invisible varicose veins, phlebitis or milk leg, the art of learning how to reduce and prevent this swelling is easy to attain. Forcing the return flow of circulation with a viscous application called Viscose Method reduces swelling, reduces inches and pains and cramps quickly. A few repeated applications will produce a decided healing tendency. Injuries, bruises or scratches, which have been troublesome for years, heal quickly. Even leg rash and ulceration or leg sores will positively heal without loss of time, as you work and walk and use the leg normally.

SENATOR NYE PRAISES OIL POLICY OF HOOVER

Investigations Have Benefited Government, He Says on Radio.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—President Hoover's new oil conservation policy, the care of the Indian and the administration of the public domain were among the topics discussed tonight in the Washington Star's radio forum by Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, and Senator Nye of North Dakota, chairman of the Senate Public Lands Committee.

The latter, whose committee still is carrying on investigations into handling of the Government oil lease declared, "the story of these oil scandals when finally written is bound to constitute the blackest page in all our history," and praised the Hoover policy as a "drastic" step in a situation "calling for drastic action."

Conservation of oil by "wise use" was urged by Wilbur. He said that present civilization had been built on the gasoline engine and that any other use of gasoline-bearing oil was wasteful.

"If oil containing gasoline is used for a substitute for coal, of which we have immense quantities available, an economic loss is made," Secretary Wilbur said, "and we have by that amount reduced the potential strength of our economic life in the future."

Senator Nye reviewed the Senate oil investigations, enumerating the results as:

First, "Greater caution in the administration of the affairs of the public domain;"

Second, "An awakening to the methods of men with ulterior purposes to serve in their relation to the great National parties and their campaign funds;"

Third, "There has been awakened the conscience of the oil industry itself, which has taken some splendid steps in more recent months in cleansing itself of such agents and leaders as Stewart;"

Fourth, "There has been restored to the Government reserves and resources valued most conservatively at about $60,000,000;"

Fifth, "There has been a direct monetary return to the Government through recovery of profits taken from the public domain by fraudulent practices."

Secretary Wilbur said that for 100 years the Indians had been viewed as hostages, prisoner or wards, but that it would be the aim of the Interior Department to think in terms of the Indian boy and girl of today and "to ... to develop plans so that they will be able to merge into the full life of American citizens when they reach maturity."

YOUTH WHO IS HALF AMERICAN TO INHERIT REVELSTOKE TITLE

Son of Hon. Cecil Baring Becomes Heir by Uncle's Death.

(Copyright, 1929.)

LONDON, April 20.—The death in Paris of Lord Revelstoke, millionaire head of the banking house of Baring Bros., and the succession of the Barony to his eldest brother, Hon. Cecil Baring, means that a young man who is half American will one day succeed to the title and a share of the vast family fortune.

Cecil Baring in 1902 married Miss Maude Lorillard, youngest daughter of the late Pierre Lorillard of Jobston, N. J. Their son, Rupert, who is now 18, becomes heir to the title by his uncle's death. The new Baron, who is a year younger than his late brother, will be 64 in September. He is a director of Baring Bros.

AIR TOUR TO BOOST AERONAUTIC MEETING

Members of Mechanical Engineers Society to Leave Tomorrow on Week's Trip.

Leaving Lambert-St. Louis Field at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning, five St. Louisans, members of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, will conduct a five-day air tour of nine large cities to promote interest in the Third National Aeronautical Meeting to be held here May 27-30 under auspices of the Aeronautic Division of the society.

They will travel in the "Gold Shell," tri-motored Fokker of the Shell Petroleum Corporation, with Milton Girton as chief pilot and Samuel Smith as co-pilot.

Miss Amelia Earhart, trans-Atlantic flyer, will join the party either at Cleveland or Detroit. The St. Louisans on the flight will be Victor J. Azbe, Maj. T. A. Peck, Phil R. Love, Ernest Hartford and R. M. Boyles. Archibald Black, New York engineer, will join the party at Pittsburg.

Arriving in Chicago shortly before noon tomorrow, members of the delegation will address a luncheon meeting at the Palmer House. The next stop will be that night in Detroit for a dinner meeting with the local engineering society.

The delegation will remain in Detroit overnight and take off for Cleveland, where a luncheon meeting will be held early Tuesday morning. Automotive engineers, members of the Buffalo Aero Club and the Buffalo Engineering Society will attend the aviation meeting at Buffalo Tuesday evening.

Members of the party will address a joint meeting of the Pittsburg section, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and the newly formed aviation section of the society, to be held at the William Penn Hotel at Pittsburg Wednesday noon. That night they will attend a meeting of aviation enthusiasts at Cincinnati, remaining there overnight.

Arriving at Dayton, O., shortly before noon Thursday, the delegation will remain there all day. Luncheon and dinner meetings have been arranged with the Rotary and Lions clubs. The delegation will call on Orville Wright and conduct an inspection trip over Wright Field.

The party will stop in Indianapolis Friday morning to refuel, proceeding directly to Lafayette, Ind., where a luncheon meeting has been arranged with members of the faculty and students at Purdue University. Leaving Lafayette about 3 o'clock, the men will return to Lambert-St. Louis Field between 5 and 6 o'clock the same evening. They will attend a meeting of the St. Louis section of the society Friday night, when they will submit a report of their trip.

UNABLE TO HOLD NEWSPAPER BECAUSE OF PECULIAR RHEUMATISM

Local Man's Muscles Weakened by Severe Form of Rheumatism—Says Recovery Due to Weldona

"I could not hold a newspaper in my hands because of this peculiar form of rheumatism, and I have tried about everything recommended for rheumatism," said Mr. Louis Kehm of 1332 January Ave. Mr. Kehm continued: "It seemed to be all in my right side. My shoulder, elbow, wrist and hand was stiff and weak. It was impossible for me to get my hand to my head to comb my hair or put on my coat. My hip pained me, and I would have difficulty in going up and down stairs. My ankle was sore and stiff and made walking painful.

"I had read about so many local people who were benefited by Weldona tablets that I finally decided to try once more to find relief. I must say in a few weeks the pain and stiffness left me. I began to sleep better, the pain and stiffness in the morning has left me and I no longer have any trouble in getting my hand to my head. My grip has returned and I feel very much stronger in every way. It is a pleasure and a privilege to tell my experience with Weldona tablets and anyone is at liberty to call or write to me for further particulars about my case."

Weldona tablets are always put up in a box—never in a bottle. Ask for Weldona tablets, which are recommended for rheumatism and rheumatic conditions only. Weldona tablets are absolutely harmless and will not upset the stomach, affect the heart or any other organ.

The Weldona representative, who now meets the public every day at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Av., St. Louis, gladly explains more about this remedy and gives out the 24-page fully illustrated and interesting books, entitled, "Germs of Rheumatism," which are absolutely free of charge to all who call or write for them.

Miserable with Backache?

A Bad Back Often Warns of Disordered Kidneys.

DOES every day find you lame and achy—suffering nagging backache, headache and dizzy spells?

Are kidney excretions too frequent, scanty or burning in passage? These are often signs of sluggish kidneys and should not be neglected.

To promote normal kidney action and assist your kidneys in cleansing your blood of poisonous wastes, use Doan's Pills. Endorsed the world over. Ask your neighbor!

50,000 Users Endorse Doan's:

J. W. Ashburn, 2448 Lomond St., Winston-Salem, N. C., says: "My kidneys gave me considerable trouble. The secretions passed too frequently. In the morning my back was lame and stiff. I had headaches and dizzy spells. Some of my neighbors recommended Doan's Pills and I tried them. I was no longer bothered with a backache and my kidneys again acted normally."

CITY BUDGET BILL PARED $4,000,000, IS $29,966,722

Board of Estimate Allows $2,134,204 Less for Municipal Purposes Than It Did Last Year.

The annual municipal budget bill for the fiscal year 1929-30, which will be presented to the Board of Aldermen next Friday by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, carries an appropriation of $29,966,772.22. This includes $20,987,247.50 for municipal purposes—meaning the general conduct of the city government—which is about $4,000,000 less than the aggregate that had been asked for by the various departments.

It was necessary for the Board of Estimate to pare the $4,000,000 off the requests for lack of revenue. Details of the general appropriations and of the rejected items will not be made public until the bill reaches the Aldermen.

Other items of the budget, as announced by Deputy Comptroller Gunn, are $2,555,029 for the Water Division, that will be paid out of water revenue; $7,452,848.25 for the interest and sinking fund, to meet the interest and principal of bonds, and $71,747.47 for use of the condemnation section of the Law Department out of bond issue funds.

Deficit $1,087,000.

The municipal purposes fund had a deficit of approximately $1,087,000 when the last fiscal year closed on April 8, as the Comptroller had predicted. At the end of the previous fiscal year there had been a surplus of $497,480. The aggregate decline, therefore, was about $1,584,480 in the year. This occurred, city officials say, because of the arbitrary inclusion of $1,200,000 for the new Police Headquarters in last year's requirements of the Police Board and because of the emergency appropriation from the municipal purposes fund of $500,000 towards the $1,000,000 which it will cost to finish the new Civil Courthouse in excess of the $4,000,000 bond item for that project.

There is no provision in the budget for the police pension fund, if the pension bill is passed by the State Legislature. It is estimated that $400,000 would be needed for this and the city might have to borrow the money.

Revenue Below Last Year's.

In the initial budget of the last fiscal year $20,190,637 was appropriated, including $23,021,551.50 for municipal purposes, $2,451,762 for the Water Division, and $4,717,223.50 for the interest and sinking fund.

For municipal purposes this year the appropriation is $2,134,204 less than last year. Revenue to be collected this year is estimated at $22,124,000, Deputy Comptroller Gunn said, which is $250,000 less than last year. The sum of the current appropriation plus the $1,087,000 deficit amounts to $22,674,347. This total, subtracted from the anticipated revenue, leaves only $549,653 available for emergencies during the coming year.

One reason why revenue will be smaller this year is the fact that back taxes were paid by the banks and other interests last year, after litigation. Besides, the city will lose a source of income due to the court decision that goods manufactured outside of Missouri and shipped direct from factory, although ordered through St. Louis headquarters, are not subject to the city's sales tax of $1 a $1000.

Tax Rate Up 8 Cents.

The city has $64,400,000 in bonds outstanding, including $13,000,000 waterworks bonds supported by water revenue, also including $42,000,000 in public improvement bonds of the 1923 issue. $3,793,000 of the 1920 issue and $5,707,000 of earlier issues. Probably in October $6,000,000 more of the 1923 bonds will be sold.

The Board of Aldermen will receive next Friday also the tax rate bill, fixing the rate for municipal purposes at $1.35 on the $100, as it has been for several years, and the rate for the interest and sinking fund at 34 cents, an increase of 7 cents over last year due to the growing volume of indebtedness outstanding. The city rate includes the special divisions for support of the Zoo, Art Museum and Public Library. The school tax rate this year will be 87 cents, an increase of 1 cent and, the State rate will remain at a 14 cents. Thus the total rate for 1929 will be $2.70, an increase of 8 cents.

Right after the Game

THE POST-DISPATCH
SPORT FINAL

Big league baseball teams are off to a flying start on what probably will be one of the most interesting seasons in years. To keep informed of the day to day developments of both pennant races, St. Louis fans will read the Sport Final of the Post-Dispatch.

This special sport edition is on sale every week day just as soon as the home game is over. It contains all the latest baseball news—final scores of major league games, the box scores and inning by inning stories of the Cards' and Browns' games, standings of the teams, and late baseball news from all the cities in both circuits.

Both St. Louis teams should be real pennant contenders this year. The story of their daily progress will be told in sparkling reports by seasoned baseball writers. J. Roy Stockton, long a Post-Dispatch expert, will follow the Browns, and James Gould, whose stories are known to all St. Louis fans, will tell you how the Cards are meeting their competition in the National League.

Besides this complete baseball news, sport followers will find sparkling, expertly written reports of every sport event of the day in the Sport Final.

To get all the news of the world of sport the day it happens — the Sport Final of the

POST-DISPATCH

. . . and for Sunday Baseball News—

The Post-Dispatch Sunday Sports Special

Even on Sunday during the baseball season, it is never necessary to be a day late in getting the day's baseball news. For the Post-Dispatch Sunday Sports Special is on sale right after the game every Sunday with the final scores of all games played that day, and the complete stories of what both St. Louis teams did.

In addition to this baseball news, the Sunday Sports Special brings you the latest news of the city, the nation and the world. And the price of this special Sunday edition is two cents, as usual.

REAPPORTIONMENT AND CENSUS BILLS WELDED INTO ONE

By Combining Them Advocates of Former Measure in Senate Think They Have Scored Victory.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Two bills on the program of President Hoover for the extra session—authorization of the 1930 census and reapportionment of House membership on the basis of that census—were combined today by the Senate Commerce Committee and reported to the Senate.

The consolidated bill, facing stiff opposition from those states which would lose representation in the House under the reapportionment, has been accorded second place on the calendar by Senate leaders. The farm relief measure, which comes up Monday, has first call.

Advocates of House reapportionment regarded the linking of that legislation with the bill for authorization of the 1930 census as a victory. They think Congress is certain to authorize the $39,000,000 for the regular decennial census stipulated by the Constitution.

National Origins Repeal.

Steps also were taken today on the Senate side of the Capitol to initiate the fifth and last part of the Hoover legislative program—repeal or suspension of the national origins provision of the immigration act. Farm relief and tariff revision, the other sections of the administration slate for this session, are nearing completion in committee.

Chairman Johnson of the Senate Immigration Committee called a meeting for Tuesday to consider the bills for repeal of the national origins provision, which goes into effect July 1. The provision drastically revises the immigration quotas for the various nations, allowing a large increase for Great Britain at the expense of Germany and the Scandinavian countries.

Senator Nye (Rep.) North Dakota, is preparing a bill for repeal of the national origins provision which would continue immigration restriction on the present basis of the 1890 census. Senator Reed (Rep.) Pennsylvania, who successfully blocked efforts last session for postponement of the operation of the provision, is rallying his forces to fight against repeal.

With a sharp division in the Republican majority ranks on this phase of the Hoover program, leaders are saying nothing about its place on the calendar. The immigration committee last session defeated Nye's resolution for postponement of the national origins provision, 7 to 4.

Census and Reapportionment.

The census bill reported by the Commerce Committee is that introduced Thursday by Chairman Jones, it provides for beginning the census next Nov. 1, rather than on May 1 as stipulated in the bill passed last session by the House.

The bill also includes provision for the taking of an unemployment survey in connection with the 1930 census. This proposition was indorsed by Secretary of Commerce Lamont.

Under the measure, the 1930 census would include population, agriculture, irrigation, drainage, distribution, unemployment and mines. The distribution phase would include a census of merchandising establishments and was recommended by Mr. Hoover when he was Secretary of Commerce.

The reapportionment bill reported by the committee is that introduced Thursday by Senator Vanderburg (Rep.) Michigan, and is the same in general scope as that passed last session by the House. It provides for keeping the House membership at its present figure—435. Some changes were made in the House bill, however, on the manner in arriving at the new membership.

PARTY POLICY TO BE SHAPED BY DEMOCRATIC SENATORS

New York Times Outlines Plan Favored at Meeting Called by Raskob.

NEW YORK, April 20.—A call to carry on the liberal political policies enunciated by the Democratic party in the last presidential campaign was sounded by speakers at the Jefferson day dinner at Hotel Commodore tonight, attended by Democratic leaders from all over the country.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, the party's presidential candidate in the last election, was not present, but his name figured prominently in the speeches in which he was extolled. The dinner celebrated the 186th anniversary of the birth of the founder of the Democratic party.

The New York Times tomorrow will say the policies of the Democratic party for at least the next three years probably will be determined by its spokesmen in the United States Senate.

It was the consensus of members of the Democratic National Committee who attended a conference at the apartment of National Chairman John J. Raskob last night that the debates in the Senate would furnish the Democratic Senators with a vehicle for the expression of their views and that these views would become the party policies.

TWO MORE CIRCUIT JUDGES NEEDED, SCHMOLL ASSERTS

Clerk Writes That Courts Are Running Behind at Rate of 2500 Cases a Year.

A letter asking for aid in the passage of a bill now before the Legislature which would give St. Louis two more Circuit Judges was addressed to Lieutenant-Governor Winter yesterday by Circuit Clerk John Schmoll, who stated that overcrowded dockets were causing serious delay in the handling of cases.

At their present rate, Schmoll pointed out, the courts were running behind at the rate of 2500 cases a year, and many cases were delayed so long that when they eventually were called for trial, important witnesses could not be found.

There are, at present, 16 Circuit Judges. Schmoll states the increase in expense necessary for the maintenance of two more judgeships would be only $8900 annually, since from the total of $20,400 which would be required for the salaries of Judges, stenographers and messengers would be subtracted $11,500 in fees.

The bill for more Judges is being opposed by Comptroller Nolte and Harry W. Blodgett, lobbyist for the city at the Capital. It has not been reported out of committee.

RIVERVIEW CLUB ANNOUNCES PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

Stock Company to Be Formed to Take Over Property Near Chain of Rocks.

A reorganization of the Riverview Club, located at 11050 Riverview drive near the Chain of Rocks, is being planned to free the organization of financial obligations, largely of many years' standing.

Representatives of the club plan to bid its property at a friendly foreclosure of second mortgage bonds on May 7. A stock company, with an authorized capital of about $150,000, will be formed to take over the club's property, including 136 acres of land and a three-story clubhouse. So far members have subscribed for about $33,000 of the stock. Indebtedness of about $25,000 will be paid off with part of the proceeds of the stock sale. Officers of the club said yesterday that its existence as a golf and social organization would not be interrupted and that its assets exceed its liabilities.

The club was formed in 1915 and an 18-hole golf course was opened in 1922. There are about 175 golfing members and 200 social members. Officers are George L. Zollman, president; Joseph A. Meisel, vice president; W. A. Meletio, treasurer; J. P. Fitzgerald, secretary. Among those who have been interested in the club are a number of Republican City politicians.

BOSTON WANTS MAN HELD IN ST. LOUIS IN CHECK DEALS

The Boston Police Department yesterday requested St. Louis police to hold Albert T. Clark, wanted in Boston for larceny in stock frauds and bond jumping, who was arrested here Friday while attempting to have 2000 blank bank cashier checks printed.

When taken into custody Clark, who at first gave his name as Charles Henry Hamilton, 50 years old, but later admitted he is Clark, known to police under many aliases, had in his possession corporation stocks and bank checks in excess of $1,000,000, but of no known value. He denied ownership of the "securities" and checks, explaining they were given to him for safekeeping by a man with whom he came to St. Louis.

The "securities" were stock of the Union Oil Co., Poudre Canyon Park Association of Colorado, bonds of the Rock Island Railroad and checks of banks in Farrell, Pa., Dodge City, Kan., and Lima, Mo.

OSCAR LEONARD TO JEWISH WELFARE POST AT CAPITAL

Named Executive Director of Federation Comprising All Activities in Washington, D. C.

Oscar Leonard of St. Louis has been chosen executive director of the Federation of Jewish Welfare of Washington. The Washington federation comprises all Jewish welfare activities in the District of Columbia.

Leonard has been connected with Jewish charitable enterprises in this city for 10 years. His most recent work has been with the B'Nai B'Rith Wider Scope Committee. While here he has lectured on social problems before the School of Social Economy of Washington University, and before sociology classes at the University of Missouri. He was one of the organizers of the Central Council of Social Agencies in St. Louis and was appointed a member of the Children's Code Commission by former Gov. Gardner.

HEAD OF SOVIET BANK OUSTED

Aaron C. Scheinmann Dismissed From Three Government Posts.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 20.—Aaron L. Scheinmann today was dismissed from his posts of member of the Council for Labor Defense, Under-Commisar of Finance in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and chairman of the State Bank. M. Piatakov was appointed his successor as chairman of the bank.

Scheinmann and his wife arrived in New York Jan. 10 for the announced purpose of interesting American motor car manufacturers in establishing factories in Russia. He also said that he was seeking advice concerning building of a projected subway in Moscow. After a visit in New York, he planned to tour other chief cities of the United States.

LIFE-LIKE PICTURES BY NEW TELEVISION

Improvement in Photoelectric Cell Records Light Waves More Effectively.

BY WATSON DAVIS,
Managing Editor, Science Service.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Photoelectric cells, or "electric eyes," that see colors with proper appreciation and thus make possible more lifelike television, soon will enter the service of communication as the result of theoretical scientific work in the Bell Telephone laboratories, presented to the American Physical Society meeting here.

When the early photographers first used the cumbersome cameras of early days, their plates and films were sensitive largely to the blue and the invisible ultraviolet radiatron. Reds did not record in proper light values and photographs had a strange unnatural appearance. Then, in more recent years, photographic chemists learned how to make emulsions that were about as sensitive to reddish light as the human eye, and now even the amateur can buy panchromatic plates and films at any photo goods store.

So far the photographic plate of television, the photoelectric cell, has been in the stage of development that corresponds to the early photographic plate. It was not so sensitive to the reds as to the violets and blues. But the physicists here heard Dr. A. R. Olpin, Bell physicist, tell how he had sensitized potassium and sodium in the photoelectric cells, so that these thin metal films gave off a current of electricity when long wave lengths of light fell upon them.

Extends Range of Tubes.

Taking a hint from the experiences of the photographic chemists, he found that certain dyes that made films more sensitive also helped the light sensitive tubes to extend their ranges. Just an extremely minute amount of the dye as a vapor, or even minute traces of sulphur vapor, water and benzine, also did the trick.

The photoelectric cell has become a little god in the practical application of physics. It is the heart of radiovision, television, talking motion pictures, it switches light on when the sun sets and opens a garage door when the auto lights flash upon it. Whenever light fluctuations are to be transformed into variations of electricity, it is ready to serve. One might mistake one of these magic lamps of modern science for a radio tube or a queer sort of silvery, electric lamp.

Faces Look More Natural.

Now that the photoelectric cell has become color conscious, the imagination always in advance of accomplishment, can see the first step toward color television. More immediately, because the new tubes are so much more sensitive, it will make possible the sending by radio and over telephone wires the image of objects merely illuminated by ordinary daylight, Dr. Herbert E. Ives, director of the Bell laboratories, explained. Faces seen over telephone wires will take on a more natural appearance through the use of the new cells.

A loud speaker of great fidelity of tone that receives its impulses from the electrical excitation of Rochelle salt crystals, a substance well known in old-fashioned medicine, was exhibited to the physicists by Dr. C. B. Sawyer and Dr. C. H. Tower of the Brush laboratories, Cleveland. This substance and others like it have the ability of producing electrical current when strained and, when the voice is reversed, as it is in the new loud speaker, the current produces movement. Such crystals on account of these abilities are called Piezoelectric, and some single crystals of Rochelle salt a foot and a half long were made in the experimentation that produced the new loud speaker.

BOASTS WHEN DRINKING CAUSE ARREST FOR ASSAULT TO KILL

Porter Charged With Fracturing Woman's Skull Then Robbing Her House.

A warrant charging assault to kill was issued at Clayton yesterday against Dick Edwards, 59 years old, a Negro porter, of 6131 Spencer place, Wellston, who has been identified as the burglar who beat Mrs. Mary J. Harris, 52, of 5453 Oakdale avenue, Pine Lawn, in the basement of her home, March 25.

Edwards was arrested Friday at his home after another Negro had reported that he heard Edwards when drunk boasting of the crime. Edwards was identified by a neighbor of Mrs. Harris who saw the burglar leave her home. He denies the charge.

Mrs. Harris was struck down from behind and did not see her assailant. Her skull was fractured. A small amount of jewelry and money was stolen.

NEW AIRPORT FOR CHICAGO

Curtiss Enterprise to Include Flying University.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 20.—A new $1,000,000 airport, providing for an operating base for a flying university and all branches of private and commercial aviation, will be constructed here by the Curtiss flying service, it was announced today.

The Chicago field, the announcement said, will occupy a key position in the national chain of 23 airports established throughout the country by the Curtiss organization. Construction will be started immediately on a 430-acre tract near Suburban Glenview.

POWER MERGER PERMITTED BUT CAPITALIZATION IS CUT

State Commission Allows Missouri Public Service Co. to Buy Windsor, Mo., Plant.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 20.—Purchase of all of the capital stock of the Windsor Light and Power Co. of Windsor, Mo., by the Missouri Public Service Co. for $80,000 was authorized today by the Public Service Commission, but the purchasing company will be permitted to capitalize only $50,344 of this amount as the valuation of the Windsor property, for rate-making purposes.

Outstanding stock of the Windsor Light and Power Co. has a par value of $10,800, but the purchase price was $80,000, subject to approval by the commission. The commission found the value of the Windsor property to be $50,344.

Representatives of the Missouri Public Utilities Co. informed the commission that the company was willing to pay the large price to obtain the Windsor property, for development purposes, as the Missouri Public Utilities owns an electric generating plant at Clinton and operates transmission lines to Windsor and in that vicinity. The Windsor company has been buying current from the Clinton plant.

REPORTS TELEVISION AT NIGHT PERFECTED FOR BRITISH ARMY

London Paper Tells of Demonstration of New Defense Device Before Statesmen.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, April 20.—The Sunday Express tomorrow will say that through developments in the twin sciences of television and noctovision, Great Britain soon will be completely protected from air attacks. Experts of the defense services, it is reported, think experiments would evolve a system by which images of enemy craft bound for the British coasts would be reflected on small illuminated screens in a score of outposts, giving defending aircraft time to counter-attack.

"Within the last few weeks," the article reads, "highly confidential demonstrations of television and noctovision have been given to statesmen, soldiers, sailors and airmen, and among those who have expressed surprise and wonder at its possibilities for defense purposes are Lord Allenby, Lord Arnold, Admiral Sir Mark Kerr, Sir Thomas Inskip, Sir Herbert Samuel and Ramsay MacDonald."

NETHERLANDS MINISTER TO U. S. VISITS IN ST. LOUIS

Dr. John Herman Van Royen, Netherlands Minister to the United States, visited St. Louis yesterday after having spent a month in Southern and Western States to acquaint himself with various Dutch Consuls in his jurisdiction. He left last night for New York.

He spent yesterday morning with Harry ter Braak, Dutch Consul in St. Louis. In the afternoon he made a tour of the city. As are other foreign visitors, he was impressed with the city's "magnificent distances."

WAGE DEMAND COMPROMISED

Union Roofers' Helpers Accept Increase of 5 Cents.

A wage increase of 5 cents an hour, to 80 cents an hour, has been granted the 50 union slate and tile roofers' helpers working in St. Louis, it was announced yesterday.

The men demanded an increase of 25 cents an hour, but reported the compromise to the Building Trades Council.

GRAINS CLOSE DOWN IN WEEK-END TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, April 20.—Rain in the winter wheat country and lack of European demand for North American wheat carried prices down on the local market day. The wet weather sent corn up for time, but this grain later joined wheat in downturn.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1c and 2c lower, touching new low prices for the crop season. The lower levels and reduced premiums brought out a little more demand. Although only the brighter kinds free of damage were wanted, offerings cleaned up finally. Sales of No. 2 red were made on a basis 7½c to 11c over the Chicago May price. There was no demand for Western varieties or damaged No. 3 wheat. Hard wheat was in light supply. Prices were steady to 1c up and premiums advanced, with No. 2 hard going at 1c to 3c above the Chicago May figure. Low protein blending types were in demand. Corn was unchanged to ½c lower. Liquidation of future contracts and heavier supplies precipitated the decline. Mills, industries, shippers and elevators took hold moderately on the break. Oats were steady to 1c lower. There was a better demand at the lower prices.

Opening unchanged to a fraction higher, corn was generally fractionally net higher early.

Wheat began about unchanged to a little off, July wheat later selling on both sides of the previous close. Liverpool wheat closed 4d higher on May, 5d on July and 5d on October. Winnipeg after opening was ¼c up.

May wheat opened at $1.19, July wheat, $1.18⅝, September wheat $1.21¼; May corn 93c and July corn 90½c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 71,400 bushels, compared with 51,800 a week ago and 100,800 a year ago, included 37 cars local and 14 through; corn receipts, which were 77,000 bushels, compared with 91,000 a week ago and 77,000 a year ago, included 47 cars local and 8 through; oats receipts, which were 127,600 bushels, compared with 143,000 a week ago and 52,000 a year ago, included 48 cars local and 10 through. Hay receipts, were 30 cars local and 2 through.

NEW LOWS FOR SEASON IN WHEAT AT CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 20.—Wheat prices lurched heavily downward today, and went under any level heretofore reached this season. Widespread rains in domestic winter wheat territory, giving promise of a big yield, were largely responsible, together with rumor of dissension in the Canadian growers' pool and with dearth of European call for shipments from North America.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 2c to 1¾c net lower. Corn finished 2c to 1¾c down, and oats 1c to 2c off. Sharp provision declines at setbacks varying from a shade to 1c.

Lowest prices for the day and for the season as well, were reached in the last few minutes of wheat trading. From the outset, however, the market was affected by reports of heavy rains promoting wheat growth, especially in Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska. Later the downward course of the market was accelerated by rumor that internal difficulties in the Canadian producers' organization had become apparent. A good deal of attention was also drawn to publicity about disagreements of United States agricultural bodies concerning farm relief measures, and the market effect was all more or less toward directing prices downward.

Under such circumstances, but little notice was taken of comment that new crop conditions in Europe are continuing to improve, and that spring seeding abroad has become seriously backward owing to prevalent low temperatures. For at least the time being, it was of vain avail to trade friends of higher prices contended farm relief machinery would be in operation by July 1, when domestic crop started to move. The week ended with all deliveries of wheat near to the lowest figures yet reached on the present decline.

Selling of wheat into store here today was taken as significant of lack of general demand. In this connection it was pointed out that today's buying of future deliveries appeared to be largely restricted to persons selling on the theory a position to collect a profit. Latest figures on the world's visible supply for wheat and flour in all positions were given as totaling 420,900,000 bushels, compared with 382,230,000 bushels at the corresponding time last year.

Corn and oats today finally paralleled the course of wheat, but the feed grains held better than wheat did. All deliveries of rye sold at a new low-price record for the season. Moist weather hampering field work and tending to delay final shipments of corn helped for a time to give relative strength to the corn market, and so likewise did reports that corn planting in South Africa had been interfered with by drouth.

Despite firmness of hog values, the provisions market today was slightly easier influenced by weakness of grain.

GOOD WEATHER, EASY CABLE SEND COTTON PRICES DOWN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—A continuance of good weather in the South and relatively easy Liverpool cables seemed chiefly responsible for further declines in cotton here today. July contracts sold off to 19.22 cents and closed at that figure, while May broke below the 20-cent level, closing at 19.90 cents. The general market closed easy at net declines of 22 to 29 points.

Cotton opened with a fair quantity of six to nine points in response to the lower Liverpool cables. These soon considerable week-end covering and trade buying of near months, but it was rapidly supplied and after irregularity during the middle of the morning prices weakened in the late trading. Near month liquidation continued, and there was selling in the later months on a more favorable weather map than expected by recent buyers. Trade interest continued to buy May on a scale down but closing prices were the lowest of the day on most positions, with new October contracts selling at 19.29 cents. At the close May contracts were selling 17 points over July, or at the same difference as at the close of the previous day, and 33 points over December, compared with a difference of 50 points yesterday.

The decline was accompanied by some further bearish comment on the situation as to preparations, which some traders evidently regarded as likely to have an unsettling effect on conditions abroad, but the factors most generally mentioned in connection with the weather. The latter doubtless accounted for the relatively easy ruling of the later months.

Private cable reported a renewal of local and foreign liquidation in the Liverpool market, influenced by the reports of favorable weather in the South but said the decline there had been checked by trade calling. According to these advices, Manchester reported only a small business in cotton cloths, with buyers cautious.

The weekly reviews of the domestic goods markets attracted no particular comment. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 109,000 bales against 102,000 last year.

Cotton Spinning Activity.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The census bureau report on cotton spinning activity for March today showed a total of 8,909,996,259 active spinning hours or an average of 252 per spindle in place compared with 8,221,265,059 or an average of 233 hours per spindle in place for February this year.

Spindle spindles in place March 1 totaled 35,300,908 of which 31,102,008 were operated sometime during the month compared with 31,007,926 for February and 31,322,8[illegible] for March, 1928.

The average number of spindles operated during March was 28,591,460 or at 100.3 per cent capacity on a single shift basis compared with 110.7 per cent for February and 96.8 per cent for March last year.

Liverpool Cotton Lower.

LIVERPOOL, April 20.—Cotton: spot in limited demand; prices lower. GREEN PEAS—Express shipments Mississippi ⅝-bu hampers telephone peas $4.50 and 75 hampers $2 delivered, 50 bu hampers $2.50, Imperial were steady on a supply of six to nine points in response to the lower Liverpool cables. These soon considerable week-end covering and trade buying of near months, but it was rapidly supplied and after irregularity during the middle of the morning prices weakened in the late trading. Near month liquidation continued, and there was selling in the later months on a more favorable weather map than expected by recent buyers. Trade interest continued to buy May on a scale down but closing prices were the lowest of the day on most positions, with new October contracts selling at 19.29 cents. At the close May contracts were selling 17 points over July, or at the same difference as at the close of the previous day, and 33 points over December, compared with a difference of 50 points yesterday.

The decline was accompanied by some further bearish comment on the situation as to preparations, which some traders evidently regarded as likely to have an unsettling effect on conditions abroad, but the factors most generally mentioned in connection with the weather. The latter doubtless accounted for the relatively easy ruling of the later months.

Private cable reported a renewal of local and foreign liquidation in the Liverpool market, influenced by the reports of favorable weather in the South but said the decline there had been checked by trade calling. According to these advices, Manchester reported only a small business in cotton cloths, with buyers cautious.

The weekly reviews of the domestic goods markets attracted no particular comment. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 109,000 bales against 102,000 last year.

Cotton Spinning Activity.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The census bureau report on cotton spinning activity for March today showed a total of 8,909,996,259 active spinning hours or an average of 252 per spindle in place compared with 8,221,265,059 or an average of 233 hours per spindle in place for February this year.

21-POINT RISE IN LOCAL STOCK DURING WEEK

National Bearing Metals Reaches 99 3-4 — Low on Listing Day April 12, Was 77—Shoe Turnover Is Large.

National Bearing Metals common stock with an upward range of 21¼ points to top of 99¾ was the individual feature of trading on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week though International Shoe with turnover of over 6100 shares, about a third of the week's aggregate business, was the leader in trade. Sales of National Bearing Metals amounted to 597 shares. The stock was listed April 12, the low on opening day being 77.

The shoe stock was up in the early part of the week, sold down to 63 in midweek and again turned upward. Wagner Electric closed a shade lower after selling between 44 and 45. Mahoney-Ryan gained a little net after selling between 19½ and 21¾.

Consolidated Lead recorded advance, more than 1100 shares changing hands between 11¾ and 13¾.

Coca Cola Bottling Securities Corporation was another stock showing a wide upward swing. Opening at 43½, it reached 48 late in the week.

Brown Shoe advanced more than three points. National Candy closed unchanged. Scullin Steel was off.

At Saturday's session Mahoney-Ryan, Stix Baer & Fuller, and Moloney Electric closed higher, while Wagner Electric, and International Shoe closed down slightly. Ely-Walker was unchanged, a 500-share lot being included in transactions. National Bearing Metals was unchanged from previous day.

Local Business and Financial Items

William T. Hicks, president-treasurer of the Sefton National Fiber Can Co. and associates have purchased the stock interest in the company held by John H. and Henry W. Kuechenmeister.

The transaction places the control of the company with Hicks and his associates and the Sefton Manufacturing Co. of Chicago. The Sefton company purchased the St. Louis Paper Can & Tube Co. from the Kuechenmeisters, in 1927.

The Kuechenmeister brothers held 1488 shares of preferred stock and 300 shares of common, representing about 35 per cent of the stock of the company. The transaction was for cash, the amount of the purchase price being withheld.

Industrial and Financial Briefs

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20. — Erie Railroad's net income of $4,987,782 for the first quarter is equal after preferred dividend requirements to 99 cents on the common. In the same period last year earnings were $2,978,847, or 78 cents a share on the first preferred.

Stockholders of International Combustion Engineering Corporation are to vote on a plan to increase the authorized common stock to 1,150,000 shares from 1,100,000.

Union Trust Co. of Cleveland reports that no saturation point is yet visible in the radio industry, although the number of receiving sets averages more than one to every three families in the country. Last year's export record of $12,000,000, the report says, leaves the world market virtually untouched.

Melville Shoe Corporation's sales increased 34 per cent in the first quarter over the same 1928 period, reaching a total of $5,725,584.

CORPORATION REPORTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Kennecott Copper earned $10.03 a share in 1928 on 4,552,036 shares of old stock before the two-for-one split-up. Earnings in 1927 were $6.23 a share.

Lehigh Valley Coal Corporation's net profit for the first quarter was $468,328, against $99,326 in the corresponding period of 1928.

Colorado Fuel and Iron's first quarter report shows profit of $918,677 before Federal taxes, compared with $522,250 a year ago.

Acme Steel earnings in the first quarter were equal to $2.87 a share, against $1.67 in the same period of 1928.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Cotton goods were quiet and steady today. Interest in print cloths declined, but slightly more business was done in sheetings. Several centers oversold production during the week for the first time this month.

Woolen cables were unchanged on dress goods, but firm and quiet. Spot silk closed firm and quiet with lesser week's volume of business due to higher prices. Futures were quiet.

TIME MONEY DOWN, STOCKS GAIN SLOWLY

Sentiment Improves With Advent of Stabilized Money Conditions, but Trading Still Is Listless.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Time money rates turned definitely downward this week from a stress peak that except for the 1907 panic had not been reached in 40 years but this indication of easement did not induce any broad advance in stocks. Sentiment has been improved with the advent of stabilized money conditions but trading still is listless. The turn in money brought rising stock prices once more, but instead of a sweeping movement forward the advance has been one of inches. It begins to appear that the admonitions of the Federal Reserve Board against rampant speculation have sunk deep of American investors, many of whom were hit in the last month's market break. No longer does anybody doubt the efficacy of reserve warnings and however much some investors may disagree with central bank policies they are not nowadays expressing defiance through increased purchases of stock on margin. Perhaps the most encouraging aspect of the market is that it, for the time, at least, has been severely abandoned by the public thus giving the reserve an opportunity to work out the necessary adjustments in credit gradually rather than through the adoption of drastic measures.

Credit Position Improved.

"Whether the reserve has accomplished all it intended is not a question that can be answered since no specific reduction was in the minds of the central bank officials when they issued their edict early in February. That the credit position has been substantially improved in the last two months is nevertheless plain on an appraisal of the reserve items now and on February 6. Brokers loans by New Yorw member banks for their "own" and for their "out of town" correspondent banks have been reduced since then by $503,000,000, reflecting a noteworthy effort of the system to reduce the only items directly under reserve control. Since this substantial reduction has been partly offset by an increased flow of funds from "others" the net reduction in brokers' loans since February 6 has been but $244,000,000. If we consider only the last four weeks of declining brokers' loans we get a total reduction of $368,000,000 which incidentally compares with a $303,000,000 reduction in December and a $404,000,000 reduction last June. But since many speculators have shifted their stock accounts from brokerage houses to banks the shift in brokers' loans provides no accurate measure of what the reserve has achieved in the last two months.

Reduction in Loans on Securities.

"Up to a fornight ago member bank loans on securities, which is really the item that concerns the Reserve authorities, had fallen but little although a substantial cut had been shown in brokers loans. Now it appears that the change in brokers loans reflects more than a shift in accounts from brokerage houses to banks. Since Feb. 6 member bank loans on securities have been reduced by $173,000,000 and a further reduction in the New York figures indicates that the system's statement on Monday afternoon may reveal that the reduction has been nearer $200,000,000. What this indicates is that liquidation in the present adjustment period has compared favorably with that in December when member bank loans on securities fell only $154,000,000 before they started up again and with June when the system's loans fell $218,000,000 before the upward trend was resumed. It will be interesting to see whether member loans in this instance remain around present levels, decline further, or follow precedent established after these two earlier periods of stock market liquidation.

Precedent Not Followed.

"At least there is no present disposition apparently on the part of the public to enter the market on a broad scale as it has done after similar setbacks in the Coolidge bull market. After declining $184,000,000 between Dec. 5 and Dec. 19, member bank loans in the next week jumped $110,000,000, and after a $218,000,000 reduction between May 29 and June 29 members loans in the next week jumped $249,000,000 — increases that in one week virtually offset the declines of several previous weeks. While liquidation in the security markets has tended to ease money, further influences in that direction have been provided through the approach of the seasonal peak in commercial demands for funds and through the addition of $85,000,000 in net gold stocks since the beginning of this year. While this accretion of metal has not provided a base for further expansion in credit which has helped the banks to hold down their discounts at the reserve that otherwise would have risen more sharply than they have as a result of the continued reduction in bill holdings by the system.

SHARES SOLD NEW YORK, April 20.— Total sales for the week on the New York Stock Exchange amounted to 19,993,500 shares, compared with 19,501,500 last week. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 351,165,900 shares, compared with 249,944,000 a year ago and 171,087,000 two years ago.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Bulls again staged a demonstration on the stock market in today's abbreviated session, but with the Federal Reserve advisory council's unexpected meeting in Washington and the critical stage reached by the reparations conference, they were unable to attract a following.

Prices worked irregularly higher, as week-end liquidation was readily absorbed, but total sales aggregated only 1,292,310 shares. The credit situation was regarded more optimistically, with the recent ease in time money, and bankers looked for fairly comfortable conditions next week. New York banks, however, extended their borrowings at the reserve to meet the mid-month requirements, and are expected further to reduce their loans in the market as a result.

Reserve Council Meets.

Latest advices from Washington were to the effect that the reserve council met to review the progress made in correcting the top heavy credit situation. With the reserve authorities apparently still working to reduce speculative credit, and the whole situation likely to receive an airing in Congress, brokers look for little more than a trading market for some time.

The day's business was largely affected the automobile industry. The Department of Commerce reported a new high record output of 584,733 machines in March, which caused some uneasiness over the possibility of over-production. This uneasiness was not entirely dissipated as a market influence by the record earnings reported by Hudson for the first quarter, and the statement of the management that dealers stocks were below normal. President Sloan of General Motors, returning from Europe, said he looked for his company's earnings to compare favorably with last year's.

Telephone Stock to New High.

American Telephone and Bethlehem Steel were again sent up to new high prices, the latter in anticipation of the first quarter earnings report next week. Bohn Aluminum and Foundation Co. also reached new high ground. Automotive Equipment were sent soaring in buying expectation of high earnings from the record automobile output. Sparks Withington jumped more than 14 points to a new peak, and Borg Warner sold up over 5.

Merchandising shares were also in demand, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, Childs, and Frank G. Shattuck making substantial gains. Some of the amusement shares were again well bought. Keith Albee preferred jumping 5 points on reports of expansion plans, Stanley Co. rising following the minority exchange offer by Warner Brothers, and Warner Brothers jumping about 6 points. International Telephone and United Aircraft were in good demand.

Motors Turn Heavy.

Motors turned heavy, Graham Paige dropping 3 points to 33, a new low for the year. Chrysler, Hupp, Marmon and General Motors sagged, Hudson and Packard were steady. Crex Carpet continued downhill, touching 26⅛, in contrast to its recent peak of 57⅝. Wright Aero lost 2 points, and Midland Steel Products preferred made an extreme loss of 17.

The commodity markets were generally dull. Cotton dropped about $1 a bale in selling resulting from a better weather map than expected. Grains sagged a cent or so a bushel, but met support at the low levels and rallied.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, as traders awaited the turn of affairs at the reparations conference Monday. The German mark sagged slightly to 23.68c. The Spanish peseta touched a new low for the year at 14.68 cents. Sterling was steady, with cables at $4.85⅛.

HUDSON MOTOR QUARTER BEST IN COMPANY HISTORY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Hudson Motor Car Co.'s earnings of $4,547,783 in the three months ended March 31, equal to $2.86 on the common, gave the company the best quarter in its history, it was announced today. Net income compared with $4,207,373, or $2.63 a share, in the same quarter of last year.

"Not only were our earnings for January, February and March the largest first quarter total we ever have known," said President McAneeny, "but our present sales situation and our prospects for the year are correspondingly favorable. Since the middle of February our plants have been operating at their top capacity of 1900 cars a day, and yet a survey of stocks of cars in the hands of distributors and dealers shows that the number is below normal.

"Because of our strong situation and increasing spring demand we feel conservative in expecting second quarter shipments of 120,000 to 125,000 cars, or more."

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Total transactions in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to $4,973,000; previous day's sales, $10,088,000; week ago, $4,669,000; year ago, closed. Total transactions from Jan. 1 to date were $794,437,000, compared with $1,063,589,000 a year ago and $1,209,354,000 two years ago

Quotations on all Liberty Bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar; that is, for instance, a sale printed $99.14 means $99 and 24 thirty-seconds of a dollar and not $99.24

The following is a complete list of transactions, giving sales, highest, lowest and closing prices. In sales, 000 omitted.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 20. —$5,000, John E. Macomber's Petee Wrac pearance, scored in a sensational finish in Philadelphai Handicap at a mile and one Petee Wrack, recognized as a strictly mud performer, surprised his most ardent admirers by landing the event which carried a value of $8225 to the winner. Driving hard to hold her position, and a nose back, came Audley Farm's Princess Tina, with Rancocas Stable's Mowlee third and Jock, owned by E. B. McLean, fourth. Sagamore Stable's Balko and Night Life, strong second choice, failed to show anything worth while, and they both finished away back. The time was 1:45 2-5.

S. O'Donnell rode the winner, on which there was a refund to $19.80 for $2.

The start was good and Jock rushed to the front and was joined by Princess Tina in the run around the first turn. They drew away from the rest of the field. The race was very fast, the six furlongs being run in 1:12 3-5. Jock held a head advantage over Princess Tina at the end of seven furlongs, but when the field straightened out for the run to the wire, Jock stopped and then Princess Tina drew clear. However, in the final sixteenth Petee Wrack began to close and in a hard drive got up to win by a nose.

Swatter, the favorite, scored a handy victory in the opening event. Swatter had to be hard ridden to get up, but at the end won going away. Good as Gold landed second money, while St. Prisca was third. The field was composed of 2-year-olds.

There was a lot of rough riding and just after the break, The Kid, well played second choice, was knocked out of contention and Martis was almost knocked down. Good as Gold rushed to the front, followed by Swatter and Mary Lucas. In the final furlong Swatter came fast under a drive and won going away, a length from Good as Gold, while St. Prisca was third. The winner was ridden by Sonny Workman and paid the short price of $5.10 for $2.

The first mile and one-quarter race of the meet was won in a drive by Resourceful with Kajaba second and Brahman third. The latter led for more than a mile then stopped. Resourceful slipped through on the inside and won by half a length. Kajaba beat Brahman a length for the place. E. Barnes was the successful rider.

Petee Wrack in pursuit of the leaders from the start and securing racing room on the inside, made a determined bid the last three furlongs and wore Princess Tina down steadily to get up in the closing strides. Princess Tina and Jock into defeat, gained a slight lead, but could not hold the winner. Mowlee reached the leaders at the half mark where he was sharply blocked, recovered gamely and outfinished Jock. Latter set a good pace for seven furlongs and began tiring slowly thereafter. Night Life was made too much use of forcing the pace. Balko showed a poor effort.

Wray's COLUMN

Not the Only Ones.

CONSIDERABLE grief and dismay was manifested in Brown circles by the scant attendance attracted to the games with the White Sox. According to several letters received by the Post-Dispatch, it reflected the unpopularity of the club.

The fact of the matter is that in Cincinnati, during a similar period, the league champion Cardinals drew few if any more fans after the opening shot.

Due to varying causes, about the only whole-hearted opening around the major circuits, was at Chicago, where 70,000 persons tried to shoe-horn into a capacity of 50,000. The three-time pennant winning Yankees could pull only 40,000, or thereabouts.

Stymied by the Yanks?

CONDITIONS were not ripe for enthusiasm in St. Louis, where the lowly Chicago club was the attraction offered. In addition, the weather and temperature were inauspicious and cold. More important still is the prevailing impression that the American League race is just another procession, with New York monopolizing first place.

Due to the runaway race by New York, American League finances and attendances suffered a sad blow for three-fourths of the campaign last year. That the Yankees won again has not helped the situation this year. Many believe the Yanks stymie all the other clubs.

But fans apparently have not appreciated the fact that Manager Howley has a lively aggregation that will prove a strong obstacle to the pretensions of both the Yankees or the Athletics, unless all indications go astray.

Mr. Kimsey Returns.

CHAD KIMSEY, realizing that opportunities to crack the "big time" are not to be obtained by minor leaguers for the asking, is soon to be back on the job at Sportsman's Park.

In other days young ball players did not haggle over the terms offered them, under such circumstances. All they wanted was the chance. Confident of their own prowess, all they sought was the opportunity to show it.

Today, apparently, rookies coming up want to contract for a big salary, as insurance against their own failure.

Ballplayers who graduate to the majors on low salaries, are not forgotten, if they come through, as a rule. If they make very good, they receive a bonus invariably.

In addition they lay the ground work for a real salary the following year.

In these days of covering up, players do not always find them-

This play occurred in the second inning and resulted in tieing the score. Kress singled. He went to third on Melillo's single and scored on Johnson's fumble.

SIMPSON SETS NEW WORLD MARK FOR 100 YARDS

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 20.—Ohio State's black-haired flyer, George Simpson, a junior at the university, broke the world's record for the 100-yard dash today and then tied the official standard for the 220-yard in a dual meet against Pittsburg which Ohio State won by 93½ points to 41½.

Simpson did 9.6s., equaling the world's record, in the Ohio relays here last year, but he never ran as he scampered today. He turned the century in 9.5s., one-tenth second faster than Dan Kelly, who first set the present record in 1906. Harry Drew, Charley Paddock, Cyril Coaffee of Canada and Chester Bowman of Newark have since tied that mark, but the international A. A. F. has declined to recognize any faster time as recorded by tenth-second watches, such as were used today.

Ohio State officials said they would ask for a new world record for Simpson, as there was no wind at the time the race was run. Flags atop the stadium drooped from their masts and smoke from the starter's gun floated straight up in the air. Three timers caught him alike.

Simpson's time in the 220-yard dash, 20.6s., equaled the official world record given to Roland Locke of Nebraska in 1926. Locke once ran the distance in 20.5, but the mark was not recognized.

Allison Defeats Hunter in Final

By the Associated Press.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 20.—Wilmer Allison of Fort Worth, Tex., sprang a sensational upset to win the Mason and Dixon invitation tennis singles championship today, defeating Francis T. Hunter of New Rochelle, N. Y., ranked No. 2 in the national list, in five hard fought sets. The scores were 6-4, 7-9, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

Tom Churchill, Oklahoma, Wins Decathlon Title

By the Associated Press.

MEMORIAL STADIUM, Lawrence, Kan., April 20.—Tom Churchill, Oklahoma University, successfully defended his Kansas relays decathlon title here today, winning from Wilson (Buster) Charles of Haskell, Indiana Institute. Churchill scored 7422.2846 points, Charles 7398.3973.

Churchill's winning point total for the 10 events was 38 points better than he made to win the event last year, but short of the world's record of 8053.290 made by Yrjola of Finland at the Olympic games in Amsterdam last summer.

Only by a herculean effort today was Churchill able to beat out the giant Oneida Indian from Haskell who established a big lead yesterday by winning all five events contested. The Indian fell down today, winning only one first, the 1500 meter race while Churchill was victorious in the discus and pole vault, second in the high hurdles, javelin and 1500 meters run.

Only six of the original field of nine completed the 10 events, Hess of Minnesota, Stockton of the University of New Mexico and Jess Joy of Drake dropping out before the finish. Hess and Stockton failed to complete in three events. Joy dropped out of the 1500 meters after starting.

HOW DECATHLON RIVALS FINISHED

The winner and runner-up placed in each event as follows:

Event.	Churchill	Charles
100 meters	Second	First
Broad jump	Third	First
Shot put	Fourth	First
High jump	Third	First
400 meters	Third	First
110-meter hurdles	Second	Fourth
Discus	First	Fourth
Pole vault	First	Fifth
Javeline	Second	Third
1500 meters	Second	First

The ranking of the finishers after the first two follow:

Vernon Kennedy, Warrensburg, Mo., Teachers, 6876.9947.

Wendell Smith, Occidental College, 6584.1553.

James Grant, Haskell, 6582.1372.

Nathaniel Peake, Haskell, 5356.-1436.

Stanford Swamps California in Dual Meet

By the Associated Press.

STANFORD STADIUM, Cal., April 20.—Winning all but four first places, Stanford University's powerful collection of track and field stars surged to a lopsided victory over the University of California in their annual big meet here today by a count of 94 2-3 to 36 1-3. Four meet records, those in the shot, discus, javelin and broad jump, went by the boards and a fifth, that in the 100-yard dash, was tied. Stanford, in scoring 94 2-3 points, also shattered the total score record of 91, set in 1893 by California.

Missouri Beats Nebraska, 1-0, In Ten Innings

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 20.—After holding the Missouri Tigers to two hits in nine innings, Pickett, Nebraska pitcher, threw his own ball game away here this afternoon with two errors in the tenth. The score was Missouri 1, Nebraska 0. The game gave the Tigers a sweep of the two-game series.

The Tiger score in the tenth came when Asbury, right fielder, singled, and Lewis, third baseman, reached first on Pickett's wild throw to first. McDowell, who ran for Asbury, crossed the plate with the only run when Pickett threw wild again, this time to the third baseman, in fielding Williams' grounder.

MITCHELL FACES CUBS TODAY; HANEY HELPS

By James M. Gould.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

CHICAGO, April 20. — Because of rain, wet grounds, cold, gloom and general incompatibility of weather, the Cardinals, rather keyed up by three victories in their four games at Cincinnati, were compelled to rest on their oars here today. It was so completely anti-Volstead, the champions would have needed said oars to reach the Cubs' park. Therefore, the Birds will have to wait until tomorrow for the somewhat doubtful pleasure of meeting Joe McCarthy's newly-assembled "murderers' row."

No change in the pitching program is planned, with Clarence Mitchell primed to take the first shot at Chicago's pennant-contenders and Guy Bush ready to oppose him. Alexander may pitch in this series and he may not. It all depends on how the first game goes, the state of the weather and other things. Sherdel and Haines, though, are almost certain starters, especially with the added day of rest given by today's rain. The postponed game will be played as part of a double-header June 19.

Figures Are Figures.

Some chance for a comparison between the attack of the Cardinals and Cubs is given by the records of the teams in their first series. In four games against the Reds, the champions scored 15 runs on 36 hits, an average of five runs and nine hits per game. In three games against the Pirates, the Cubs counted 27 runs on 38 hits—an average of nine runs and 13 hits per game. Figures being figures and having that clownish ability to twist into any one of several meanings, those given here are simply offered for what they are worth, which may well be nothing.

In their four games, the Cardinals have performed hopefully rather than brilliantly. As a matter of fact, they should have won all four games in Cincinnati. The game won by the Reds, the sec-

By J. Roy Stockton.

It was a dark and stormy afternoon. Clouds scurried overhead and the fans, nearly 9000 of them, were casting a weather eye at the weather and wondering if they would get home from Sportsman's Park without a wetting.

"It seems to me," said Stanley Harris, manager of the Detroit Tigers, "that I have tarried long enough with Stoner. Lil has worked hard, but what we want now is speed and lots of it. What a day for Vangilder. Ah! That's the ticket. I'll send Vangilder to face these Brownies now and he'll throw the ball past them with such speed that they will be dumbfounded, confounded and defeated. A wise move!"

That's what Bucky Harris did. But it wasn't such a wow of an idea after all. For Vangilder issued three bases on balls in the eighth inning, the Browns socked him for three hits and five runs. An error was thrown in for good measure and the sum and total of it all was that Elam Russell Vangilder had his name engrossed on the official record as losing pitcher and the Browns made off with the game, the first of the series, 9 to 4.

Gray's Second Victory.

It was Sam Gray's second victory of the season and while he was blasted pretty freely, he worked hard and deserved the verdict that the eighth-inning attack against the Cape Girardeau farmer boy gave him. Gray struck out six of the Tigers and gave ohly two bases on balls. He made two singles and his second hit drove in the run that put the Browns ahead in the eighth inning.

To help Sam score his second victory the Browns presented a errorless game in the field and played their usual smart baseball. Their defense was featured by a trick play that Oscar Melillo engineered to stop one Tiger rally.

The Brownie second-baser did his quick thinking in the fourth inning. With one out, Shea singled and Stoner beat out a bunt when Blue fell fielding the ball. Harry Rice hit a hot smash over second and Melillo, grabbing the ball, stepped on the bag. Rice is a pretty fast horse getting down to first base and it is doubtful if Melillo could have turned a double play. Moreover Stoner, running to second, was in the way of a throw. Melillo figured Shea would expect the attempt at a double play and overrun third. Without a moment of hesitation Oscar whipped the ball to O'Rourke and Shea did exactly what Melillo figured he would do and he was trapped off the bag and run down to end the inning. Gehringer, who had hit a triple and double in previous times at bat, was next at the plate and thanks to Melillo, Gray didn't have to pitch to him that frame.

Twice the Browns overcame a Detroit lead in the early innings. Gehringer's triple and McManus' single gave the enemy a run in the first frame, but the Browns tied it up in the second on singles by Kress and Melillo and a fumble by Left Fielder Johnson.

In the third, Rice singled and Gehringer doubled and both scored when Alexander rifled a single to center.

McGowan Hits in Two Pinches.

The Browns didn't waste much time tying the score. Blue led off in the third with a single, Manush doubled him to third and Schulte walked, filling the bases. Blue scored while Kress was forcing

TWO POLE VAULTERS BREAK MEET RECORD AT KANSAS RELAY GAMES

ILLINOIS MEN TAKE 4-MILE; ELDER WINS SPRINT EVENT

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., April 20.—Outstanding records went glimmering in the seventh annual University of Kansas relays here today, as an army of first-rate athletes from the Midwest saw their hopes buried in a rain-soaked cinder path. Only two meet records were broken.

Athletes from universities, colleges and high schools began competition on a field made soggy by heavy rains of Friday and finished the events in a downpour which left the track covered with water and sent spectators seeking shelter under the stadium. The rain was accompanied by a cold, chilling northwest wind.

The meet proper was initiated by the decathlon events, Tom Churchill, alround athlete from the University of Oklahoma and Olympic team member in 1928, successfully defending his relay championship, after Wilson (Buster) Charles, full-blooded Oneida Indian from Haskell Institute, Lawrence, had won six firsts. Charles led Churchill until the ninth event, when the Oklahoman went into a slight lead.

New Discus Mark.

Three athletes hold the two new meet records. Tom Warne of Northwestern, who holds the world's indoor record for the pole vault off a dirt floor, tied with Otterness of Minnesota for a new meet vault mark of 13 ft. 4¾ in., bettering the previous record of 13 ft. 2⅝ in., made by Earl McKown of the Emporia, Kansas, State Teachers College in 1925. Dan Beattie of the Colorado Aggies, hurled the discust 146 ft. 9½ in., besting the record of 141 ft. 9 in., established last year by Howel of Oklahoma, who also bettered his 1928 mark today in taking second place.

Beattie was the only individual to win two events. He also took the shotput with a heave of 47 ft. 7⅛ more than two feet shy of the meet meet mark established by Schwarze of Wisconsin in 1925.

Illinois Shows the Way.

The University of Illinois won three relays, the quarter mile, half mile and four-mile, but none of them in record time.

San Angelo, Tex., High School won two relays, the half mile and the mile. Punahou Academy, from Honolulu, placed in the two relays it entered, but did not win either. The team was second in the half-mile high school relay and fourth in the mile relay.

Despite the water-covered track, the University of Missouri mile relay quartet ran within 1.5 seconds of the meet record of 3m. 20s., set up by the University of Iowa in 1926.

Always a Good Act---If He Does It

Browns, With Sam Gray Pitching, Beat Tigers

Schulte and Manush counted on McGowan's single to center.

Kress doubled with two gone in the fifth and crossed the plate, putting the Browns one up, when McGowan singled to center.

Gray held this lead until the eighth, when Heilmann doubled to right center, took third on Alexander's sacrifice fly to Schulte and beat Blue's throw to the plate on McManus' grounder.

Thank You, Mr. Harris.

Then the Bucky Harris soliloquy and Elam Vangilder plodded from the bullpen to the hill. He walked McGowan to start the eighth, but Melillo forced Frank at second. Schang, however, waited and walked and Sam Gray, after looking bad on two wild swings at the ball, surprised everybody by punching Vangilder for a single to left. Melillo scored and when Johnson again fumbled, Schang went to third and Gray took second.

Blue was walked purposely, filling the bases, but O'Rourke scored Schang with a sacrifice fly to Johnson. Manush hit a long single to center, scoring Gray and Blue, and when Gehringer missed connections with Rice's throw in, Heine went to second. Blue was trying to score from first before the error and as it looked like he would have made it anyhow, Manush was credited with driving in the run that Blue carried. Schulte then cracked a single to left and Manush scored the fifth run of the inning.

Gray quickly disposed of the Tigers in the ninth, while the cash customers were making for the exits to avoid the rain.

"You can't always tell about darkness and Vangilder," Bucky Harris mused as he journeyed to his hotel.

Brownie Notes.

Alvin Crowder, who beat the White Sox, 5 to 3, in his first start of the season, will oppose the Tigers this afternoon in the second game of the series. Earl Whitehill, a southpaw, is due for the visitors.

E. S. Barnard, president of the American League, was a spectator at yesterday's game. He is making a tour of the cities in the circuit, and departed for Chicago last night. He said he had no explanation for the poor attendance at the Browns' games thus far, and was surprised, in view of the team's fine prospects.

Benny Meyers, who can make two men with megaphones sound like mutes, was on the coaching lines for the Tigers, which made the new press box much better than the old one.

Dan Howley reports his injured toe much improved. If it continues to heal, he will be able to put on a uniform by July 4.

Ladies' Day Tomorrow.

Tomorrow will be the first Ladies' day of the season. Johnnie Ogden is due to show his curves.

Heilmann fouled to Schang in the third, with Rice on third and Gehringer on second, and was so peeved that he swung his bat viciously at the plate and almost hit Sam Gray, who had run in to cover.

Lu Blue got his daily hit, a single, in the third inning. He also hit a sacrifice fly, drew a pass and scored two runs.

Heine Manush broke his hitting slump with a double in the third inning. And in the eighth his long single scored Gray from second and Blue from first.

"This is the first time Vangilder ever pitched the way I wanted him to," said Phil Ball, after the game.

While the fans were taking their seventh-inning stretch a flock of wild geese, in fine formation, flew over the ball park.

Kimsey Returning To Browns; Will Get Early Chance

CHAD KIMSEY, the big right-hander who won 22 games for Tulsa last year and who departed for Oklahoma last week after a disagreement over contract terms with the Browns, has reconsidered and is motoring back to St. Louis to rejoin Dan Howley's team. Business Manager Bill Friel made this announcement yesterday after receiving a telegram from the pitcher, who is expected today or tomorrow.

"I am glad Kimsey is coming back," Howley said. "He will help the Browns. I had planned to use him in one of the games against the White Sox and I will give him an early chance to pitch for us."

Friel said no new offer had been made to Kimsey, but that the young man probably realized after careful consideration that he would be passing up a great chance if he failed to sign with the Browns.

NEWTON, BUNION DERBY RUNNER, IS HIT BY AUTO

By the Associated Press.

MARSHALL, Ill., April 20.—Running a dead heat for second place today in the twenty-first lap, the three leaders in the transcontinental bunion Derby retained their respective positions as they trotted over the 33-mile stretch from Brazil, Ind., to Marshall.

Paul Simpson of Burlington, N. C., led the pack today, making the jaunt in 4:31:45, and strengthening his hold on sixth place.

Pete Gavuzzi of England, leader of the field; Ed Gardner, Seattle, Wash., Negro, who is in second place, and Johnny Salo, the New Jersey policeman, who is in third position, ended today's run tied for second place. Their time was 4:51:10.

Other leading entries finished the lap in this order: M. B. McNamara, Australia, third; Sam Richman, New York, fourth; Phillip Granville, Hamilton, Ont., fifth.

The Derby field was reduced to 29 today when Arthur Newton of Shodesia, South Africa, was struck by an automobile while jogging along. Newton, who had been ninth in total elapsed time, suffered a dislocated shoulder and was taken to a Terre Haute, Ind., hospital.

Today's lap ended the third week of running. The leaders in their elapsed time:

Pete Gavuzzi, England, 136:25: 12.

Ed Gardner, Seattle, 140:11:55.

John Salo, Passaic, N. J., 140: 35:47.

Tosses 75 Straight Baskets to Win World's Free Throw Contest

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 20.—With a perfect score of 75 straight baskets, Early Maxwell of the Memphis Tigers basketball team, broke the world's record to win the title in the senior men's division in the annual world free throw basketball tournament, scores for which were announced from headquarters here tonight.

Miss Ellen Baird, forward on the West Tennessee State Teachers' College team, also of Memphis, tossed 58 out of a possible 60 and retained her title in the senior girls' division. Miss Baird captured the title last year in a throw off with a perfect score of 60.

Six divisions were represented in the tournament, winners being named in both individual and team competition. More than 323,000 scores were entered, representing 46 states and numerous foreign countries.

In breaking the record, Maxwell who won in 1927, obtained two legs on the cup given in the senior men's division. It must be won three times to be retained permanently. Reginald Baker of Savannah, Ga., who won the title last year with a score of 73, dropped to 61 in the tourney this year.

Individual cups are given annually in all the other events.

The best team score was made in the junior girls' division by the high school of Tokio, Japan. Its score was 203 out of a possible 225.

Other winners were:

Senior Division (Team)—Y. M. C. A., Sioux City, Ia., 443 out of 525.

Senior Division (Team) — St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., 261 out of 300.

Intermediate Division (Boys) — Susumu Takao, Japanese "Y" San Francisco, Cal., 58 out of 60. (Team) Japanese "Y" San Francisco, 372 out of 420.

Intermediate Division (Girls)—Miss T. Hottori, Matsuyama, Japan, 45 out of 50. (Team) First High Girls' School, Nagoya, Japan, 189 out of 250.

Junior Division (Boys)—Martin Petrucka, Mahoney City, Pa., 42 out of 45. (Team) Mahoney City, Pa., High School, 261 out of 315.

Junior Division (Girls) — Miss M. Takagi, first High Girls' School, Tokio, 43 out of 45.

Allan Hall Wins Over Cochran in 3-Cushion Match

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Although beaten in both of today's blocks, Allan Hall of St. Louis conquered Welker Cochran of Hollywood, seven blocks to five, in their 12-block three-cushion billiard match at Dwyer's Academy. Hall also led in total points, 553 to 525.

Cochran took the afternoon block, 50 to 45 in 52 innings and the evening session, 50 to 36 in 31 innings. Each had a high run of five in the afternoon. Cochran's best tonight was a six, while Hall had one run of eight.

SENATORS LOSE TO RED SOX; SCORE 6-5

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Boston won its first game of the season today, defeating Washington, 6 to 5, in a ninth-inning rally.

Pinch hitter Standeart broke a tie in the ninth with two out, his double sending two runs across. Both of the starting pitchers, Sam Jones of Washington, and Russell for Boston, were relieved. The score:

SWEETLAND PITCHES PHILS TO 5-2 VICTORY; BISSONETTE INJURED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—Lester Sweetland curved the Phillies into their first victory of the National League season here today when he turned back the Robins by 5 to 2. Almost 12,000 fans braved the threatening weather and were treated to a fine exhibition by the Florida southpaw. Sweetland had one lapse into his customary wildness, but pulled out undamaged.

Del Bissonette appeared to be badly injured in the fifth when a fast ball struck him on the top of the head and bounced as high as the grand stand. He dropped as though pole-axed, and a doctor rushed to his aid. The infielder came around all right in a few minutes, but retired from the game.

BROWNS SEND GRIMES TO MILWAUKEE CLUB

Eddie Grimes, third baseman purchased last winter from the Wichita Falls club of the Texas League, has been released to the Milwaukee club of the American Association on option, Business Manager Bill Friel announced last night.

GRIMES WINS AGAIN; PIRATES DOWN REDS, 5-4

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., April 20.—A tendency of the Reds to throw the ball against the grandstand, their weak batting and the visitors' extra base hitting enabled Pittsburg to win the first game of the series 5 to 4 here today. Ford, best fielding shortstop in the National League last year, continued his erratic fielding of yesterday and committed two errors in the fifth inning which gave the Pirates two runs.

LONDOS AND CLINSTOCK MATCHED FOR RETURN BOUT ON APRIL 3

Jimmy Londos, Greek heavyweight wrestling champion, and Jim Clinstock, the Indian scissor specialist from Oklahoma, have been matched for a return bout as the main event of a New Coliseum mat program for Tuesday night, April 30, Promotor Tom Packs announced last night. They will wrestle to a finish of one fall.

Londos defeated the Indian heavyweight in their last encounter.

Clinstock has won three local engagements since his tussle with Londos, defeating Moose Norbeck of Canada, Joe "Toots" Mondt of Colorado and Paul Jones of California.

MASSACHUSETTS TECH BEATS NAVY FIRST TIME

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 20.—The Massachusetts Institute of Technology varsity crew won a victory over navy oarsmen today for the first time in the nine years the New England shells have been brought here to open the rowing season at the Naval Academy.

Better than three lengths separated the varsity boats in the dual contest at the finish of the Henley distance over the lower course on the Severn River. With a decided swell to the water and a quarter wind coming in on the bows the battle was waged in slow time, that for the Tech boat being 7 minutes, 35 seconds, while Navy was clocked at 7:46.

In the junior varsity race the Navy boat finished three lengths ahead, making the distance in 7 minutes, 55 seconds, to Tech's 8 minutes and 7 seconds.

MITCHELL DUE TO FACE CUBS TODAY IN FIRST SERIES

ond of the series, was so decided not by reason of the excellence of the Reds but because of the temporary collapse of Southworth's team. In that game, Sherdel was bad and his support worse, if possible. In the other three, however, the champions looked the part of contenders for the pennant. And the Reds, mark this down; they are on their way but, are not going anywhere. Good pitching, especially good defense and a negligible attack makes it look like a long, hot and cruel summer in Cincinnati.

Hane Looks Good.

Answers to some of the "ifs" the Cardinals presented when the season opened may be given. Not conclusively, perhaps, but with a percentage in favor of the answers being correct. First, as to Fred Haney, it is true that he has hit only .125 in the four games, but five of his non-hits were real wallops caught, unfortunately, by fast cruising Red outfielders. His two hits, in 16 chances, were for extra bases, one a double, one a triple. In the field Haney made one marvel that, with the general need for third basemen, he ever was waived out of either big league. Defensively, he has been perfect handling 13 chances, a dozen of which were assists, some of them very difficult. He is sureness itself in the field, and fast on the bases.

Queer Scoring.

WILSON CHARLES, another great Indian athlete, lost the Decathlon to Tom Churchill yesterday at Lawrence, Kan., although he finished first in five events of the 10, while Churchill won only two.

That is because the scoring system in the Decathlon is not based on position at the finish but on the mark achieved by each individual in its relation to the world's record for each event.

As the contest is designed to test the all-round merit of the competing athletes, the scoring idea employed seems proper. Under it, however, it is conceivable that an athlete might perform poorly in one event as to offset his successes in half a dozen others.

It is rather strange that the Indian strain has produced so many remarkable all-round athletes. Jim Thorpe was the first and most famous of all of them. Pete Elkins is another stand-out of Indian blood. Levi of Haskell was still another all-round star, and now comes Wilson Charles, who threatens even Thorpe's famous feats.

Considering the few Indians who have opportunity to develop along athletic lines, the number of those who have made good is little short of remarkable.

Better Than Bubbling Over.

REPORTS from Louisville have it that Trainer Thompson rates Blue Larkspur as better than Bubbling Over was in 1926. In that case there seems little to do but count the winnings.

But trainers' views are just as apt to be wrong as the next man's. It seems to be a fact, however, that the horse is in great shape, has trained splendidly and has sound feet.

It is also true that he will have the crafty and rejuvenated Mack Garner in the saddle, which completes a strong combination.

Earl Sande's Opportunity.

EARL SANDE'S recent victory with his own horse, Hermitage, has attracted the public's attention to that Derby and Preakness candidate's chances.

On the strength of his win, Hermitage's price now stands at 25 to 1, this horse having been backed from 500 to 1. Kearney laid one wager of $3500 against $5 against Hermitage's chances.

Hermitage is not an impressive horse on his record. He is by Friar Rock-Kathryn Harlan, by Magee. There is both speed and stamina in this breeding, but none of it showed in Hermitage's three starts as a 2-year-old when he ran seventeenth, ninth and eleventh.

If he should win for Sande it would be that jockey's third Kentucky Derby victory, he having piloted Zev and Flying Ebony home first in past years.

It would also be the first time at least in modern history of the race, that a horse ridden, trained and owned by the same man proved successful.

Tourney Conditions New.

Picking a local boxer who is likely to go the farthest in the tournament is impossible, for, as Probst pointed out yesterday, much depends on the caliber of the opposition. For instance, a boxer rated only fair may draw several weak opponents in a row, or he may advance on byes, while a strong entry may have to meet the best man in his division in his first bout.

"One factor that will work against the success of the local boys," said Probst, "is that they are not used to the grind of a national tournament, where each may have to fight two or three times in one evening. In the regular amateur shows here the boys get only one bout in an evening. We have tried to point out to the heads of amateur clubs the wisdom of conducting tournaments on the elimination plan, in order that their boys may become hardened to more than one bout in an evening, but without success. Also, in an elimination tournament, every boy who files an entry and who is physically fit, gets into a bout, while under the present method here, perhaps 40 boys will file entries and will be eager to box, but only about 20 can be used on the card.

Members of the district team will weigh in Tuesday afternoon at the stadium preceding the first-round bouts. Drawings in the first round also will be made at that time.

Joe Herbst Sr., a veteran in local amateur circles, will be in charge of the local squad.

If you have the slightest symptoms of Diabetes—such as excessive thirst, inordinate hunger, with loss of weight in spite of keen appetite, with nervousness, irritability, restlessness, anxiety over trifles and loss of strength—lose no time in reading one of the most remarkable books of the day, "Is Diabetes Curable?"

It will be mailed free to anyone who will send merely name and address to Sanborn Laboratories, 1600 Sanborn Building, Battle Creek, Michigan. It describes the Sanborn home treatment and relates the experience of men and women of national prominence who restored themselves to perfect health after other treatments had failed.

The book has 64 pages bound in board covers and is a mine of authentic information for those who are suffering from Diabetes.

FIVE LOCAL BOXERS DEPART TOMORROW FOR NATIONAL A. A. U. MEET

OPENING BOUTS IN CHICAGO RING TUESDAY; EIGHT CHANGES IN TEAM

Western A. A. U. Entries in U. S. Boxing Tourney

John Schwake, heavyweight, St. Louis.
William Wheagley, welterweight, Oklahoma.
Ralph Uptergrafe, lightweight, Oklahoma.
Edgar Terry, featherweight, St. Louis.

By Damon Kerby.

The five St. Louis members of the Western A. A. U. boxing team will depart tomorrow for Chicago, where they will compete in the National A. A. U. junior boxing tournament scheduled Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in Chicago's new million-dollar sports stadium. The St. Louis boys on the team are John Schwake, Edgar Terry, Joe Herbst Jr., Gilbert Terry and Woodrow Williams.

The exception is Jack Wilson, 126-pound champion, who turned professional last week.

The district squad lost a strong entry in Wilson, who was considered to have a good chance to advance to the final round, but gained a valuable addition in Madero Villarreal of Oklahoma, who defeated several good boys in the Olympic tryouts at Boston last year. Villarreal is considered the best of the Oklahoma boxers on the squad.

Two good little scrappers from St. Louis will get a chance to seek national honors through the altered lineup, in Woodrow Williams and Joe Herbst Jr. Williams went to the final in the flyweight division of the district tournament and lost to "Peewee" Terry on a decision that was extremely close. Joe Herbst was eliminated in a semi-final bout in the 118-pound class.

Tourney Conditions New.

Picking a local boxer who is likely to go the farthest in the tournament is impossible, for, as Probst pointed out yesterday, much depends on the caliber of the opposition. For instance, a boxer rated only fair may draw several weak opponents in a row, or he may advance on byes, while a strong entry may have to meet the best man in his division in his first bout.

Syl Simon, Former Brown, Without Three Fingers on Left Hand, Star in Minors

This is a story of conquest. The story of a man who refused to yield in the face of tremendous odds. It's a striking example of what one can do when the "will to do" is there; what sheer grit and determination can accomplish. It's an inspiration to anyone in any walk of life.

IN THE fall of 1926, word was broadcast that Sylvester Simon, of Evansville, and one of the most promising baseball players in the land, had played his last game. He had just lost the three most useful fingers on his left hand and part of the palm in an accident in an Evansville (Ind.) furniture factory.

With only the thumb, part of the palm, and the little digit remaining on the left hand, the word "finis" was written after Syl's name by baseball men. The late Otto Borchert, then president and owner of the Milwaukee Brewers for whom Syl had handled third base expertly during the 1926 season, wrote a letter of condolence to Simon, enclosed a $100 check and a release.

No one expected the Evansville boy to play ball again. "'Tis too bad," they said. "A brilliant career nipped in the bud."

Upsets the Critics.

BUT they failed to consider man's ingenuity; they did not reckoned with the big heart pumping life (baseball) through Simon's veins; they did not realize his great love for baseball. If they had, they wouldn't have counted him out so soon.

As a poet once observed, "things are not what they seem." Things today are not what they seemed to Sylvester Simon when fate singled him out for an almost tragic setting, Saturday morning, Oct. 30, 1926.

It was like this. Simon, employed as an upholsterer for the company wanted a couple of pieces of wood sawed in two. The operator of the saw was gone. Syl decided to do it himself. Hardly had he commenced when the mishap occurred. His hand got caught in the machine and before he could extricate it, three fingers and part of the palm were ripped off.

There may be dark moments ahead for Simon but none will be as gloomy as the one when he gazed down at his mangled hand and visioned his future. Baseball was life to him. And what was there in baseball for a fellow with only one good hand? Nothing. That is for the average fellow, but Sylvester Simon isn't included in that category.

With Erie Club.

AND so today, Simon, buoyant and confident again, is with the Erie (Pa.) club of the Central League. He will play third base for Erie this season. He was rated the best third sacker in the Central League last year.

His fight back into the professional baseball ranks is a long story centered on pluck and grit. He had to start from the bottom and he had to compete with fellows having two good hands.

Man's ingenuity that made the machine that checked Simon, aided in his comeback. A special glove was devised with a solid back of leather extending over the section where digits one, two and three are missing. A special bat was made with a brace where the injured hand could grip and support itself.

It took time for Syl to adjust himself to the new order of things. He started out in 1927, playing semi-pro ball with Mount Vernon's I-K League team and other similar outfits. He improved. Roy Whitcraft, Evansville manager, became hard pressed for a third sacker. He gave Syl a chance. He played a couple of weeks, but was not quite ready for class B ball.

He was not disheartened. He went back to the semi-pro ranks, but "caught on" with Quincy near the tail end of the season and finished with the III club, hitting around .296.

Hit .360 Last Year.

LAST year Syl came banging into his own again with the championship Fort Wayne club of the Central League. Under the careful eye of Punch Knoll, his father-in-law and manager of the Central League champions, he had a great year. He was among the league's leading hitters with a mark of .360. He drove out 19 home runs, 22 doubles and five triples. He stole 23 bases and had a fielding mark around .940. A great record for any player. And one of the best he ever experienced. That's covering some ground.

He started his pro career in 1922 with Bay City in the Old Mint League. Punch Knoll, the man who made Simon, was manager. He hit .328 with Bay City and was sold to the St. Louis Browns for a sum said to be $10,000. He was farmed out in 1923 to San Antonio in the Texas League, managed by Bob Coleman, the Hub Skipper. He hit .341 for Coleman's club and spent 1924 with the Browns as utility infielder. He hit .287 in the big tent.

Back in the minors, he slipped in 1925. With the Tulsa club of the Western League, owned by the Browns then, he batted .360. In 1226 he went to the Milwaukee club together with Dave Danforth, the pitcher, in the deal that brought Melillo to the Browns. He hit .318 for the Brewers and, according to baseball men and scouts, he was sure of another trip to the majors when the accident occurred.

Simon is 29 years old and he still has hope of climbing to the top of the baseball ladder again. He may do it. Anyone capable of overcoming the obstacles he has, may do anything. But regardless of whether he ever reaches the heights he would have had not fate interfered, he will go down in baseball as the "man who came back."

Indiana Defeats Chicago.

BEARS HELD TO 3 HITS, LOSE TO CONCORDIA, 4-1

By Glen McDonald.

Timely hitting behind the good pitching of "Chat" Tschatschula gave the Concordia Seminary baseball team a 4-1 victory in its game with the Washington University Bears, played yesterday at Ligget Field.

The Concordia ace had things pretty much his own way. He held the Hilltoppers to three hits during the seven innings he pitched. He struck out three batters and did not walk a man. Erwin Paul relieved Tschatschula in the eight inning and held Washington hitless for the remainder of the game.

Concordia made 11 hits. They sent Bill Beckmann, Washington's star hurler, to the showers in the ninth inning when a rally by Schroeder, Chuvala and Zapf accounted for two runs. Bill Schroeder, Concordia catcher led his team at bat with two singles and a double in four trips to the plate.

Washington took an early lead when Klemp muffed Hornsby's fly in the second inning. The Bear catcher scored on Gehrig's single to left.

Concordia won the game in the fifth inning. Gesswein opened the frame by singling to center. Klemp and Schroeder then beat out infield rollers to fill the bases. Tschatschula fanned but Gesswein scored on Chuvala's infield out and Klemp was cut down at the plate. Zapf then singled to score Schroeder with the winning marker.

Concordia scored again in the ninth inning. Schroeder doubled with one out. Paul filed to Coover. Chuvala doubled to left center, Schroeder scoring. Zapf singled to center and Chuvala scored.

Wagner, left fielder of the Bears, executed the star fielding play of the game when he went to deep left to pull down Dobbelstein's long drive in the eighth inning.

The next game between Concordia and Washington will be played next Wednesday afternoon at the Bears Field and will start at 2:30 p. m.

The Brokers	21	72

Selsor Quality and Farrell-Meiers won all three games of their matches in the St. Louis Handicap League at the Washington alleys. The losing fives were the Jolly Five and the Washingtons. Peters won from Stein Juniors and Fothergills from Sanders-Melsheimer by the same scores of 2 to 1. E. Thuet with 188, 248, 187—623, was the high scorer.

The Freight Claim Department was the only five which made a clean sweep in the Cotton Belt League at Peterson's alleys. The Engineers were nosed out by 40 pins in the three games. The odd games were won by the Freight Traffics, the Freight Accountants and the Disbursements, the respective losing teams being the Rate Department, Passenger Purchasing and the Lone Stars.

ABAD TO MEET MARTIN MAY 3 AT COLISEUM

Davey Abad, the Panama featherweight contender, and Eddie 'Cannonball' Martin of Brooklyn, N. Y., former bantamweight champion of the world, were matched yesterday afternoon for the 10-round main event of a New Coliseum boxing show to be held on Friday night, May 3, under the auspices of the Fred W. Stockham American Legion Post. Abad has remained here since his fight with Johnny Kaiser two weeks ago and he plans to start training immediately at the National Gymnasium to prepare for the Martin scrap.

The New Coliseum battle will afford Abad a chance to avenge a defeat he suffered at the hands of Martin in a 10-round contest at New York City on March 16, 1928. During the course of that setto Abad suffered a severe cut over his left eye when Martin hooked him with a hefty right hand wallop. The injury forced Abad to call off a match he had scheduled with Joey Rivers in St. Louis a week later.

Martin has been a prominent figure in the fistic game from the very start of his professional career six years ago. Within two years after he entered the glove game the Brooklyn battler had reached the bantam throne, which he subsequently relinquished to Charley 'Phil' Rosenberg. During the past four years Eddie has confined his activities to the featherweight and junior-lightweight divisions.

Eddie Anderson, Dominick Petrone, Johnny Curtin, Spencer Gardner, Johnny Huber, Jack Petibone and Rube Goldberg are numbered among the well known scrappers defeated by Martin during the past two years while he lost only to Tod Morgan, the junior-lightweight titleholder, who outpointed him twice in 15-round contests.

Martin's real name is Eduardo Vittoria Martino. He was born in Brooklyn on March 3, 1903, of Italian parents. Since the start of his ring career in 1922 he has participated in a total of 104 contests, winning 58 decisions, knocking out 22 opponents and losing eight. The remaining engagements were no-decision bouts.

FAILS TO MAKE COLLEGE TEAM BUT WINS TITLE

NEW YORK, April 20.—Arlie Tomlinson, crack grappler from Oklahoma A. & M. College, captured the 147-pound crown at the natonal A. A. U. wrestling championships at the New York A. C. tonight. Tomlinson threw George Hadzellis of New York in 10m. and 41s. of the final.

Tomlinson's victory was his fourth successive one in this tournament by falls. Tomlinson, incidentally, paid his own expenses to compete in this tournament. He suffered a broken leg about a year ago and failed to make the college team. He got back in shape, however, in time to decide that he wanted to compete in the national amateur championships, and paid his car fare and other expenses out of his own pocket.

George R. Shoemaker of Lehigh University won the 112-pound title by defeating Irving Levine of the Boys' Club, New York, by a fall in 8m. 40s.

Upset in 118-Pound Class.

Thomas McCrary of Cornell College, Iowa, sprang an upset in the finals of the 118-pound class, when he won a decision over George Campbel of Sand Springs, Ok., after a grueling match that went two overtime periods.

The 135-pound crown went to John Eareckson of Baltimore, who defeated Sherwood Hauck of the University of Idaho, by a decision in a close bout.

Ben Sherman of Portland, Ore., captured the 160-pound title when he threw Charles Humbert of the New York A. C. in 7m. and 40s., with a crotch hold and half-nelson.

Kaare Kroth of the University of Chicago gained the decision over Fred Maracci of Portland, Ore., in the finals of the 175-pound division.

George Wins Heavy Crown.

Ed George, 220-pounder from the University of Michigan, Big Ten champion, added the heavyweight title to his list of trophies when he forced Ernest Ots of New York to quit after 10m. and 10s. of wrestling. Ots gave up when he feared his arm would be broken with George's deadly arm bar hold.

Still sick from his grueling bout with McCrary in the 118-pound class, Campbell came back in the finals of the 126-pound division to defeat Mac Rapoport of Boston on a decision in a close bout.

BROWNS PICKED BY BABE RUTH TO RUN SECOND TO YANKEE CLUB

By Babe Ruth.

NEW YORK CITY—Picking the pennant winners is always a gamble. The strength and weaknesses that show in April may be completely changed by October. Players may be injured, accidents or sickness may change the whole complexion of the club in the course of a few short weeks.

And those are things that cannot be figured in the spring. That's why each year I'm a bit shy about picking the winners. And the fact that during the past three seasons I have picked the winners in each league is only proof of the fact that luck has been with me.

BABE RUTH.

In the American League I believe the Yankees will win again. The Yankees of 1929 on paper, at least seem a little stronger than last year's club. Pennock, Moore and Lazzeri are the doubtful quantities—and Tony already has about removed all doubt. With Pennock and Moore fit and ready we ought to win handily. With either or both of them out the battle would be a lot tougher—but I still think we have the punch to carry on.

I pick the St. Louis Browns to finish second. Dan Howley has a fighting ball club and one which surprised itself last season. The fight they made last year will make them tougher this season—and in addition I look for the Browns to have a pitching staff that will hold its own with any in the league. If there is a weakness at all it is around short and second. Here Dan is experimenting with kids who may come through or may not.

The Detroit Tigers ought to finish third. I pick them on punch alone. There are certain weaknesses in the Tiger pitching and field play, but any club with as much punch as the Tigers have is sure to make trouble. There's no limit to the things they can accomplish once they start smacking that ball.

A lot of people will laugh because I pick the Athletics for fourth place. But there's a reason. Connie hasn't strengthened his club any. Some of his pitchers have been having trouble getting into shape and Boley is out with a sore arm. In addition there

CARTAGO OVERTAKES HYDROMEL TO CAPTURE THE CAMDEN HANDICAP

PIGEON HOLE'S BID IN STRETCH COMES TOO LATE TO TAKE PURSE

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 20.—The opening day of racing here drew a large attendance. The weather was threatening but the track was fast. Eight races, which comprised the card, were well filled although scratches were numerous.

The Camden Handicap, fifth number on the program, a gallop of a mile and one-sixteenth, for 3-year-olds and upwards, was won by Cartago, which after suffering interference during the early part of the running, came through on the second turn and was taken to the outside, where he gradually wore down the leaders to win by a nose.

Hydromel, held in restraint during the first half mile, was forced extremely wide on the last two turns. He was leading to the last few strides, where he faltered, but was second by two lengths over Pigeon Hole. The latter was going strongest of all at the finish but his efforts came too late.

The race was worth $2160 to the winner. The winner paid $28.84 for a $2 ticket. Seven horses started. Rain began to fall during the running of the Camden Handicap.

Shasta Lad a Winner.

The first race, a claiming event over the Futurity course for 3-year-olds and up was won by Shasta Lad. He saved ground on the turns and won by two lengths. Old Kickapoo was second and Mino third. The winner paid $18.40 for $2.

The sixth number, the Bonesboro Purse, over the Futurity course, was won by Lady Witt, which took command at the rise of the barrier and held the rest of the field safe. She was tiring at the end but held on stubbornly to win by a nose from Pretty Pose. The latter followed the winner around closely, made a bad turn into the stretch and might have won but for this loss of ground. Pretty Pose was a nose ahead of Thistle Fyrn for the place. Thistle Fyrn was a beautiful finisher and it was hard to determine which was the winner until the numbers were placed on the board. The winner paid $10.90.

The seventh, the Crab Orchard Springs purse, drew seven starters, Lord Braedalbane, after suffering some crowding on the first turn recovered quickly and under pressure out-gamed Paraphrase to win by a head. Paraphrase was second, three length sin front of Deep River. The winner paid $3.86.

University City Wins Dual Meet From St. Charles

University City High School athletes administered the first defeat ever suffered by a St. Charles high school team in a dual meet, when they downed the visiting team by a score of 120 to 82, at University Field, yesterday.

The losers were nosed out by one point in the senior division, the score being 55 to 54 in favor of University City.

Bloebaum, running in the junior division for St. Charles, scored 21 of the 28 points, which included three firsts and two seconds. Meyer of St. Charles won the 100, 220 and 440-yard dashes in the senior division. Owing to the wet track the time for all events was slow.

The results:

SENIORS.

100-YARD DASH—Meyer, St. Charles, first; Wepperic, St. Charles, second. Time—10.8 seconds.

220-YARD DASH—Meyer, St. Charles, first; Taft, University City, second. Time—25 seconds.

440-YARD DASH—Meyer, St. Charles, first; Wepperic, St. Charles, second. Time—55.5 seconds.

880-YARD RUN—Hug, St. Charles, first; F. Austin, University City, second. Time—2 minutes, 10.8 seconds.

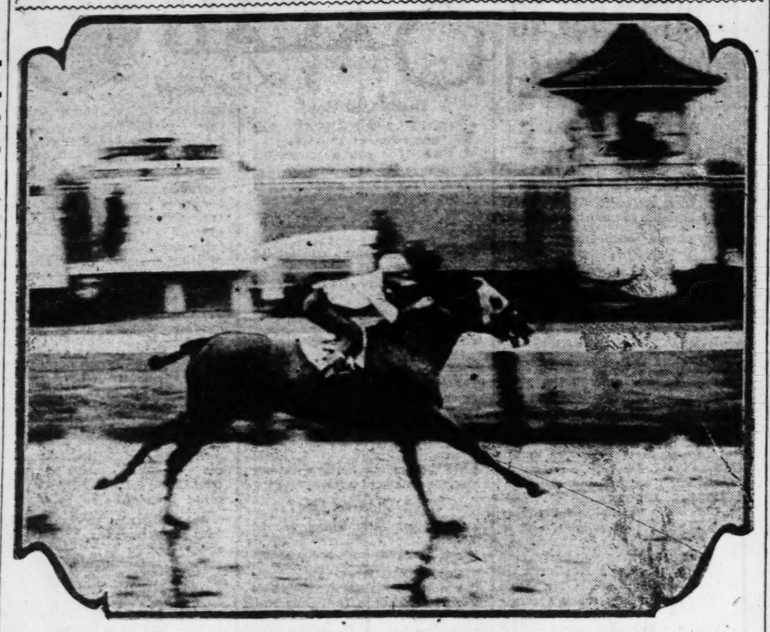
Earle Sande Riding His Derby Hope to Victory



The above picture shows the famous jockey in his first comeback to the saddle, riding Hermitage home first in a Havre stake. Hermitage won by four lengths and his price for the Derby was immediately cut from 40 to 25 to 1. He was quoted at 500 to 1, at the start of the winter betting.

Sande Almost Certain to Ride One of His Horses In the Kentucky Derby

Earl Sande's successful ride on Hermitage, in a six-furlong race at Havre de Grace last Tuesday, is taken as a certain indication that this greatest of all American jockeys will ride his own horse in the Kentucky Derby and probably in subsequent stakes if he enjoys success at Churchill Downs.

Sande has two derby eligibles, Hermitage and Nea. By. The real star of his string of horses, Nassak, has been turned out for a long rest, having suffered a ruptured tendon sheath last fall. The future book odds against Hermitage dropped from 500 to 25 to 1 after his winning effort.

Riding, not training horses, is Sande's chief delight. He turned his attention to training because he found difficulty in making the light weight demanded of a rider. However, a year's rest has made a new man of him. In a recent interview with W. C. Vreeland, Sande declared himself in excellent health for the first time in several years. "And the best part of it is that I am down to 111 pounds without having had to 'sweat,'" he added.

"I'd like to ride in the Derby," Earl answered to a question regarding his future. "Both my eligible horses are fillies, but just because they are lady horses is no reason why they should be held tightly. Regret won the Derby, and if one filly can do it there is always a chance that another can follow on."

Sande has rode two Derby winners, Zev and Flying Ebony.

Latonia (29 days), June 4-July 6.

There's Money in Horse Flesh.

Samuel D. Riddle's stable, with its numerous offspring of Man o'War, is expected to figure prominently in the Havre de Grace and Jamaica meetings. It is worthy of note that in addition to the half million dollars in purses Man o'War brought to Riddle in winning 20 races in 21 starts, the great racer is now turning thousands of dollars into the family chest as a sire. Many of his get have brought fancy prices. W. T. Waggoner, owner of the Three D's stable in Texas, invested $65,000 in a yearling son of Man o' War-Starflight a few months ago.

Among the more successful of Man o'War's get may be mentioned Crusader, Mars, American Flag, Maid at Arms, Florence Nightingale, Edith Cavell, Clyde Van Dusen, Genie, Bateur and Scapa Flow. Riddle has announced that he has rejected offers as high as $400,000 for Man o'War.

Chess Champion Wins From Two Local Players

Dr. Alexander Alekhine, world's chess champion, beat J. A. Anderson, St. Louis city champion, and L. G. Stockwell in an interesting consultation game here yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Claridge.

Play began at 1:30, and lasted until 5 p. m. After three and a half hours of tense playing, Anderson, down the exchange and threatened with another similar loss, resigned on his thirty-sixth move. The game, although from the start slightly in the doctor's favor, proved interesting and spectators stayed to the game's conclusion.

First Monthly Amateur Event to Be Held Friday

Entries for the first of the monthly amateur handicap tournaments to be sponsored by the St. Louis District Golf Association will close on Tuesday. The opening meet will be held at North Hills Friday. The tournaments are open to any member of any golf club that is a member of the St. Louis District Association.

The handicap tournaments are designed to give mediocre golfers in the district an opportunity to compete with the better players and still have an equal chance of winning. The handicaps will be determined at the start of the season by an average of the entrant's five best rounds of last season and his present club handicap. Handicaps will be raised or lowered on the basis of performances in the monthly meets, with the result that each regular participant will have an official "district handicap" at the end of the season after playing on six different courses

Entry fees which are to be paid to the district association through the player's club will be used to provide awards at each meet. Ten per cent of the receipts however, will be paid into a fund to defray the expenses of the St. Louis-Chicago intercity match to be played here later in the season.

Golfers intending to participate in the tournaments may register their names with C. F. Irwin, 1226 Pierce Building, to whom entries may also be made. There is a registration fee of 50 cents.

WEST POINT, April 20.—Ten different states were represented by the players of the Army first team as it lined up against the Navy eleven this year.

BOAT BREAKS WORLD RECORD IN OUTBOARD EVENT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—A tiny orange cockleshell steered by Jacob Daunnell of Boston came snarling down the Hudson River from Albany to New York today at an average speed of 37.4 miles an hour, to win the second annual outboard motor racing classic by about four miles and clip almost an hour off the best time made last year.

The flying Dunnell entry flaunting the title of "Miss Eastern," covered the 136 miles in the record time of 3h. 36m. and 40s. Thirteen other crafts, although badly distanced, beat the mark of 4h. 27m. and 30s. which was good enough to win last year.

Fifty-four of the 129 sputtering outboards which left the Albany Yacht Club at 6 o'clock in the morning finished the grind before the dead line set at 3 p. m. The other 75, including the two girl entries, came to grief somewhere along the course, some turning turtle or hitting snags.

Duel for Second Place.

In a stirring duel for second place, "The Spirit of Atlanta," driven by Julius Herbst of Wilmington, N. C., beat out the "Oh My IV," with R. Pregenzer of Antioch, Ill., at the helm, and took second-place honors with a time of 3h. 46m. 35s., eight seconds faster than its rival.

Other leaders, all of whom beat last year's record, were Butler of Bayville, N. Y., in "Whim," fourth; Patterson of Troy, N. Y., in "Miss Shirt," fifth; Robert Warner, Boston, in "Short Circuit," sixth; Graveline, Albany, in "Baby Tag," seventh; R. Oakley, New York, in an unnamed craft, eighth; L. E. Preston, Keuka Park, N. Y., in "Penn Yan," ninth; A. H. Gebrath, Groton, Conn., in "Bozo II," tenth; J. Brockley; E. Stroudsburg, Pa., in "Nemo," eleventh; H. Champion, E. Moriches, N. Y., in "Big Ben," twelfth; F. Mires, Boston, in "Baby Whale," thirteenth; and H. C. White, Mamaroneck, N. Y., in another boat entitled "Baby Whale."

Excitement on Riverside Drive.

From the moment when the fast-traveling "Miss Eastern" hove into sight far up the river and set the palisades reverberating with its noise there was plenty of excitement along Riverside Drive where hundreds of casual spectators craned their neck and scores stormed the grounds of the Colonial Yacht Club, the finish point, for a closeup view.

There was a flash of flame as Brockley's "Nemo" crossed the line and swerved in toward the float. A flood of gasoline shot from the tank when the motor was suddenly shut off and flared up when it struck the red-hot motor. Quick work with a fire extinguisher quenched the flames and avoided a possible explosion.

Herbst, the runner-up, told of spinning around three times and nearly turning over when his boat collided with a bit of driftwood as he sped past Poughkeepsie.

C. P. Stevens of Albany, driving "Miss T. N. T." at a speed he estimated at 45 miles an hour in an effort to overtake Dunnell, turned turtle near West Point, but was brought ashore uninjured. Allen Flower of Bayside, N. Y., in his "Shark Wydro" was reported overturned near Germantown, N. Y., and Miss Helen Mentschel, Whitestone, N. Y., was said to have been forced out of the race only 10 miles south of Albany.

Sarazen Shoots A 73 in Practice

By the Associated Press.

DEAL, England, April 20.—The American Ryder Cup golfers today concluded their period of training on the Southeast English coast. They played a round over the Royal Cinque Ports course. They were looking for wind and they found it, for there was more wind today than on any of the other appearances of the American pros.

It was chilly, too. The players wore leather jackets over their woolen jerseys, and some of them covered hands with mittens. Leo Diegel found a way to remain warm. He wore a big woolen undershirt, such as baseball players have under their uniform shirts in the spring. It was a size or so too big for him, so room was left at the bottom for him to wrap his hands in the overlapping folds.

Gene Sarazen with an incoming score of 35 played the best golf of the day, after taking 38 for the first nine. With Lord Alistair Innesker for a partner, Sarazen went down to a three and two defeat by Al Espinosa and Douglas Grant, the American amateur resident in London. Espinosa matched Sarazen's 73.

Joe Turnesa and Diegel defeated Horton Smith and Ed Dudley two and one. Turnesa took 74 and Diegel 75.

Neither Walter Hagen nor Johnny Farrell played particularly good golf. Farrell used 77 strokes and Hagen 78. Farrell and All Watrous won from Hagen and John Golden, one up.

The team returned to London this afternoon preparatory to moving on to Muirtown, where the Ryder Cup matches will be played next week.

aMontpelier Farm—Fox Catcher Farms entry.

Swatter, away well, raced into prominence at once, finished resolutely under severe pressure during the stretch run and wearing Good As Gold down, steadily was going away at end. Good As Gold hard hustled throughout raced through and held on well after being overtaken. St. Prisca entered contention early and fough tit out gamely. The Kid showed speed early but raced greenly. Snowy could never reach the leaders. Vena Rock had a rough trip. Martie was shuffled back soon after the break.

$2 mutuels paid: Swatter, win $5.10, place $3.80, show $3; Good As Gold, place $12.20, show $8.60; St. Prisca, show $4.90.

SECOND RACE—$1400, the Aero handicap, 2-year-olds, five and one-half furlongs: Start good, won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:15, at post 1 minute. Winner, b. c. 2, by Luculite-Katrina. Trainer, J. Lowe. Time, :23 2-5, :47 2-5, 1:06 1-5. Value to winners, $1000, $250, $100, $50.

Lucite, away slowly, improved his position rapidly when settled in his stride, came to the outside of the leaders and closing with belated speed, wore down the leaders and was going away at end. Whitehall, a keen factor throughout, held on well for the final issue. Fort Harlem made a determined effort at the final furlong pole but hung. Stand By raced up close and finished courageously. Equation lacked early foot but closed stoutly. Kopeck had a lot taken out of him to get to the lead and he tired the final furlong. Lady Caplet was on the outside all the way. Benish Way was crowded back in the first quarter mile.

$2 mutuels paid: Lucite, win $10.50, place $5.90, show $3.40; Whitehall, place $7.20, show $3.90; Fort Harlem, show $2.80.

aH. T. Archibald entry.

The Heather away fast, assumed the lead soon after the break, was steadied along under mild restraint and had enough in reserve to withstand Crystal Domino. Latter forwardly placed finished full of run. Greenock forced a good early pace and held on well for the final test. Donnay unprepared for the break showed a good run but came home far back. Son of John showed some speed. Candy Hog beat the barrier about two lengths while the last four at the start left in straggling order.

Mayor Walker	107	2	3	5	5	5	5	5	A. Pascuma	6.70

Minotaur, rated in nearest pursuit of Altitude for the first five furlongs, moved to the latter with good speed, was shaken up during the final stages after gaining a brief lead and began drawing away. Altitude displayed good speed while saving ground and held on well when challenged. War Hawk was easily best of the others. Nemore could not keep up. Mayor Walker showed a dull effort.

$2 mutuels paid: Minotaur, win place $2.10, show $2.10; Altitude place $3.20, show $2.60. War Hawk show $2.90.

The chart of the Philadelphia Handicap, won by Petee Wrack, will be found on Page 1s.

Resourceful saved ground at the first turn to keep in a prominent position, moved up gamely when placed to a drive, saved much ground when the leaders bore out in the final furlong and taking command at end, was under a drive to outlast Wrack. Latter in close contention made a hard effort at the last furlong pole, but began bearing out only for which he might have won. Brahman set a good pace under slight restrain but weakened at end. Chairman raced well. Hilary showed some speed.

$2 mutuels paid: Resourceful, win $9.10, place $3.60, show $2.80; Kalaba, place $2.80, show $2.60; Brahman, show $3.10.

Francais	108	7	9	9	9	9	9	9	F. Taral	122.45

Alleviator, taken back for the first half mile, gradually improved his position on the outside, displaced o Billy Warren at the final furlong pole and held Fire Chief safe under stiff pressure. Fire Chief, a slow beginner, closed stoutly the last half mile. Billy Warren opened up a good lead early and saved ground but tired when collared. Genial was unable to reach the leaders. Lucent tired badly after racing in hand early. The others were outrun.

$2 mutuels paid: Alleviator win $10.50, place $5.50, show $3.40; Fire Chief place $7.50, show $4.10; Billy Warren show $3.80.

HANDICAP

ERVAST NOW A LIKELY STARTER IN THE DERBY

Ervast, the wonder horse of the Tijuana racing meet, winner of six or seven consecutive starts on the coast, after all probably will start in the Kentucky Derby.

After having been classed as a "doubtful starter" and taken off the odds list by commissioners making book on the Kentucky Derby, Ervast today was restored to the betting column at the comparatively short odds of 12 to 1.

Advices received here from the Pacific Coast today indicated that Ervast would be shipped to Churchill Downs soon and that he would likely start in the big race, Tom Kearney announced.

The same information advised Kearney that Naishapur would be shipped on May 1 to Churchill Downs and was a sure starter. He, too, is quoted at 12 to 1.

Blue Larkspur, favorite for the Kentucky Derby, took another tumble in the odds yesterday when the quotations fell to 3 to 1 to win, to 2 to place and 7 to 10 to show.

The Derby will be run four weeks from yesterday.

Clyde Van Dusen was quoted at 8 to 1 and Roguish Eye 12 to 1.

The first withdrawal due to death was noted last week when The Nut was scratched. The Nut was one of the horses destroyed in the Maryland race track fire.

HEIDELBERG ELEVEN REACHES AMATEUR SOCCER FINAL ROUND

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 20.—The Heidelberg soccer team defeated the Cleveland Magyars, 5 to 0, here today in the final round of Western Division National Amateur cup play. Heidelberg will play the Newark (N. J.) Germans, winners in the Eastern Division, for the national title here on May 4.

The national title game will be played at the University of Pittsburg Stadium, where today's contest was staged.

KID CHOCOLATE, NEGRO BANTAMWEIGHT, HAS CHANCE TO WIN TITLE

LA BARBA ONLY BAR TO CUBAN ON HIS ROAD TO CHAMPIONSHIP

By John E. Wray
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The boxing world now is wondering if it is to have another Negro champion. The matching of Fidel La Barba and Kid Chocolate, announced last week, deposits this possibility right to the front doorstep of Swatdom.

Eligio Sardinias, the queer-looking, dusky bantamweight from Cuba, on whom the fighting name of Kid Chocolate has been hung, is a warrior of no mean ability. When first he appeared on the horizon, the tom-toms began to beat the slogan: "Here comes the next champion."

Now we'll find out all about it. Today Eligio's hopes are still ascending. He has just been returned winner in a bout with Bushy Graham, considered his most formidable opponent for the title, after La Barba. True, the victory was on a foul. Graham was outpointing Eligio, at the start of the show, and had his dark foe puzzled, up to the sixth or seventh round. At this point Chocolate began to get his artillery in range and was gaining on Graham when the latter committed the fourth and final foul that caused his disqualification.

Scalfaro Gained a Draw.

Aside from this dubious victory, the only question mark in the Cuban's record since he invaded our shores came at the hands of one Joe Scalfaro who fought the Cuban to a draw early in his American campaign.

Nevertheless, The Kid's merit seems to be admitted by all who have watched him on the job. The boxing guide, too, tells an insistent story of his ability.

Records, especially when imported from Cuba, are apt to be a trifle fromagenous—a bit to the limberger, as it were. But taking the Kid's history at its face value we learn that he Fought 100 fights in Cuba, as an amateur, and won 86 by a knockout.

Fought 21 professional bouts in Cuba, and won them all by knockouts.

Fought 18 bouts in America and won 10 by knockous, gained six decisions and was held to a draw in the other.

There is no doubt in the least that the Kid can hang a lot of weight on his punches. He also is fairly well-equipped in boxing and knows how and when to beat a strategic retreat.

It also appears that, he has a slight inferiority complex, when boxing tough foes, that causes him to be diffident. The kid has the equipment, but his morale may be just below the horizon at times.

He may snap out of that and then he will indeed be formidable. However, before he reaches the undisputed kingship of his division he must pass La Barba, who surrendered the title some time ago and quit the game. Fidel is now back in the game and going strong. He has campaigned successfully in Australia and looks better than ever before. Chocolate will find the going tough with La Barba for an opponent, as the Californian is extremely clever.

La Barba, however, lacks a punch and he has only five knockouts to his credit in his entire professional career.

If Chocolate should win the crown he would be the first Negro to win a title since Tiger Flowers was unjustly deprived of his honors at Chicago, some three years ago.

In two other classes there are Negro boxers of outstanding merit. In the heavyweight division George Godfrey is considered a fairly formidable foe. Godfrey's size and endurance make him a hard man to whip. Possibly he might win the world's heavyweight title, if he were given a chance. Jack Sharkey once defeated him in 10 rounds, but that was some time ago. It is doubtful if Jack could repeat, today.

However, the chance of Godfrey getting a crack at the crown are about as imminent as an epidemic of hoof and mouth disease in an apiary.

Young Jack Thompson made quite a flurry among the welters until he faced Jackie Fields.

Few Negro Fighters of Merit.

Of recent years colored champions have been rare because of the unwillingness of promoters to sponsor Negro championship fights. Jack Johnson's sway as king of the heavies did more damage to the Negro fight world than any other factor.

The near-riots that followed his success on several occasions caused promoters to look with extreme disfavor on the prospect of another Negro title holder.

Tiger Flowers, because he was such a decent chap, won his way to the top and the regard of all with whom he came in contact. The Tiger, however, did not last long.

Two decades ago Negroes of real merit could be found in practically every division of the fight world. Today there are only a few of consequence and some of them were not born in this country.

Moortown, Where Ryder Cup Matches Will Be Played, Severe Test, Farrell Says

By Johnny Farrell,
American Open Golf Champion.

LEEDS, England, April 20.—From "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn who had ample cause to remember it and from Capt. Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen also, the U. S. Ryder cup team has obtained a complete description of the treacherous Moortown links at Leeds where the international passage-at-arms with the British is to be held next week.

Therefore it was with a sense of familiarity that we played our first practice round over a course that had been selected because of its strategic strength. Moortown is a spot to gladden the heart of anybody who likes genuine tests for his golf game. It is a course that calls for a variety of shots. Trouble in large doses lies everywhere among the gorse and heather, in the monstrous traps and around the small greens that for, the most part, are made to seem even smaller by being situated upon knolls which have a fearsome habit of severely punishing wayward approaches.

Johnny Farrell

However, I think Moortown is made to order for the Americans. Fine accuracy and judgment are needed to vie successfully against this great layout and these, I believe, are virtues possessed by the Americans in greater degree than by our British cousins. The American style of high pitching for approach work, rather than the pitch and run, I think will stand them in good stead.

Greens Easy to Hold.

Moortown is soft and springy, and the greens are easy to hold. Moortown, too, is an inland course and not visited so frequently by the winds that are ever present along the coast. There are days when Moortown is quite serene.

I will give you an idea of the course by a limited description of the holes.

The first hole is about 420 yards long, mostly sloping downward. There is a chatty brook to carry with a medium-sized approach. The second green is a saucer effect, sunk in a knoll. The third is a one-shotter of 145 yards, but extremely dangerous when the winds are active, as "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn can fully testify.

The fourth is a great test of skill and judgment. Its length is 430 yards, and the long approach to a blind green has to be made from an uphill lie. The next two holes aren't long, but they put a premium on straight hitting. The fifth has two formidable mental hazards, an out-of-bounds on the right and a marsh on the left, while the sixth is another blind affair that requires a drive over a hill.

225-Yard Par 3 Hole.

Threes are scarce on the 225-yard seventh, where the shot is a lofted wood or a straight-faced iron, depending on the play of the wind. The 430-yard eighth hole is difficult only because of the pronounced slope that leads to the green. If the approach is not properly placed, it will be very short or very long. The ninth has no distinguishing features. It is 320 yards long and perhaps the easiest of the eighteen.

The tenth hole is not longer but far more troublesome because both fairway and green slope away from the player, thus necessitating a downhill bit. The eleventh is another that requires unlimited accuracy because of out-of-bounds on one side and swamps on the other. The twelfth is 490 yards and a par 5. It is a simple hole where fours are as frequent as fives.

The drive at the 360-yard thirteenth is over an extended slope, while the fourteenth, of 440 yards, affords another blind approach from an uphill lie. The fifteenth is a tough one. It is 450 yards long and, while its par is 5, you can get home with two long woods if truly hit and controlled. A stone wall at the left is the only cause of worry at the sixteenth, and the seventeenth, while only 170 yards long, is perhaps the hardest on the course. The only level thing about it is the green.

The finishing hole is unexpectedly easy. It is 360 yards long with half a ravine cutting through across the center of the fairway that compels a placement drive.

E. ST. LOUIS MUNICIPAL LEAGUE STARTS PLAY ON NEXT SUNDAY

East St. Louis' Municipal League grew to an eight-club circuit again yesterday when the Stenzels, which withdrew from the league at the meeting last Thursday night, decided to re-enter and deposited their entrance and forfeit fees.

The teams finish their spring training this afternoon and next Sunday start the first half split season with the following card for opening day:

Field No. 1 at Jones Park—Zerwecks vs. Hinderbergers.

Field No. 2 at Jones Park—Slacks vs. Westcotts.

Field No. 3 at Jones Park—P. N. A. vs. Stenzels.

Field No. 5 at Jones Park—Pennsylvania vs. Circles.

NORTHWESTERN WINS CONFERENCE GAME FROM ILLINOIS, 3-1

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 20.—Northwestern defeated Illinois in a Big Ten Conference game here this afternoon, 3 to 1.

Heideman twirled excellent ball for the Wildcats. Although Illinois annexed eight hits, they were scattered.

Northwestern scored two runs in the fourth and one in the seventh, while Illinois' lone tally was made in the sixth. Meyer, who started for Illinois, was replaced by Bower in the fifth.

It was the first baseball game between Northwestern and Illinois in seven years.

Wear Scores His Third Hole in One At Country Club

THE thrill that comes once in a life time came to James H. Wear for the third time yesterday afternoon when he made a hole-in-one from the twelfth tee at the St. Louis Country Club. He had made two previously during his golfing career. His latest was accomplished with a No. 2 iron which dropped the ball 15 feet from the cup and gave it enough roll to reach the pin and totter in. Wear was playing in a foursome with T. S. McPheeters, F. M. Kennard, and W. Simpkins.

District Meet Slated May 11

The second annual track and field meet of the St. Louis District of the Missouri State High School Athletic Association has been set for May 11 and will be contested at the Public Schools Stadium. The preliminaries will be run off on May 8 and 9.

There will be competition in junior and senior divisions. The senior events will be limited to boys not yet 20 years old and the junior class will include those under the age of 16 years, 7 months.

The entry list will close on May 1. Blanks may be secured from E. A. Hecker at the St. Louis Country Day School. Twenty-three schools of the Public High School, Preparatory, and County leagues are eligible to compete.

CLASS TOURNEY OPENS AT WASHINGTON ALLEYS

The third annual bolowing tournament, under the auspices of the St. Louis Ten Pin Bowling Association, opened at the Washington alleys last night with the Bly-Moss team rolling the best total of 2683 in class A. Juettmeier was high for his team with 591.

In class B the Array Recreations scored 2572 with Strickland setting the pace of 566 with an excellent single game of 230.

Reds Release Outfielder.

CINCINNATI, April 20.—C. J. McDiarmid, president of the Cincinnati Reds, announced today that Estil Crabtree, young outfilder secured from the Pacific Coast, would be sent to the Columbus American Association club subject to a 24 hour recall.

BEARS' SPRING FOOTBALL WORK ENDS THIS WEEK

By Jerry Bernoudy.

Spring football practice will come to a close at Washington University this week after a training period which has lasted since early in April. Although the workouts have been hampered considerably by the inclement weather, a squad of over 30 candidates, mostly freshmen who earned numerals last fall, have been reporting to Gale Bullman, regular line coach, who has had supervision over the work.

The loss of 12 veterans, who will either graduate or be ineligible for further competition after this year, leaves some huge holes which must be filled, and it is therefore the freshmen candidates who are expected ot supply the 1929 machine with a great deal of its punch. Among the departing lettermen are Captain Lee Scheib, all Missouri Valley center selection, Carl Bickel and Jack Duncan, regular backs, and Cecil Drake and Jerry Hoffman, veteran linemen for the past three seasons.

Few Lettermen Out.

Only a few of the lettermen who will be eligible for next fall have been out for the spring practice owing to participation in other branches of spring athletics. Among the veterans who have been out for line jobs are Gus Butz, substitute tackle last year, who seems to be the most logical candidate for the pivot position; Rolla Stocke, lettermen at guard last season who is trying for Hoffman's vacated post, and Worhheide, a 215-pound tackle aspirant, who was declared ineligible last fall. Bob Watson and Emilio Torres, two of the 1928 reserve linemen, suffered appendicitis attacks last winter, but are now in shape and have been participating in the spring workouts.

According to Bullman, barring ineligibility, Washington will be able to place a line on the field next fall that will average in excess of 200 pounds from tackle to tackle. Stocke, Butz, Paris and Glazer are all over that mark, while Capt. Harvey Jablonsky tips the beam around 190.

The star freshman backfield combination composed of Bert Springer, Leslie Waid, Rufus Putney and "Red" Sauselle gives promise of being a powerful addition to next fall's aggregation which makes it a certainty that Dick Rawdon and Scott Hornsby, members of the 1928 quartet, will have a fight on their hands if they are to retain their first team positions. It is evident after watching the yearling backs in action that the 1929 eleven will possess an abundance of speed—a quality sadly lacking last year.

End Material Scarce.

The matter of developing a capable pair of wingmen appears to be the most serious question confronting Bullman at the present time.

BASKET RULES BODY MAKES 4 MINOR CHANGES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The joint basketball rules committee, closing its annual conclave at the Pennsylvania Club here today, made four changes in the code, recommended abolition of the center toss to start the game, and after each score. The National Association of College Basketball Coaches had urged the abandonment of this traditional feature in favor of a throw-in from the outside.

The proposed change was tabled for one year, with the recommendation that coaches favoring it give the new plan a trial in practice games.

The committe made a new ruling on the jump-ball, providing that neither jumper may touch the ball after it has been tapped until it has touched another player or the floor. Various technical fouls connected with the jump ball, such as catching the ball before it has been tapped, were changed to mere violations, the penalty for which is loss of the ball rather than a foul.

A statement was inserted into the code to enable officials to rule with more uniformity on "traveling" with the ball. The fourth change had to do with a player fouled in the act of shooting a goal. Henceforth the ball will be tossed up at center after the second free throw if the player fouled made his field goal. It will be in play after a miss on the second free throw, if the field goal was not made.

The membership of the committee, heretofore consisting of 18 delegates divided equally among the A. A. U., the National Collegiate A. A. and the Y. M. C. A., was enlarged by the inclusion of two delegates each from the Canadian Athletic Association and the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations.

George Coover will be the only regular end returning for next fall's campaign, and consequently some new material must be developed. John Lichtenfeld, freshman cage star, has shown to better advantage than any of the other yearlings in spring practice. Among the other freshmen who give promise of developing into varsity caliber on the wings are K. S. Kuhlman and Al Lane. Some of the yearlings who have shown well enough to warrant serious consideration for tackle and guard positions are Louis Hinrichs, Clifford Wheeler, Glen Anderson and John Blake.

Washington's schedule for next fall is the heaviest ever carded by the hilltop institution, and the results of the spring training session are expected to aid considerably in preparing the new men. In addition to sectional contests with Missouri, Kansas, Drake and St. Louis, the Bears will play the powerful Carnegie Tech eleven here in an inter-sectional battle on Nov. 2.

In preparation for the National Public Links Tournament, to be held over the 18-hole links in Forest Park, Aug. 6 to 10, the course is being lengthened and groomed.

The total length as it stands now is 6056 yards, but five tees are being pushed back and will add more than 200 yards.

No. 4 tee is being set back 75 yards, No. 8, 15 yards. On No. 9; the old tee about 42 yards behind the present tee is to be used. No. 14 tee is to be set back 15 yards and No. 15, 60 yards.

The high tee formerly used on No. 17 hole, across the lagoon, has been cut down and the new one will be of only ordinary height.

Many Workmen Are Busy.

A crew of 20 men has been working over the course lately and the greens are in good condition. All the greens are now covered with a good carpet of bent grass except No. 15, which it was deemed unnecessary to change.

The fact that a national tournament is to be played here will make no difference in the conduct of the course, at least for the present. The regular greens are to be used as often as in the past. It may be found necessary to close them for a week or two before the title event, but that has not been decided.

Secretary Bob Jordan of the Forest Park Golf Club, who is a member of the Selection Committee of the National Tournament, said yesterday that it had not been decided how the golfers to represent St. Louis would be chosen. A 72-hole qualifying competition may be held or players will be selected on their general play.

Each city is permitted to enter up to six men.

New Entry Record Expected.

Jordan stated that he thinks Dr. I. R. Davis, Bob Isherwood, Eddie Donohue and Fred McCoy are the leading contenders for places on the St. Louis team. There are others not so well known who may show to advantage.

The entry for the past three years has run between 125 and 135, but Jordan looks for a record entry this year because of the central location of this city.

Hynes Makes Hole-in-One.

Charles Hynes, making due allowance for his usual hook, sank his tee shot on No. 8 at Algonquin last week.

Jimmy Manion holed out a 140-yard mashie pitch to the third green on the blue course at Westwood for an eagle 2, while playing with Judge Rosecan, Lou Rosen, president of Westwood, and Earl Rosen, his son. Manion followed the eagle with a birdie on the next hole. He finished with 35 but took 40 coming in.

Judge Rosecan started his first season of golf with a 98 at Algonquin. He has been taking lessons from Wyndham Monroe at the Washington School during the winter.

HIGH SCHOOLS TO PLAY TOMORROW AND TUESDAY

By Harold Tuthill.

Yesterday's postponement of the City High School League baseball doubleheader will necessitate the playing of single games tomorrow and Tuesday. Central will meet Beaumont tomorrow at the Public Schools Stadium and on the following day Cleveland and Soldan will battle.

It seemed possible that the field might have dried out sufficiently for the second game to have been played as per schedule yesterday, but the league officials canceled both contests.

Beaumont will make its belated initial appearance against Central without any change in the lineup. It is doubtful that Johnny Harmon will be able to start at shortstop for Central since he works after school hours. Charley Cuntz is in the same category, but it is almost certain that he will be on deck to play centerfield for the Red and Black.

Welstraub for Central and Slater for Beaumont will be the opposing hurlers.

There will be no alterations in the lineups issued by the Cleveland and Soldan coaches for Tuesday's game.

The probable Beaumont-Central batting order follows:

BEAUMONT.	CENTRAL.
Drew 2b	Bassman ss
Holtman cf	Tieman 3b
Guhman rf	Cunningham 2b
Weidner 1b	Sheridan c
Carr 3b	Cuntz cf
Schaberg or Hauck lf	Yourtee rf
Probst ss	Weintraub p
Weber c	Rich lf
Slater p	Kamp 1b

EAST ST. LOUIS PLAYS GRANITE CITY FRIDAY

East St. Louis travels to Granite City next Friday for the feature game in the Southwestern High School Athletic Conference baseball race. The other games that day will be Alton at Collinsville and Woodriver at Belleville.

The conference race opened Friday with East St. Louis, Granite City and Belleville winning from Woodriver, Collinsville and Alton, respectively.

QUALIFYING PLAY OPENS AT ST. CLAIR CLUB

Qualifying play for the spring Handicap tournament, the first golf meet of the year for the St. Clair Country Club in East St. Louis, started yesterday and the players have until Friday to play their 18 holes. Next Saturday the first round of the match play is to be inaugurated.

54 TEAMS ENTER PUBLIC SCHOOL BASEBALL RACE

The St. Louis Public Grammar School League will open its fifteenth season tomorrow afternoon and before the week is out, 54 teams will have entered the annual competition for the Post-Dispatch trophy that accompanies the championship and the medals awarded to members of the winning nine.

The Post-Dispatch Trophy, which becomes the permanent possession of the team winning it three times, is now resting in the corridors of Adams School whose team defeated the Lyon nine in a 5-game series last summer. Adams plays in the Tower Grove Park division and will open its season against Sherman on grounds No. 4 Thursday. Lyon plays tomorrow afternoon with Gardenville as the opposition on Carondelet diamond No. 1.

Good Pitching a Feature.

Last year's play was featured by remarkably good pitching by several young hurlers. In the title series, there were a total of 90 strikeouts and a fair portion of them were due to the pitchers' shoots and not the batter's weakness. Overkramer, Adams' star hurler, fanned 19 Lyon batters in one game of the series and Telthorst, his opponent, struck out 18 in the same contest.

The 54 teams competing this season are divided into nine groups and the winners in each division will enter an elimination series to determine the finalist who will play three games for the championship.

The schedule for next week follows:

Dr. Freeland, Derby Eligible Made Good Record in 2-Year-Old Campaign

Winter Book Odds—20 to 1.

No. 2—Derby Candidates.

Dr. Freeland.

Walter J. Salmon won the Preakness with Display in 1926, the year Bubbling Over cantered to victory in the Kentucky Derby. During the past two seasons the owner of Mereworth Stud in Kentucky hasn't had a 3-year-old that could approach that good son of Fair Play and Ciuta, and it hardly seems probable he will have one this year, although he has a very capable colt in Dr. Freeland.

It is entirely possible that Dr. Freeland may develop into a better racer than Display, but that will be very hard to do, as the latter for two seasons has been one of the country's topnotch handicap horses.

Dr. Freeland was extensively raced as a 2-year-old, and was winner in three of his 16 starts. He was four times second and once third. His notable successes were in the Whirl Stakes and the Nursery Handicap, and a second to High Strung in the Pimlico Futurity.

Started His Career Early.

His Pimlico Futurity race was one that started heads to wagging, and it probably added to Trainer Thomas J. Healey's confidence in the son of Light Brigade. Carrying equal weight with the Belmont Futurity winner, Dr. Freeland, after being outrun in the early stages, was wearing down High Strung in the final steps of the mile race.

Off that race Dr. Freeland invaded Kentucky for the Breeders' Futurity won by Current and the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, won by Clyde Van Dusen. In both he finished fourth.

Dr. Freeland started his career in April at Havre de Grace, but it was not until his fourth start, made in the Whirl Stakes at Empire City, that he was a winner. In that race he defeated Chatover, Ma Mie, Crystal Broom, Lycidas, Hypoluxo and others.

Next going in the Saratoga Special, Dr. Freeland displayed a creditable performance. He was right with Blue Larkspur and Jack High during the early stages, and when crowded back on the turn came again in the stretch, only to tire toward the finish. In the Grand Union Hotel Stakes he was second to Twink.

Will Favor Longer Races.

Again in the Hopeful Stakes he ran a creditable race, although he finished outside of the money, and in the Nursery Handicap he ran off with the race over a muddy track, winning by five lengths over High Score, Soul of Honor, Comstockery, Too High and Atlantis. His Champagne Stakes effort could not be classed as disappointing, while his race in the Eastern Shore Handicap at Havre de Grace was a capital one as he was away slowly and had to find his way on the outside, but was crowding the leaders at the finish. Twink only beat him a neck in a mile purse race, and he was third to that colt in the Spalding Lowe Jenkins Handicap. In both races some very smart colts finished in his wake. Then came his Pimlico Futurity effort.

He seems a colt that will favor the increased distance of the 3-year-old stakes. It is not unlikely that he will see action in both the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby before entering his metropolitan campaign.

Much of his breeding is English, he having three crosses to Isonomy, but he has a generous sprinkling of good American blood in his crosses of Domino and Hamburg.

La Barba's Return to the U. S. Has Stimulated Action in Bantam Division

WITH Fidel LaBarba back in the United States there will be some real action regarding the bantamweight title. It is reported that Fidel will re-enter Stanford University again next fall, but he will have time to engage in a couple of fights before that and settle the bantam question with Kid Chocolate, against who he is already matched, Bushy Graham and whoever may get into the picture during the next few months. Just now the title is without a recognized owner.

Joe Dundee may hold the welterweight championship in the East, but there is one man—Al Mello of Boston—who surely has a right to share it with him. For the second time Mello met Dundee above the welter limit and defeated him.

Izzy Schwartz, U. S. flyweight champion, gave Boy Walley, the highly touted lad from Singapore, a severe beating in 10 rounds at San Francisco. Schwartz now seeks another meeting with Emile Pladner of France for the world's crown.

Gorman Back in U. S.

Bud Gorman, Wisconsin heavyweight champion, has returned from Europe and has been visiting at his old home in Kenosha, Wis. Bud says he beat K. O. Christner once and would like to tackle him again and show that he is not such a much.

Jack Berg, the London lightweight, who gave Billy Petrolle a couple of real battles in Chicago, is back in the States and will soon throw down the gauntlet to all the 135 pounders.

When Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish heavyweight, fought Francesco Cruz of Portugal at Porto Rico recently, he was guaranteed $10,000. Paulino, however, refused to enter the ring before receiving the guarantee in cash. This the promoters furnished and $1000 of it was in $1 bills. Then Paulino got busy and stopped the Portugal heavyweight in just 89 seconds.

Baby Sal, a youngster of Los Angeles, is to be matched with Tod Morgan for the junior lightweight championship in Jack Doyle's arena at Los Angeles. Sal has been boxing only about two years, but has made remarkable strides in his profession the past year.

Missouri M. A. Wins Army Shoot

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., April 20.—The Missouri Military Academy rifle team, scoring 7580 points, ranked first among Seventh Army Corps Area junior unit schools in the national R. O. T. C. matches, the War Department at Washington, D. C., advised Col. E. Y. Burton, president of the academy, today.

PART THREE.

Mary C. Gross Engaged to Wed Lee V. Langan

Announcement Is Made at Party Given by Mother of Bride-to-Be, Mrs. Robert Hazlett Gross.

SPRING is proving the most popular season of the current year for engagement announcements. Some of them come as a surprise to society, and to this interesting list is added the betrothal of Miss Mary Caroline Gross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hazlett Gross of Webster Groves, and Lee Verdin Langan, son of Mrs. Irene Verdin Langan of Webster Groves.

The news was told yesterday at a charming tea given by Mrs. Gross at her home, 227 Marshall avenue, in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Edward Gross, a recent bride, who has just come to St. Louis from Washington, D. C., to make her home. The rooms were attractively decorated with clusters of spring flowers, as was the tea table, presided over by a bevy of Miss Gross' friends. There were 75 guests, and the announcement appeared on cards attached to individual corsage bouquets given as they entered.

The prospective bride was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent at Webster College, and her wedding will prevent her being a debutante of next season.

Mr. Langan is a graduate of Culver Military Academy and St. Louis University.

The marriage of Miss Mary Caroline in the fall will be the third in the Gross family within a year. Her sister, Miss Adelaide Gross, became the bride of Francis A. Drew several months ago.

The young women serving at the tea were Mrs. Drew, Mrs. Richard S. Hawes Jr., Miss Langan's sister, Mrs. Katherine Peck, Miss Carolyn Fox, Miss Arline Muckerman, Miss Betty Brigham and Miss Erle Harsh.

Elizabeth Williams Weds W. C. Bliss

A CHARMING informal wedding which took place last night was that of Miss Elizabeth Randolph Williams, daughter of Mrs. George Clifford Sexton, 510 Lake avenue, and William Carter Bliss, son of Dr. Malcolm A. Bliss. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. McChesney, 5319 Clemens avenue, by the Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor.

The house was attractively decorated with pink roses, pink snapdragon and sweet peas, a basket of them adorning the newel post and clusters of blossoms banking the fireplace where the service was read.

The bride was given away by her brother, Hugh Clifford Sexton. She was gowned in white satin combined with rare old family lace. The skirt was fashioned in the long back effect so popular at present, and the bodice had a yoke and long sleeves of the lace. In lieu of a court train, the tulle wedding veil fell in filmy folds from a cap of rose-point that had been worn by the bride's great grandmother. She carried calla lilies.

Willis Bliss was his brother's best man and only attendant. The bride's sister, Miss William P. Shirley of New York, arrived in St. Louis yesterday to be present.

A reception followed the ceremony, and tones of pink prevailed in the flowers on the reception table.

Mr. and Mrs. Bliss will sail Wednesday from New York for Bermuda on their wedding trip and will make their home upon their return at 5135 Waterman avenue.

The bride is a graduate of Wellesley College, and, with her mother, lived abroad for three years following her graduation. Mr. Bliss completed his studies at Amherst College.

Hunt Breakfast of Bridlespur Club

THE Saturday Hunt at the Bridlespur Club yesterday was preceded by a hunt breakfast at Ferrieres, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lewis on the Ladue road. There were about 40 guests.

Wednesday afternoon the hounds will meet at the clubhouse at 2:30 o'clock for a short run, and on next Saturday Dr. and Mrs. John R. Caulk have invited the riders to their country home, Jennifer Farm, Ballas near Clayton road for a hunt breakfast at noon, to be followed by a longer run. This will be the last hunt scheduled for the season.

The Saturday night dinner dances for the spring and summer season at the St. Louis Country Club began last night. The club was decorated with spring flowers, and more of the blossoms were used as centerpieces for the small dinner tables. Among the parties was a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. John Gilman Mudd of Hotel Chase in honor of their neice, Miss Mary Jane Mastin of Alabama. Mr. and Mrs. McKittrick entertained a group of their friends at

Announcement Is Made at Party Given by Mother of Bride-to-Be, Mrs. Robert Hazlett Gross.

SPRING is proving the most popular season of the current year for engagement announcements. Some of them come as a surprise to society, and to this interesting list is added the betrothal of Miss Mary Caroline Gross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hazlett Gross of Webster Groves, and Lee Verdin Langan, son of Mrs. Irene Verdin Langan, also of Webster Groves.

The news was told yesterday at a charming tea given by Mrs. Gross at her home, 227 Maple avenue, in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. John Edward Gross, a recent bride, who has just come to St. Louis from Washington, D. C., to make her home. The rooms were attractively decorated with clusters of spring flowers, as was the tea table, presided over by a bevy of Miss Gross' friends. There were 75 guests, and the announcement appeared on cards attached to individual corsage bouquets given as they entered.

The prospective bride was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent at Webster College, and her wedding will prevent her being a debutante of next season.

Mr. Langan is a graduate of Culver Military Academy and St. Louis University.

The marriage of Miss Mary Caroline in the fall will be the third in the Gross family within a year. Her sister, Miss Adelaide Gross, became the bride of Francis A. Drew several months ago.

The young women serving at the tea were Mrs. Drew, Mrs. Richard S. Hawes Jr., Mr. Langan's sister, Mrs. Katherine Peck, Miss Evelyn Fox, Miss Arline Muckerman, Miss Mary Brigham and Miss Erle Harsh.

Elizabeth Williams Weds W. C. Bliss

A CHARMING informal wedding which took place last night was that of Miss Elizabeth Randolph Williams, daughter of Mrs. George Clifford Sexton, 510 Lake avenue, and William Carter Bliss, son of Dr. Malcolm A. Bliss. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. McChesney, 119 Clemens avenue, by the Rev. Dr. John A. MacIvor.

The house was attractively decorated with pink roses, pink snapdragon and sweet peas, a basket of them adorning the newel post, and clusters of blossoms banking the fireplace where the service was read.

The bride was given away by her brother, Hugh Clifford Sexton. She was gowned in white satin combined with rare old family lace. The skirt was fashioned in the long-back effect so popular at present, and the bodice had a yoke and long sleeves of the lace. In lieu of a court train, the tulle wedding veil fell in filmy folds from a cap of rose-point that had been worn by the bride's great grandmother. She carried calla lilies.

Willis Bliss was his brother's best man and only attendant. The bride's sister, Mrs. William P. Shirley of New York, arrived in St. Louis yesterday to be present.

A reception followed the ceremony, and tones of pink prevailed in the flowers on the reception table.

Mr. and Mrs. Bliss will sail Wednesday from New York for Bermuda on their wedding trip and will make their home upon their return at 5135 Waterman avenue.

The bride is a graduate of Wellesley College, and, with her mother, lived abroad for three years following her graduation. Mr. Bliss completed his studies at Amherst College.

Hunt Breakfast of Bridlespur Club

THE Saturday Hunt at the Bridlespur Club yesterday was preceded by a hunt breakfast at Ferrieres, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Lewis on the Ladue road. There were about 40 guests.

Wednesday afternoon the hounds will meet at the clubhouse at 2:30 o'clock for a short run, and on next Saturday Dr. and Mrs. John R. Caulk have invited the riders to their country home, Jennifer Farm, Ballas near Clayton road for a hunt breakfast at noon, to be followed by a longer run. This will be the last hunt scheduled for the season.

The Saturday night dinner dances for the spring and summer season at the St. Louis Country Club began last night. The club was decorated with spring flowers, and more of the blossoms were used as centerpieces for the small dinner tables. Among the parties was a dinner by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gilman Miller of Hotel Chase in honor of their neice, Miss Mary Jane Mastin of Alabama. Mr. Walter McKittrick entertained a group of the married set.

MRS. HANS DEUTSCH, who, with Dr. Deutsch, has returned from a three-years' stay in Europe, and is the guest of Mrs. R. Shad Bennett. —Geschwind, Vienna.

MISS MARY CAROLINE GROSS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hazlett Gross of Webster Groves, whose engagement to Lee Verdin Langan was announced yesterday. —Ashen-Brenner.

Mrs. Hoover Attends Opera Two Nights

WASHINGTON, April 20.

WASHINGTON has had a busy week socially and one crowded with big events such as the opening of Congress, the annual congress of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, the opening of the baseball season and three performances of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Co.

These events only afforded a background for dozens of smaller but scarcely less important affairs. The President and Mrs. Hoover. Vice President Curtis and the members of the Cabinet and their ladies turned the opening of the baseball season into quite an administration affair. The ladies of this distinguished group were so bundled in furs as to be almost beyond recognition. Mrs. Hoover wore a dark fur coat with a deep collar turned high about her throat and a small dark felt hat. She was as enthusiastic over the ball game as was the President.

Mrs. Hoover was the most conspicuous figure at the opening night of the Metropolitan Opera Co. when "Manon" was presented before a distinguished audience. She has so many intimates in the Cabinet that society was wondering who would occupy the White House box with her. Entering after the first act was almost over she was accompanied by the Attorney-General and Mrs. William D. Mitchell and William Henry and Mrs. Jean Henry Large, her uncle and sister.

Mrs. Hoover wore a charming gown of deep rose chiffon, the skirt of uneven hemline and slightly draped and the bodice showing a cape effect at the back of rose and gold lace, which fell over her arms. She wore her hair quite simply dressed and without ornaments, the soft waves parted slightly on one side and drawn into a graceful knot at the back of her head. Instead of a fancy evening coat, Mrs.

Miss Bettie M. Gibbs To Wed H. T. Hungerford

MR. AND MRS. HARRY E. SPRAGUE, 6104 Pershing avenue, announce the engagement of their niece, Miss Bettie Myrick Gibbs of West Roxbury, Mass., and Harold Thompson Hungerford of St. Louis.

Miss Gibbs, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Gibbs, is well known in St. Louis, and has visited Mr. and Mrs. Sprague during the last two Christmas holiday seasons. The engagement is being announced today in Boston at a tea given for her by her parents.

The prospective bride was educated at the Brimmer School in Boston, and has spent much of her time since her graduation in travel and study abroad. She will sail early in June for a two months' visit in England and France.

Mr. Hungerford is the son of Mrs. Alice Hungerford, 5958 Maple avenue, with whom he makes his home. He is well-known socially, and is a member of the University Club.

The wedding will take place early in August at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Gibbs, "At the Bend of the Road," near Yarmouthport, Mass., on Cape Cod.

At Red Cross Meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Hammar, 7 Hortense place, left yesterday at noon for Washington, D. C., where Mrs. Hammar will attend a meeting of the national board of directors of the American Red Cross, of which she is a member.

MRS. NETTIE HARNEY BEAUREGARD, a member of the committee on arrangements for the Missouri Historical Society dinner, April 30, at Hotel Chase. —Gerhard Sisters.

MR. AND MRS. HARRY H. LANGENBERG AND MR. GUY GAMBLE, photographed on the Paris on their arrival in New York a fortnight ago, following a Mediterranean cruise and a visit to the French Riviera. —Ella Barnett, New York.

Returns for Wedding

Mrs. Bernard Greenhill of London, England, formerly Miss Dorothy Graham of St. Louis, has arrived in St. Louis to attend the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Grayson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Grayson Jr., 4357 McPherson avenue, and Dr. Paul J. Zentay, to take place April 30. She is a guest at Hotel Chase.

The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's grandfather, Judge Henry S. Priest, 4320 Westminster place.

Sail on Leviathan

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart McDonald, 24 Washington terrace, their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dozier L. Gardner and Mrs. McDonald's brother, Earl J. Moon, sailed yesterday on the Leviathan for New York. Mrs. McDonald and her brother have been motoring in France and Italy when Mrs. McDonald became ill and has been in the American Hospital at Neuilly. Mr. McDonald and Mrs. Gardner went over to accompany her to St. Louis.

Robin Hood Pageant By Convent Pupils

THE students of the Maryville College of the Sacred Heart and pupils of the Maryville Academy and the city convent of the Sacred Heart will unite to give the pageant of Robin Hood on the grounds of Villa Duchesne, the new convent in St. Louis County, the evening of May 21, or, if weather is inclement, on May 23.

About 300 students will participate. Miss Anne Louise Liversedge will play Robin Hood; Miss Helen Bonner, Maid Marion; Miss Margaret Raff, Prince John; Miss Hildegarde Hellmuth, King Richard; Miss Beatrice Fehlig, the Fool; Miss Margaret Clopton, Oberon, King of the Fairies; Miss Eugenia Gill, Titania, Queen of the Fairies; Miss Mary Virginia Taylor, Fitzwalter, Marion's Father; Miss Mary Louise Scott, Littlejohn; Miss Gertrude Heideman, the peasant's victim, and Miss Sarah Benoist will lead the rustic dance.

The setting will be laid in a natural out-of-door amphitheater, with the stone walls of Villa Duchesne in the background, and the stone-flagged terrace at the side, with clumps of trees to soften the effect. The tiny elves in the story of Robin Hood will be played by the small students of Barat Hall, and the youngest pupils will be fire flies. The dance to arouse Robin Hood's men will be done by Miss Anne Tyler, Miss Janet Leahy, Miss Laura Jones, Miss Mary Agnes Keeley, Miss Ruth Stanley, Miss Grace Mary Stephen, Miss Mary Howard and Miss Grace McNally, and there will be a dance at the castle by Miss Elizabeth Costigan, Miss Dorothy Mudd, Miss Julia and Miss Rosemary Kiely and Miss Genevieve Ganen.

The wedding of Miss Frances Fristoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace Fristoe, 18 Washington terrace, and George Graham Titzell Jr., of Hotel Coronado, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Graham Titzell of Kittanning, Pa., has been postponed owing to the illness of Mr. Fristoe, who is a patient at Barnes Hospital. The wedding was to have been solemnized May 4.

Hoover wore on both evenings of the opera, a long coat of sable lined with pearl gray.

With her on the second night of the opera were Mrs. Walter F. Brown, wife of the Postmaster-General; Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of Interior; Commodore and Mrs. Monroe, Mrs. Vernon Kellogg, and again her sister and uncle, Mrs. Jean Large and William Henry. As on the first night, the party was late in arriving.

Of much more than usual interest on the opening night of the grand opera season, was the fact that, besides Mrs. Hoover, two former first ladies of the land, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and Mrs. William Howard Taft, were present. Mrs. Taft, who organized and for some years conducted the Cincinnati Symphony, never misses good music, but one had to look long over the crowded house before finding her. She sat in the front row of the balcony with a group of intimates and showed great enjoyment in the opera.

Mrs. Wilson occupied a seat on the orchestra circle, chatting with Representative Ruth Bryan Owen.

When the Vice President entered the opera house, accompanied by his sister, Mrs. Gann and her husband, Edward Everett Gann, they attracted no end of attention. They went at once to the box of the Ambassador of Cuba and Senora De Ferrara, and Mrs. Gann occupied the place of honor at the right of the Ambassador with Mr. Gann on his left. Just back of them sat the Vice President and on his right was Senora De Ferrara, an exceptionally handsome and winsome Cuban lady. Mrs. Gann wore a rich gown of silver lace embroidered in brilliants and emeralds, and her evening coat of velvet showed a deep white fur collar.

It thus fell to the lot of Mrs. Gann, who was the center of the precedence discussion recently, to show for a second time within a week how she should be seated. The first occasion was Tuesday night at the D. A. R. congress when the Washington auditorium held 5000 richly dressed women. The Cuban Ambassador, Senor Ferrara, a speaker, took his place at the left of the President General, Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, while Mrs. Gann sat at her right.

The largest reception in the White House since March 4 was held this week with the President and Mrs. Hoover receiving several thousand members and delegates to the D. A. R. congress.

The Congressional Club at its weekly tea was entertained by Mrs. Hope Summers Witherell of Evanston, Ill., daughter of Representative and Mrs. John William Summers of Walla Walla, Wash., who gave the program of readings and recitations. The club was open to all of the delegates to the D. A. R. convention, with the hostesses of the afternoon coming from almost every state of the Union. Mrs Summers, one of the most active members and officers of the club, was head hostess for the afternoon.

A musicale later in the week was attended by a comparatively small group of the friends of the President and Mrs. Hoover, Lawrence Tibbett giving a program of song. The artist had sung for the President and Mrs. Hoover in their S street home and had been promised that he should sing in the White House.

Lindenwood College To Hold 'Playday'

LINDENWOOD COLLEGE at St. Charles will institute a new idea in spring sports on next Saturday when the college athletic association sponsors a "playday." This is to be an all-day affair to which 25 members each of athletic associations from Missouri University, Washington University and Mary Institute are invited. The day's program consists of field events, games and various spring activities. After luncheon members of the Lindenwood A. A. will give several tap dances. In accordance with rules of the association, to which the Lindenwood Association belongs, there can be no intercollegiate competition in athletics. Playday will feature the separation of each university and college team into color teams which will promote a friendly spirit.

Miss Anne Duggan, head of the physical education department, and Miss Marie Reihert, assistant in the physical education department, will act as advisors of the Lindenwood A. A., of which Miss Josephine Bowman of La Porte, Ind., is president. Miss Helen Weber of Kirkwood, Mo., Miss Ruth Clements of Joliet, Ill., Miss Lorraine Robie of Springfield, Ill. and Miss Catherine Orr of Danville, Ill., are chairman of the committees.

Radio Program Given By Women's Clubs

THE radio programs, which have been given every Saturday at 5:45, over Station KWK, under the direction of Mrs. W. ... Ebert and Mrs. George W. Cot... man of the Eighth District Mis... souri Federation of Women... Clubs, have been changed fro... that day to the same hour Friday.

On April 20, Mrs. B. Lyma... Britt explained her plan of or... ganizing Junior Clubs in the Eight... District. Following her, Mrs. I... Johnson of the St. Louis Woman's Auxiliary to Railway Mail Associa... tion, played "Schubert's Impromp... tu in A Flat." Miss Alves Long, who is State and District chair... man of International Relations, will be the speaker April 27.

"An Unfinished Tapestry" was the title of a prize-winning story written by Mrs. W. D. Bassett, ... the Webster Groves Monday Club, in the short story contest conduct... ed by Mrs. D. H. Kremer of the Literature and Reciprocity Com... mittee.

The Executive Board of the Eighth District met Wednesday at the Town Club. Mrs. J. K. Strib... ling, county secretary of the Eighth District, was chairman of an independent citizens' committee which succeeded in placing a second woman, Mrs. C. C. Austin, on the Webster Groves school board in a recent election.

ANNOUNCING THE

FIRST COAT EVENT OF ITS KIND EVER HELD IN ST. LOUIS

THE FIRST TIME that any St. Louis store, to our knowledge, has been able to offer at this time of year such FASHIONS . . . such QUALITIES . . . such WORKMANSHIP . . . such VALUES at this unbelievably low price. It's an event that may be termed a "merchandising scoop" . . . because only through a marvelous purchase, the sort that occurs but seldom, if at all, in a store's history, is it possible to offer such qualities.

A Complete Showing of 30 Frocks and Gowns, Including Beach Pajamas and Lingerie

Miss Florence Layton, a prominent stylist of New York City, will give interesting fashion talks at 11:30 and 2:30 each day, on the advantages and fashion-rightness of Svelda fabrics, and the highlights of fashions for Spring and Summer. Mannequins will display smart frocks and new lingerie fashioned of Svelda fabrics.

*Bemberg is a soft yarn made from pure fibres, spun into very fine threads by an exclusive, stretch-spinning process, which gives it unusual strength and elasticity. It has a natural lustre similar to silk, and contains filaments of the same number and fineness.

The marriage of Miss Isabel Blood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Blood, to Mervin J. Warren took place Friday evening at the First Presbyterian Church, with Dr. David M. Skilling officiating. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin. A bertha of duchesse lace belonging to her grandmother outlined the close-fitting bodice. The skirt was bouffant, with a scalloped uneven hemline. The court train of the satin was bordered with Venetian lace, also an heirloom of the family. On the foot of the train was placed a fluffy bow of tulle and orange blossoms. The veil of tulle was fastened to the hair with a coronet of the duchesse lace and orange blossoms. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Florence Blood, and the bridesmaids, Miss Eleanor Blood, Miss Helen Blood and Miss Helen Markham, wore frocks of the same design, but in different shades of tulle. They carried arm bouquets of yellow roses, daisies and calla lilies. The small flower girl, Patsy Becker, wore a frock of deep yellow organdie and carried a basket of yellow rose petals. Mr. Warren had as his best man Lawrence Miller. The groomsmen were John Pollock, Gramont Altenbernd, James Hoxie, Eugene Baker, Edward Holscher and William Becker.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Warren departed for a motor trip through the East. They will take an apartment in St. Louis on their return.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Becker of St. Charles were the host and hostess at a dinner last Sunday, with Mrs. Philip Custer Baker of Detroit as the guest of honor. Mrs. Baker and her small daughter, Thelma Laurine, are the guests of her mother, Mrs. William John Parker of 19 Lockwood avenue.

Mrs. A. W. Hamilton of Trevillian Terrace will be the hostess for her sewing club at luncheon Tuesday afternoon.

The Webster Groves Theater Guild will present "Aren't We All" at the High School Auditorium Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Mrs. H. C. Butler is in charge of the presentation.

Mrs. George L. Neuhoff Jr. was the hostess for her bridge club at luncheon Wednesday afternoon

The St. Louis Horticultural Society will meet at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Webster Groves High School Auditorium. The purpose of the meeting is to further interest in beautifying the gardens and communities. Looking your Best?

EVERY woman has those "better days" when she looks her best. And every woman knows that there are times, sad to say . . . when she looks badly.

No cream or powder or rouge in the world can bring a miracle to pass . . . but the thousands of smart women who know and use Boyer Cosmetics, know that the "bad days" are fewer and farther between . . . and the "best days" are far more frequent than they used to be.

These Creams and Powders will work wonders on every complexion . . . they are consistently good . . . and a guarantee backs this statement!

Ask for Boyer Beauty Aids at your druggist's. There is a complete line of Creams, Lotions, Face Powders, Rouges and Lipsticks.

Celebrating 79 Years of Progress

Vandervoort's ANNIVERSARY MONTH

Beginning Monday—An Exhibit by

Contemporary St. Louis Artists

DURING the remainder of April and all of May, St. Louis will have the opportunity of viewing the works of her painters, sculptors and other artists from a new angle. The paintings, statuary and other art objects will be arranged in the Sixth Floor Gallery where decorations and furnishings provide an artistic background.

Miss Margaret Breen
—will display thirty-five original costume dolls designed as models for costumes that have been worn at important social and theatrical events.

John J. Eppensteiner
—will show paintings and screens of the Modern School.

Mrs. Sheila Burlingame
—will display oils, batik, wood block engraving, terra-cotta and bronze.

Frank Nudenscher
—will exhibit paintings, many of which are of particular local interest.

This exhibit will be followed at the end of two weeks by the work of other St. Louis artists, and due notice will be given in the daily papers as changes are made in the display.

Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off

ADVERTISEMENT

Don't Show Your Age!

Don't let wrinkles tell the world you're getting older. Remove them instantly—look years younger! Simple, safe, scientific formula erases every one. Get two ounces of eptol at druggist, mix at home with water and teaspoon of glycerine. Spread lightly over face, neck and around eyes. The starved tissues absorb it rapidly as you work into pores until gone. Then see the instant transformation! — wrinkles, frowns, age lines, crow's-feet—gone! Leaves the skin smooth, firm, lovely as a flower. You can depend on sure results with genuine eptol—be sure you get it. If blackheads trouble—remove them this easy way. Never squeeze — large pores will result. Safest way to dissolve them all at one time. Ask your druggist for two ounces powdered calonite, sprinkle on hot, wet towel, apply and presto!—they're gone! You've never seen anything like it. Results positively marvelous—even in worst cases.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

THE annual election of the Wednesday Club will be held Wednesday, with the polls open from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. Nine new officers, four members on the Membership Committee and three of the House Committee are to be elected.

At 3 o'clock the annual business meeting will take place.

Members of the Wednesday Club Board serve for two years, officers being elected one year and directors the other.

Tom Dunn will present his prize-winning one-act play written in Prof. W. B. G. Carson's drama class at Washington University last year, at the College Club's meeting Tuesday afternoon. Last fall it received the annual Wilson prize of $50.

The cast is, with one exception, the same as trained for the former presentation. It is as follows:

Miriam.....Mrs. R. H. Olson
Alty.....Mary Wickenhauser
Brandon.....William Ohle
Stranger.....Willis Wager

The scene of the play is the foothills of East Tennessee. The action hinges on the fright of two women at the approach of Halley's comet.

There will be another one-act play presented by a cast from the Little Theater of Washington University.

Tea will be served preceding the plays. The hostesses will be Miss Virginia Carter, Miss Gertrude Blodgett and Mrs. William J. Dick, who will be assisted by Mrs. Harry A. Collins, Mrs. Jacob Wallach, Mrs. Elmer Lacey and Mrs. W. B. G. Carson, alumnae of Washington University.

Wednesday the Vocational Opportunities Committee will give a tea for the seventh and eighth term girls of the high schools. Mrs. Eugene R. McCarthy will speak on "Home Making." Miss Alves Long will be the hostess.

Thursday the International Relations Study group will meet under the leadership of Mrs. W. J. Dick.

Friday at 1 p. m. the Civics Committee will sponsor a tour through the St. Louis Maternity Hospital, 600 South Kingshighway, in observance of the Community Council Visiting week. The group will assemble in the reception room.

At 2:30 p. m. the Fiction and Drama Study group under the leadership of Mrs. R. S. Davis will have a semi-social meeting for the end of the year. Suggestions for next year will be discussed.

The American Homes department of the Eighth District Federated Clubs will hold its last meeting of the club year Wednesday at 10:30 a. m., in the mothercraft room of St. John's Methodist Church, corner Kingshighway and Washington avenue. Mrs. W. H. Allen will be hostess.

The speakers will be R. L. Duckworth and Mrs. George C. Gerhart, and the president of the Eighth District, Mrs. Charles A. Houts.

The Legislative Committee of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce will hold its regular luncheon meeting at the Town Club tomorrow, with the chairman, Miss Cleta Smith, presiding.

The committee for the blind will meet at 2 p. m. Col. B. Andrews of the Salvation Army will speak, and plans for the annual outing for the blind will be discussed. The chairman, Mrs. Frank Emery, will preside.

The Tuesday Literary Club has voted to send to the biennial meeting of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, May 6-9, in Hannibal, the following delegates: Mrs. G. H. Owen, president; Mrs. Arthur Branch, Mrs. Walter E. Tarlton, Mrs. E. O. Pope. Alternates, Mrs. B. G. Coyle and Mrs. Charles Witter.

Mrs. S. H. Voyles was leader for the program April 16, and reviewed the life of George Sand. "Mme. Sand," by Philip Moeller, was presented by Mrs. Charles Redehaver.

A benefit bridge party was given April 13 at the Gatesworth Hotel for Sorority Circle by four of its members—Mrs. A. E. Carmichael, Mrs. W. H. McClung, Mrs. Theresa Buedingen and Mrs. R. C. McKelley.

POLICEMAN CLEARED IN FATAL SHOOTING

Killing of Leo G. Hermans by Neal Thurman Accidental, Inquest Verdict.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the case of Leo G. Hermans, 29 years old, 2217A Sidney street, shot and killed Thursday night, when he fled from police who sought to question him.

Testimony was similar to statements made shortly after the killing. Police Lieutenant William Meyer and Special Officers Neal Thurman and John Brett decided to question Hermans when they saw him in a Negro neighborhood, at Twenty-second and Walnut streets. The police stopped their automobile, and Lieut. Meyer called to Hermans: "Mister—Police officers—Wait a minute." Officer Thurman got out of the car, flashed his badge and said: "Police."

For some unexplained reason, Hermans turned and ran into a nearby alley. Officer Thurman gave chase, calling on Hermans to halt, and drawing his revolver as a precaution on entering the dark alley. Thurman did not intend to shoot, he testified, but the revolver was discharged accidentally when he stumbled over an obstruction in the alley, the bullet striking Hermans in the back.

"I was a fool for running — I knew you were police officers all the time," Hermans said before his death, according to the policemen.

Two Negroes gave corroborating testimony. Eddie Livingston, 2233 Walnut street, testified he was in the alley, heard the command to halt and saw the policeman stumble. Ruby Wright, 2225½ Walnut, testified she heard Hermans ordered to halt. She said Hermans had been standing at Twenty-second and Walnut for two hours, and that he had been accosted by a Negro girl, with whom he held a conversation, before she walked away.

A lawyer representing Hermans' brother and sister cross-examined the witnesses.

At the conclusion of the inquest, the three policemen approached Hermans' brother and expressed regret over the shooting.

ROOSEVELT SCHOOL DRIVE

Mothers' Circle to Seek New Members; Officers to Be Installed.

A membership drive will be opened by the Roosevelt High School Mothers' Circle in connection with the installation of new officers at 8 p. m. Saturday at the school, 3220 Hartford street.

Dr. David C. Todd, member of the School Board, will install the following new officers: Mrs. John Boe, president; Mrs. W. A. Riddick, first vice president; Mrs. Guy Randall, second vice president; Mrs. Carolyn E. Rens, recording secretary; Mrs. Frank Sturgis, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George Snodgrass, treasurer, and Mrs. Anthony F. Ittner, president emeritus. A number of guests of honor, all interested in various phases of child welfare, will be introduced by Mrs. Ittner and give one-minute talks.

Clara E. Thoms will present a group of songs.

PUPPET SHOW AT ART MUSEUM

Mrs. Helen Harman Joseph to Give "Forty Thieves."

A marionette presentation of "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves" will be given by Mrs. Helen Harman Joseph, writer and manager of puppet shows, at 4 p. m. tomorrow, in Gallery 16 of the City Art Museum. The show will be free to the public.

Mrs. Joseph has established a puppet theater in Cleveland, O., where shows are regularly given. She also tours the country, giving the plays, based on various folk-tales of the world, in hospitals, orphanages, museums, stores and clubs. She contributed the article on the history of puppets for the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Place for Lotto Party Changed.

The lotto and card party to be given tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock by the Mothers' Circle of Longfellow School, Ivanhoe and Smiley avenues, to raise money for playground equipment, will not be held in a Wellston hall, as at first announced, but in a hall at 7458 Manchester avenue. The change of place is due to the lotto raids in Wellston by St. Louis County officers.

HOW SCHOOL LAW REVISION WOULD AFFECT ST. LOUIS

City Will Lose at Least $80,000 a Year State Income if Bill Is Passed by Legislature.

TEACHING STANDARDS WOULD REMAIN SAME

Only Requirements in Rural Districts Are to Be Lowered by Act Now Before the House.

By FLOYD F. CARROLL,
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 20.—Proposed revision of all of the public school laws of Missouri, through a bill now pending in the House, which lowers the eligibility standards for rural teacher certificates and changes some of the methods of apportioning State school funds, will reduce the St. Louis share of the State school fund from $80,000 to $100,000 a year, but will not otherwise affect the city's schools.

The bill has been ordered engrossed in the House and will go on the calendar for passage as soon as the engrossment of the 157-page bill is completed.

Changes proposed in apportionment of the State school fund will affect in some degree the funds alloted to each of the approximately 9000 public school districts in Missouri. This fund is created by setting aside annually one-third of the receipts of the State general revenue fund.

Neither the advocates nor opponents of the proposed changes have worked out the exact effect on the apportionments. Advocates of the amendments have admitted St. Louis would lose about $80,000 a year, and State Superintendent of Schools Charles A. Lee said the St. Louis loss might reach $100,000 a year.

$4,244,047 School Fund.

The apportionment of State school funds totaled $4,244,047 in 1928. Of this amount St. Louis received $299,300, based on the number of teachers and their annual salaries, and $123,672 based on days' attendance by pupils. The loss would be in the apportionment based on pupils.

The preesnt school fund apportionments, in the order made, include 12 different kinds of special aids and conditional allowances to part of the districts, a fixed scale of allowances determined by the number of teachers employed and their salaries, and the balance after those items are paid is apportioned on the basis of days' attendance by pupils.

The principal change proposed is in the apportionment to districts on a teacher basis. The present law provides graduated allowances ranging from a minimum of $25 a year for each teacher receiving less than $1000 in salary a year, in a district with less than 15 pupils, to $100 a year for each teacher paid more than $1000 a year. All but four of the 2980 full-time teachers in St. Louis who were included in the 1928 apportionment, were in the $100 classification. Public schools of the State employed 24,718 full-time teachers in 1928.

The bill provides $100 shall be apportioned for each teacher, irrespective of salary or other conditions. The increase through this requirement, after deducting offsets in special aid allowances, would be nearly $500,000 a year, it was said. This would reduce by that sum the amount available for apportionment on the pupils' attendance basis, and St. Louis would suffer its loss on that item.

Lower Standards for Teachers.

The bill would lower the standard of eligibility for issuance of first, second and third grade teacher certificates by county superintendents, by requiring applicants to have completed only two years of high school work. The present law requires four years of high school work. The applicants must pass examinations by county superintendents in prescribed subjects.

Schools in small communities and rural districts chiefly would be affected by this amendment, which is being fought by State Superintendent Lee as a backward step in teacher standards. The effect of the amendment was counteracted to some extent by another amendment, adopted by the House requiring applicants for certificates to be at least 18 years of age.

No change is made in the present law governing issuance of State teacher certificates by the State Superintendent, after an examination.

The proposed lowering of standards would not affect St. Louis schools, Lee said, because the St. Louis Board of Education fixes high standards, including certain college credits.

Substitute Bill Submittted.

The bill originally was introduced by Representatives Bales (Dem.) of Shannon County, and Freeland (Rep.) of Taney County, as a purely revision measure, to eliminate duplications and condense and clarify the school laws. The House Committee on Education approved a committee substitute, written largely by Bales and Freeland, which amended existing laws in addition to revising them. The substitute was engrossed by the House.

Other amendments in the bill deal principally with duties of County School Superintendents, reduce the requirement for Negro schools from 15 pupils in a district to eight, additional special aid for third-class high schools, establishment of high schools in districts with an area of 64 square miles or more, and make it possible for all rural districts to participate in special aid funds, if voting of the maximum school tax does not meet requirements.

In making this observation, the journal of the Holy See repeated what Bismarck said in his day when he came to an agreement with the Holy See, promising to desist in his persecution of the Catholics. One of the press polemics which took place only a short while before the conciliation was that between the Osservatore Romano and certain Italian papers, which maintained that there could be no better solution of the Roman question than the indefinite continuation of the state of conflict inaugurated on Sept. 20, 1870. This concept did not respond to the dictates of justice, for he who has committed an act of violence ought to feel the duty of reparation. Nor was it practically useful, for although the conditions existing for the Holy See after Sept. 20, 1870 might have undergone improvement, there would always have remained great difficulties and inconveniences, while the situation, not governed by clear regulations and reciprocal undertakings, was such that it might at any time assume a gravity full of undesirable dangers.

Pacification Long Planned.

On more than one occasion, in the past the Holy See had found itself in unpleasant circumstances owing to the activity of factions in Italy which transformed legitimate Italian national aspirations into an impious war against the Catholic religion and its head. It was a task worthy of the wisdom of the Roman pontiffs to find a way of removing, as far as it was possible, these dangers. While it was not possible to exclude absolutely such dangers, it was desirable to render them as remote as possible through solemn accords and undertakings by which the Holy See should have, in the international field, even in connection with Italy, a defined position regulated by undertakings not easily upset.

This is so true that not only the present reigning pontiff, Pius XI, but all his predecessors always had the idea of effecting a pacification with Italy as soon as there should be an Italian government sufficiently strong and courageous to recognize the fundamental and inalienable rights of the Catholic Church and the position which the Holy See should occupy in consequence of them. If other people did not succeed in bringing about this pacification, this was because a government of the foregoing nature had not appeared in Italy.

Awaited Strong Government.

It is well known that plans and attempts to settle the Roman question had always gone on. If, previously, such attempts had led to no result, this was because the Holy See had always had to deal with governments that were weak or unstable, or lacking in good will. The Holy See, on its part, has always offered its hand with proposals of peace, but only now has it found some one who has wished and been able and known how to take that hand. This must be clearly stated to those who seek to describe the Lateran accord as the alliance of theocracy with reaction. The Catholic

Accord With Italy, Recently Accomplished, Long Planned, Cardinal Cerretti Declares

It Awaited Only "An Italian Government Courageous Enough to Recognize Inalienable Rights of Church."

BY BONAVENTURA CARDINAL CERRETTI,
(Formerly Papal Under-Secretary of State, Secretary of Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs. One time Apostolic Nuncio to France, Apostolic Nuncio to Australia, and Unitore of the Apostolic Delegation in Washington.)

ARTICLE II, in a Series of Three.

VATICAN CITY, April 20.

THE pacification between the Holy See and Italy brought about on Feb. 11 by the signing of the Lateran agreements, although a new fact, is not so to the extent that such pacification was never before contemplated.

This was, indeed, natural, because the church had never supposed, and no one outside the church has ever imagined, that the state of conflict with Italy could last indefinitely. As the Osservatore Romano itself said last year on the recurrence of the date of Sept. 20, anniversary of the entry of Italian troops in Rome, war is not an institution, and no prolonged conflict can ever yield benefits comparable to those of a state of peace.

In making this observation, the journal of the Holy See repeated what Bismarck said in his day when he came to an agreement with the Holy See, promising to desist in his persecution of the Catholics. One of the press polemics which took place only a short while before the conciliation was that between the Osservatore Romano and certain Italian papers, which maintained that there could be no better solution of the Roman question than the indefinite continuation of the state of conflict inaugurated on Sept. 20, 1870. This concept did not respond to the dictates of justice, for he who has committed an act of violence ought to feel the duty of reparation. Nor was it practically useful, for although the conditions existing for the Holy See after Sept. 20, 1870 might have undergone improvement, there would always have remained great difficulties and inconveniences, while the situation, not governed by clear regulations and reciprocal undertakings, was such that it might at any time assume a gravity full of undesirable dangers.

Pacification Long Planned.

On more than one occasion, in the past the Holy See had found itself in unpleasant circumstances owing to the activity of factions in Italy which transformed legitimate Italian national aspirations into an impious war against the Catholic religion and its head. It was a task worthy of the wisdom of the Roman pontiffs to find a way of removing, as far as it was possible, these dangers. While it was not possible to exclude absolutely such dangers, it was desirable to render them as remote as possible through solemn accords and undertakings by which the Holy See should have, in the international field, even in connection with Italy, a defined position regulated by undertakings not easily upset.

This is so true that not only the present reigning pontiff, Pius XI, but all his predecessors always had the idea of effecting a pacification with Italy as soon as there should be an Italian government sufficiently strong and courageous to recognize the fundamental and inalienable rights of the Catholic Church and the position which the Holy See should occupy in consequence of them. If other people did not succeed in bringing about this pacification, this was because a government of the foregoing nature had not appeared in Italy.

Awaited Strong Government.

It is well known that plans and attempts to settle the Roman question had always gone on. If, previously, such attempts had led to no result, this was because the Holy See had always had to deal with governments that were weak or unstable, or lacking in good will. The Holy See, on its part, has always offered its hand with proposals of peace, but only now has it found some one who has wished and been able and known how to take that hand. This must be clearly stated to those who seek to describe the Lateran accord as the alliance of theocracy with reaction. The Catholic Church has no prejudices for any form of dynasty, government or regime, as is proved by the fact that in its international relations it deals on exactly the same terms with republics and monarchies.

If the pacification between the Holy See and Italy was effected under the Fascist regime, it is only because this regime has had the courage and authority necessary for rendering justice to the essential demands of the Catholic Church. Only now has the wish expressed by Cardinal Gasparri in June, 1915, been realized when he said that the Holy See awaited the settlement of the Roman question from the sense of justice of the Italian people. Only now has that sense of justice found its expression and interpretation in the Italian Government, whence the pacification became an accomplished fact.

Papal Stand Unaltered.

Nor could it have been otherwise. The change which turned a conflict into a peace did not come about because the Holy See altered the basis of its demands, but because the proposals of the government of Italy were for the first time such that the Holy See could consider them, discuss them on equal terms, and finally accept them.

There has been no change in the basis of the pontifical demands. Even before the Roman question arose on Sept. 20, 1870, when at the beginning of the Nineteenth century Pius VII was despoiled of his states by the conquering omnipotence of Napoleon I, the Pope's resistance was always principally founded, not on the dynastic considerations such as any dispossessed sovereign might have made, but rather on the nature of the pontifical power itself, a spiritual power which for the exercise of its divine mission throughout the world requires effective and visible independence from any other material power of the world. The same position was taken by Pius IX when, from 1860 on, the gradual spoilation of the Church and absorption of the Papal states into the new kingdom of Italy, took place. Since then, all the Popes who have occupied the chair of St. Peter during the deprivation of the temporal sovereignty, assumed the same attitude; from Leo XIII, who in his admirable encyclicals spoke so eloquently and with such profound doctrine about the relations between the Church and the state, to Pius X, who decided that the very words "temporal power" should be eliminated from the phraseology of the Vatican claims and substituted with the words "civil principality" in order to set out thus more clearly the fact that the Pope was not looking for dynastic claims but was prompted solely by the exigencies imposed upon him by his spiritual mission, to Benedict XV who during the World War showed in the most convincing way that he did not intend to make the Roman question a weapon against Italy in the course of international conflicts. During the aforesaid pontificates, the basis of papal claims was con-

How Farm Relief Bill Designed to Fix Prices Would Work in Practice

House Measure Embodying President Hoover's Idea Provides for Price-Regulation in Fact While Avoiding the Term.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 20.

THE battle over farm relief has been resumed. Two bills covering the subject have been introduced in the special session of Congress called by President Hoover to deal with the farm question and the tariff.

One bill comes from the House Committee on Agriculture. It embodies the ideas of Mr. Hoover as expressed in his campaign speeches and his address to the special session. The central feature of the bill is a proposed Federal Farm Board with wide powers, having at its command a revolving fund of half a billion dollars out of which to make loans to farmers' organizations for the purpose of assisting them in the "orderly marketing" of crops.

"We propose," says the House Committee in its report on the bill, "the creation of a Federal Farm Board, with the broadest powers ever conferred by the Government upon any agency to guide and assist any group of citizens."

This is the board which President Hoover described in his message as "a great instrumentality, of a strength and importance equal to that of those which we have created for transportation and banking" — respectively the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Reserve Board.

Debenture Plan in Senate Bill Bone of Contention.

The second of the two bills has been reported from the Senate Committee on Agriculture. Like the House bill, it gives legislative form to the Hoover program. It, too, provides for the establishment of a powerful Federal Farm Board and fixes the size of the revolving fund at half a billion dollars. It is like the House bill also in its rejection of the "equalization fee."

Unlike the House bill, the Senate measure goes beyond the Hoover specifications and proposes that the Farm Board, at its option, shall have the right at any time to put into effect the so-called debenture plan.

It is around the debenture plan that the fight now centers. The plan was rejected by the House Committee on Agriculture, and House administration leaders say that their branch of Congress will never accept it. Sentiment for it in the Senate is apparently stronger. With the Progressive Republicans favoring the plan, on the ground that it is the only available method for "making the tariff effective for the farmer," it could be put through the Senate with the support of the Democrats. Whether this support will be solidly given is yet to be seen.

Hoover Thought to Count on House to Squelch Debenture.

Much depends on the attitude of the President. Members of the Senate committee say that an opportunity was given him to put his foot down flatly upon the plan, while the bill was under consideration by the committee, but failed to do so. The inference is drawn that he is relying on the House leaders to squelch the proposal.

In describing his plan during the campaign, the President said that "it is no proposal of subsidy or fee or tax upon the farmer." This meant that he was against the equalization fee. If it also meant that he is opposed to any form of subsidy for the farmer, then he is against the debenture plan; for the debenture plan, as its advocates freely concede, contemplates a direct subsidy from the Federal Treasury. Mr. Hoover, however, has not publicly made any explicit statement for or against the plan.

"I do not see," said a Progressive Republican Senator, "how anyone who was for the equalization fee can now oppose the debenture plan. Nor, to be quite frank, do I see how Mr. Hoover, who was against the equalization fee, can now be for the debenture plan."

Before we take up that plan in detail, let us try to strip away some of the camouflage with which the farm problem is surrounded in all political discussion. The Post-Dispatch essayed this task during the campaign, in an article published Oct. 25, under the title "The A B C of the farm problem and opposing relief programs." It had done the same thing in previous articles, which showed that all farm relief proposals, whatever the language employed, meant in the last analysis the development of some form of crop control that would enable the farmer to get a better price for his products.

Concerning the "A B C" article, Senator McNary of Oregon, one of the authors of the McNary-Haugen bill and the present chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, said that it was a "clear and accurate" statement of the problem and of the opposing Democratic and Republican relief proposals.

What Equalization Fee Was Expected to Accomplish.

To sum up again: The Democratic candidate in the last campaign espoused the "principle" of the equalization fee. The equalization fee was a method of crop control through compulsory 100 per cent organizations of farmers, and its advocates were fond of saying that only through this compulsory, 100 per cent co-operation could farm relief be realized.

The fee was described as a plan for making the tariff effective for the farmer. It contemplated that a Federal Board, through selected agencies, should buy up the whole of a crop of which there might be a surplus—wheat for example—and take the surplus off the domestic market to keep it from beating down the domestic price. It was an effort, in other words, to keep an estimated 200,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat from fixing the price of an estimated total crop of 800,000,000 bushels. The idea was that the 200,000,000 bushels would be sold abroad at the world price, and the 600,000,000 would be sold in this country at the world price plus the tariff.

Purpose Now to Give Farmer Best Price for His Crop:

The tariff on wheat is 42 cents a bushel. Assuming a world price of $1 a bushel, the domestic price would have been fixed at $1.42. Whatever loss the board might temporarily have had to assume in dumping part of the crop abroad at the world price would have been recouped by a per bushel assessment against the whole of the benefited crop —that is to say, in the case of wheat, by an assessment against the 800,000,000 bushels. This assessment would have been collected from the farmers as an "equalization fee."

The net result of the operation would be been to give the farmer the fixed price of $1.42 a bushel minus whatever might have been the "equalization fee." It was commonly estimated that the fee in a normal crop year would work out at about 10 cents. That being the case, the farmer would have received an average price of $1.32, or 32 cents more than he would have received if his return had been determined by the world price of $1.

Mr. Hoover, like Mr. Coolidge, rejected the equalization fee as a governmental price-fixing device and offered as a substitute a scheme of voluntary co-operation among farmers. He proposed that the Government advance money to assist the farmers in building up "farmer-owned and farmer-controlled stabilization corporations" which would protect the industry against disastrously low prices.

He said, in effect, that the Government should help the farmers to help themselves.

It was his thought that the co-operative organizations of farmers, given sufficient financial backing and assisted with expert advice from the Government, would be so attractive as to draw within their membership a sufficient number of producers to accomplish the same result—crop control — as would be accomplished by the 100 per cent compulsory co-operation advocated by the McNary-Haugenites.

President's Idea Embodied in House Committee Bill.

This idea of making co-operation among farmers attractive, and of enabling them through co-operation to control their marketing processes and consequently the prices of their products, is the heart and center of the Hoover plan. It is the heart and center of the administration-approved bill which has been reported out by the House Committee on Agriculture.

The object of both the equalization fee and of the stabilization corporations proposed in the Hoover plan is the same—higher prices for the farmer. There is general agreement that he should have higher prices, so that he may approach more nearly to the prosperity enjoyed by the tariff-protected manufacturing industries. The method by which this object is sought is the same in both plans. Under whatever name it may be concealed, the method is that of fixing prices to be paid by the consumer.

The difference between the discarded McNary-Haugen plan and the Hoover plan is simply that the one proposed price-fixing by a governmental agency, while the other proposes that the farmers themselves be allowed to fix prices. Like the McNary-Haugen plan, the Hoover idea is based upon effective control of crops, or, if you please, upon a "cornering" of crops. This cornering is for a benevolent purpose, but there is no reason why anyone should be blinded to its real meaning. If there is objection to price fixing on behalf of the farmer the answer is that we are faced with an emergency, that the welfare of the whole country is dependent on the welfare of the farmer, and that, in any event, what is being demanded for the farmer is no more than what is practiced by industry through its control of production and in some cases through its trade-association agreements and exchange of information.

Price-Fixing in Fact With Name Camouflaged.

Of course the term "price-fixing," which is presumed to connote a process held in abhorrence by the great majority of the American people, is not used either by Mr. Hoover or by the bills now before Congress. But what are the stabilization corporations designed to do? It will be their function to keep farm prices from being depressed by surpluses. If a surplus threatens to bring down the price of a given commodity to the farmer, the corporation handling that commodity will step in, and, with the money furnished initially by the Government, will withdraw a sufficient supply from the market to insure the "stabilization" of the price. This stabilization of the market, or regulation, or control, whatever you may please to call it, is, of course, a method of price-fixing.

This power of the stabilization corporations to fix prices is tacitly recognized by the House bill when it says that the policy of Congress is "to protect, control and stabilize the current of interstate and foreign commerce in the marketing of agricultural

France Not Jealous of Italy, Says Herriot in Plea for New Era of Peace Between Them

Former Premier Calls for End of Attacks on His Nation and Hopes for Reconciliation Among Peoples of World.

BY EDOUARD HERRIOT,
Former Premier of France.

PARIS, April 20.

THE recent meeting between Sir Austen Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini produced considerable comment. The Italian press rejoiced over the meeting, interpreting the conference as a sign of a new era in Italo-Anglo relations and explaining Chamberlain's move as a step to wipe out the bad impression caused by the Franco-British naval compromise.

KEYSTONE VIEW
EDOUARD HERRIOT

It was noticeable that the attacks against the British Foreign Office stopped abruptly and the hostile attitude of the Italian delegates at the disarmament conference changed, as is seen from their unanimous action in their demands to the Sofia Government, their agreement as to the steps to be taken regarding Lithuania and by the general friendly attitude which prevailed. Heretofore, "Il Tevere," disgruntled, had suggested to Mussolini an alliance with Germany or even Russia, contending that a peace based upon an alliance with France or England would be "hell for the younger nations."

The interview at Florence between Chamberlain and Mussolini changed all that. As Friar Laurence says in "Romeo and Juliet," "Holy St. Francis, what a change is here!" The statement of various philosophers that love and hate go together was true in this case, for the Italian press has now turned against France.

France Under Attack.

Poor France! For two months she has been insulted and abused. "Popolo d'Italia" accused her of imperialism, an accusation made by Andrea Torre. The same paper criticised our Mediterranean policy and called my good friend, M. Leygues, "the French Tirpitz," a name which has caused a great deal of laughter among those knowing the pacifist ideas of our Minister of the Navy. M. Poincare was urged to bring about the dissolution of Parliament and proclaim himself a dictator, a state of affairs which I guarantee he has no desire to bring about.

"Il Tevere" published outrageous insults on our colonial officers and against the admirable corps in our army which has produced such men as Gallieni and Lyautey, and finally everywhere there reappeared the abominable campaign against France which so often has been undertaken—a campaign designed to prove France the country where the greatest scandals occur, the gathering place for all the rogues and anarchists in the world.

It is an old story. Because there exist in Paris certain establishments which are frequented mostly by foreigners, backed financially by business men of questionable reputations, it is circulated about that the majority of the French people spend most of their time in luxurious restaurants and dance halls. Parisians and the whole French people are wrongfully insulted by these stories. The enormous increase in the sums deposited in the savings banks throughout the country is the best answer to these charges and the best proof of the country's morals.

No Reply to Italy.

Insulted as we were by the Italian press, as everyone who reads the Italian papers will agree, we could have replied but did not.

In as much as Italy is seeking a place among the foremost nations of the world and proposes to promulgate new ethical ideas, the men in power in Italy and especially the writers and journalists should put an end to such tactics from which so many nations have suffered. The use of invectives has gone out of fashion. Even dramatists no longer use them. I quote again from the valuable "Romeo." Sampson and Gregory are standing on the Place de Verone, where they have Montagues with their knives. Gregory says, "I will frown as I pass by and let them take it as they like," and Sampson says, "I will bite my thumb at them which is a disgrace to them if they bear it." Montague and Capulet, discontinue your insults, as the prince of playwrights advises you.

The time for these quarrels had passed. For a long time Italy suffered from the same insults she is now heaping upon France and which Dante pointed out to her in Chapter VI of his celebrated "Purgatory." The day has arrived when each nation should respect the other, appreciate the qualities of other nations, and forgive them their faults. This is my idea of the proper attitude today.

Not Jealous of Italy.

We Frenchmen are not jealous of the honor or advantages that Italy can derive from the visit of Sir Austen Chamberlain. For my part, I refuse to bite my thumb. We could no more forget our obligations to the United States than we could be unfaithful to England, who so loyally helped us in the World War. That is one of our virtues.

And now, inasmuch as it proposed to seek a new moral and political statute for the nations of the world, we should like to discard the ancient system of alliances and friendships which are constantly being undone and done over, and which so often inflame national passions, causing new wars in which often national pride plays a bigger part than the best interests of the countries involved.

The conditions are favorable for the creation of a new understanding. In the near future the settlement of the vexing reparations question can, if the various nations act intelligently bring about reconciliation among the peoples of the world and a better understanding of one another's characteristics. In the accomplishment of this important task Italy has a large place reserved for her.

We have none but the most friendly sentiments for the Italian people, but Italy is so sensitive that even the mention of her glorious past irritates her. Mussolini has stated in "Resto del Carlino" that the Italy of today has nothing in common with the Italy of the past.

When, just after the World

The name and address of the author must accompany every contribution, but on request will not be published. Letters not exceeding 200 words will receive preference.

Wildcat Time.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I ASSUMED from the position taken by the Post-Dispatch on the eighteenth amendment (I don't drink) and other proposed laws to regulate the comings and goings of us ordinary people, by fanatics and self-constituted dictators, that you would line up against this nonsensical proposition known as daylight-saving time.

If the Chamber of Commerce or anybody else wants to get up or start their day's work an hour earlier during any certain period, for heaven's sake why don't they do it, and leave the clock and people who no longer believe in Santa Claus alone.

I am an office man, do not play golf and am usually lined up against labor unions, but if they save us from this nonsensical Santa Claus proposition known as daylight-saving time, I, with many others, will certainly feel grateful to them.

Is there no end to the matter of all these imitators of Wayne B. Wheeler, regulating the how and when of our (Lincoln's common people) comings and goings?

Won't you help save us from the fanatics and their "wildcat time?"

JUST A CITIZEN.

Opposes Sunday Blue Laws.

JUST what is wrong with Representative Dubois? Why should the State of Missouri have blue laws on Sunday? I think it is a shame. What will the poor working men and women do on these days? Sundays are the only days they can participate in hunting, fishing, movies and so forth. Why should they not be allowed these pleasures? I think the Representatives are going crazy, or words to that effect. In my opinion, this United States is not a free country. It is going to the dogs. JAMES MORRISON.

The Plan to Relieve Unemployment.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHY blame President Hoover for non-employment and hard times? If Uncle Sam would appropriate $100,000,000,000 for improvements, etc., throughout the country, the same number of people, now working, would be working overtime. Married women would go to work; retired merchants would resume their business; farmer boys would leave the farms; city firemen would work on off days; day workers would operate moving picture cameras at night; parents would get "permits" for their children to go to work in factories; pensioned Civil War veterans would come to the aid of their country; landlords, working all week, would paint their houses, etc., on Sundays and holidays—in short, everybody would be working, but the unemployed! The Isolated Tiff Miners.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Post-Dispatch in its effort to help mankind has given a graphic picture of the poverty and struggle in the vicinity of Cannon Mines, Tiff, Cadet and Vineland which are situated about 70 miles from here. These little hamlets are several miles from the Missouri Pacific R. R., excepting Tiff, which is on the right of way.

In wet weather the roads are impassable and only recently a native of Tiff was obliged to park his car just west of the county line and walk 2½ miles into Tiff through ankle-deep mud. This will give an idea of the isolation that surrounds many large families who must depend on the pick and shovel to gain a living in that hilly country, where the women dig side by side with stalwart men.

A few kind words and a little encouragement to these people will create an ambition, in the knowledge they are not forgotten.

A FRIEND OF THE MINERS.

Recipe for the Democratic Party.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN REVIEWING results of the recent election, the public knows who is at fault, and the situation demands a Moses to lead, one with respectable power and decency to represent the great Democratic party, and erase the stain cast upon our Democratic committee for failure to have confidence of the honest Democratic voters in St. Louis.

The apparent trouble is the need of someone with reputation, ability and courage to assume leadership, and it is now high time when all good men must come to the aid of their party. And no greater chance could exist than at this very time for youth to display courage and grasp the situation as before us, by reorganization and replacing men of character, integrity and ability wherever necessary. We must have clean representatives free from mercenary motives. The Democratic party cannot be cursed with representatives who stand idle, look wise, do nothing and face the deplorable situation with snickers and smiles, preventing respectable, honest-minded candidates who really deserve favor on account of proved merit from marching onward. A LOYAL DEMOCRAT.

INSURANCE INVESTMENTS.

The State Senate has passed a bill, by the margin of one vote, which removes almost all restrictions from Missouri insurance companies in the matter of investments. Oil, mining and exploitation companies are on the blacklist. There is a requirement, also, that the corporation must be solvent and have paid dividends of at least 4 per cent for five years. Apart from those conditions the insurance companies are given a free hand in investing their capital stock, reserves and surplus.

In urging this measure Missouri companies cite the fact that other States, particularly in the East, have liberalized investing conditions and that, in consequence they are at a disadvantage in competing with Eastern companies. There is point to that contention. Nevertheless, the restrictions limiting investment to real estate and Government securities —Federal, State, county and municipal bonds—such as have been in force in Missouri, have their "sales value," too. The agent impresses upon the "prospect" the safeguards under which his company operates. He emphasizes the protection guaranteed the policyholder under the law. It is a legitimate "selling talk" and effective.

Still, insurance companies under the "new freedom" of investment are prospering mightily. A foreign concern, the Sun Life Insurance Co. of Montreal, is rated among the most successful insurance companies in the United States. It is said to be the largest individual share-holder in the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. The "Sun" has an absolutely free hand in the matter of investments, and is justifying its liberty.

It is apparent, too, of course, that, as regards the business of investment, we are living in a changing world. Regulations admirable in another day may be impracticable now. Formerly insurance companies found a sure and attractive field for investment in farm lands. But that one-time gilt-edged security is today hazardous. The State cannot intelligently ignore such realities. The capably governed State must needs adapt its regulations to conditions.

It goes without saying that we all want our Missouri insurance companies to prosper. Nobody would handicap them with purported safeguards which, under the law of change, may have become fetters. Yet everybody must realize that this bill presents a problem to the Legislature and to the Administration. Insurance executives, being mortals like the rest of us, are subject to the temptation to take a chance. Unlike the most of us they are the trustees of large funds and the guardians, so to speak, of many people. Moreover, the earning capacity of a life insurance company is not the first consideration of the State. The State's first consideration in the premises is the security of the policy-holder. He is the ward whom the State as the chartering authority must protect.

The bill in question should, and no doubt will, receive the most searching consideration.

LUCKY PAUL REVERE.

They have just celebrated Patriots' Day in Boston and its environs, and part of the ceremony, of course, was a ride by "Paul Revere" to the same villages and towns notified on that momentous day back in 1775. There is no getting round it—and probably nobody wants to get round it—that the patriot's ride was a magnificent piece of work, one that should be justly celebrated, one that is worthy of congratulation.

That is not the only thing the historic Paul Revere may be congratulated on. He may be congratulated on the fact that he is not alive today. If he were we fear that despite his patriotism, despite such time and distance obliterating engines as the airplane, he would find himself utterly unable to make all the calls necessary in the interest of liberty.

The Wanamaker heirs have won a $10,000,000 tax suit from the Government. Why not give them the Cape Cod Canal?

ZINC'S PLACE IN THE SUN.

The American Institute, meeting in St. Louis the past week, was told by Mr. Humphreys of the Federal Trade Commission that it represented an industry which had never come to Washington seeking special privileges or advantages of any sort. The industry proposes to fight it out on that line. The institute has re-elected its present officers and has authorized them to continue the research work which they have been conducting.

This research work is not of a technical character. It has to do with market broadening. Zinc is a metal adapted to a wide variety of uses. It is the purpose of the institute to ascertain the uses for which zinc is the logical commodity, to discover new ones and then, by publicity, to acquaint the market with those facts. Zinc, in a word, is determined to do for itself what copper has brilliantly succeeded in doing for itself. Thanks to research, the world has been made "copper conscious." Zinc intends to make the world zinc conscious.

The zinc operators are practical men. They have no illusions about their job. They know there is a lot of hard work to be done to put zinc in its proper place in the industrial sun, and that it will cost a lot of money. The research budget, it is estimated, will require $250,000 a year, and the operators seem ready to provide the money.

The success of the zinc industry is of economic importance to St. Louis and to the Mississippi Valley. The valley has been called "the world's bread basket." Under the same metaphorical license it might be called the world's zinc mine. The United States produces slightly more than half of the world's zinc. Something more than half of the zinc produced in the United States is mined in the Mississippi Valley in what is known as the Tri-State District, where Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas rub elbows. In that area, say of 1000 square miles, are such Missouri cities as Joplin, Carthage, Webb City, in Kansas, Galena and Baxter Springs, and in Oklahoma, Miami. It is an agricultural and manufacturing country, too, but the prosperity of the district is bottomed on zinc, and the whole Mississippi Valley is in some degree affected, happily or adversely, by the success or failure of the zinc mines. It is a far cry from the British Isles to our trans-Mississippi prairies, but when the coal mines of Wales cease operations the zinc mines of Southwest Missouri feel the pinch. For zinc is a world commodity, subject to industrial fluctuations throughout the world.

Zinc has had tough going for a number of years, due primarily to the overproduction stimulated by the World War, but the zinc miner spits on his hands, grips the shovel a bit tighter and digs in. That is the spirit of the industry, as reflected by the American Zinc Institute. It is bound to win.

THE DEMOCRATS AND THE BUDGET.

Senator Donnelly of the Twenty-seventh Missouri District complains that the Post-Dispatch has unfairly stated the position of the Democratic majority toward budget reform. That is, we charged the Democrats, who control the Senate, had played politics in this matter.

It is wholesome to have a member of the Democratic majority defend it upon this score. Certainly that is vastly preferable to the usual indifference of legislative majorities. We welcome Senator Donnelly's denial, and we moreover admit that to a degree he is right. We have never meant to say that the Democrats in the Senate have held their responsibility lightly. They have shown a more consistent support for the budget reform than either the Republicans in the Senate or Gov. Caulfield. It is due to them chiefly that the Governor's proposal to eliminate State printing from the operations of the central purchasing agency was beaten in the Senate. Two Republicans left the reservation to vote with them. It is also true that the only budget bill which stands a chance to pass the Legislature and actually to accomplish the budget reform the State so much needs is the bill of the Democratic majority in the Senate.

The Democrats are in much better case there than they were when the budget reform was instituted by Gov. Caulfield. The Republican House appointed on the joint committee which was to initiate this legislation, three Republicans and three Democrats, but the Democratic Senate appointed a committee of four Democrats and one Republican. This gave the Democrats a decided majority, and it was one of the first discouragements that budget reform encountered. The Republicans felt that the Democrats were going to give party interest precedence over public interest, and the mass of them became discouraged. Even after the Senate had largely receded from this partisan position, and had resisted all the efforts of political Republicans in the Senate to weaken the budget bill, the Democrats violated the agreement that the Governor should be politically free in making appointments to the Budget Commission. The Senate bill, thanks to Senator Wammack, carries a condition that one of the three members must be a Democrat.

The Post-Dispatch is glad to make this statement. It wishes that it might always find the Democratic majority in the Senate as unpartisan as Senator Donnelly says it has been in trying to give Missouri a budget.

ST. LOUIS WINS.

The long row about the Federal Building site is ended. The Government has decided to put the building on the Municipal Plaza—on the southeast corner of Twelfth and Market streets. Postmaster-General Brown and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon handed down the opinion. They are the court of last resort from which there is no appeal.

The decision is the best that could have been made. The building belongs on the Plaza. Postmaster-General Brown explained that the site was chosen because it was approved and urged by the City Plan Commission, and then summed up the case in a few words. He said:

> When an American city sets up a legal statuto tribunal to revamp the city and when it makes a substantial contribution, as St. Louis has done through its $87,000,000 bond issue, then I think Uncle Sam should co-operate.

As a syllogism that is just about a classic. It leaves nothing to be said. The action itself is, to be sure, a fine esthetic victory for St. Louis, but it is more than that. It is great moral victory, not only for St. Louis but for every city in the country that aspires to beauty.

UNCLE SAM BACKS UP.

Seldom has public opinion in the United States won such a victory as it has just scored against the Jones law. Uncle Sam has backed up. He has instructed his prosecutors that the Jones law is not to mean what it says. That is: "only good strong cases involving commercialism," are to be so severely treated, and all others, such as having a pint on the hip, are to be treated as misdemeanors.

The United States has gone far with the ideal of prohibition, but it retains its good sense. The Jones law sought to make misdemeanors crimes. It proposed, for instance, that to be caught with a flask or a bottle of liquor should be punishable by five years' imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. The murmur that went up from the country when Mr. Coolidge signed this bill was unmistakable. It impelled the Government to caution. The enforcement arm of the Treasury has been studying the situation for some weeks. Advice from District Attorneys throughout the country has been sought. They were asked to report on their local conditions, the attitude of Judges, whether they thought juries would convict under the Jones law, and similar questions designed to furnish a guiding chart for the formulation of a general policy. Mrs. Willebrandt's instructions followed.

Congress can hardly be insensible to such a rebuke from the people. Whatever may be thought at Washington of the necessities of prohibition, the will of the people, as Abraham Lincoln asserted, remains the supreme law. To drink may be at the most immoral. It is not criminal, nor can Congress make the country believe it is criminal. The situation as to the Jones law is exactly that which followed the force bills and the fugitive slave laws. Congress also passed them, but the good sense of the people refused to accept them. The force bills destroyed the old Federalist party. The fugitive slave laws brought on the Civil War.

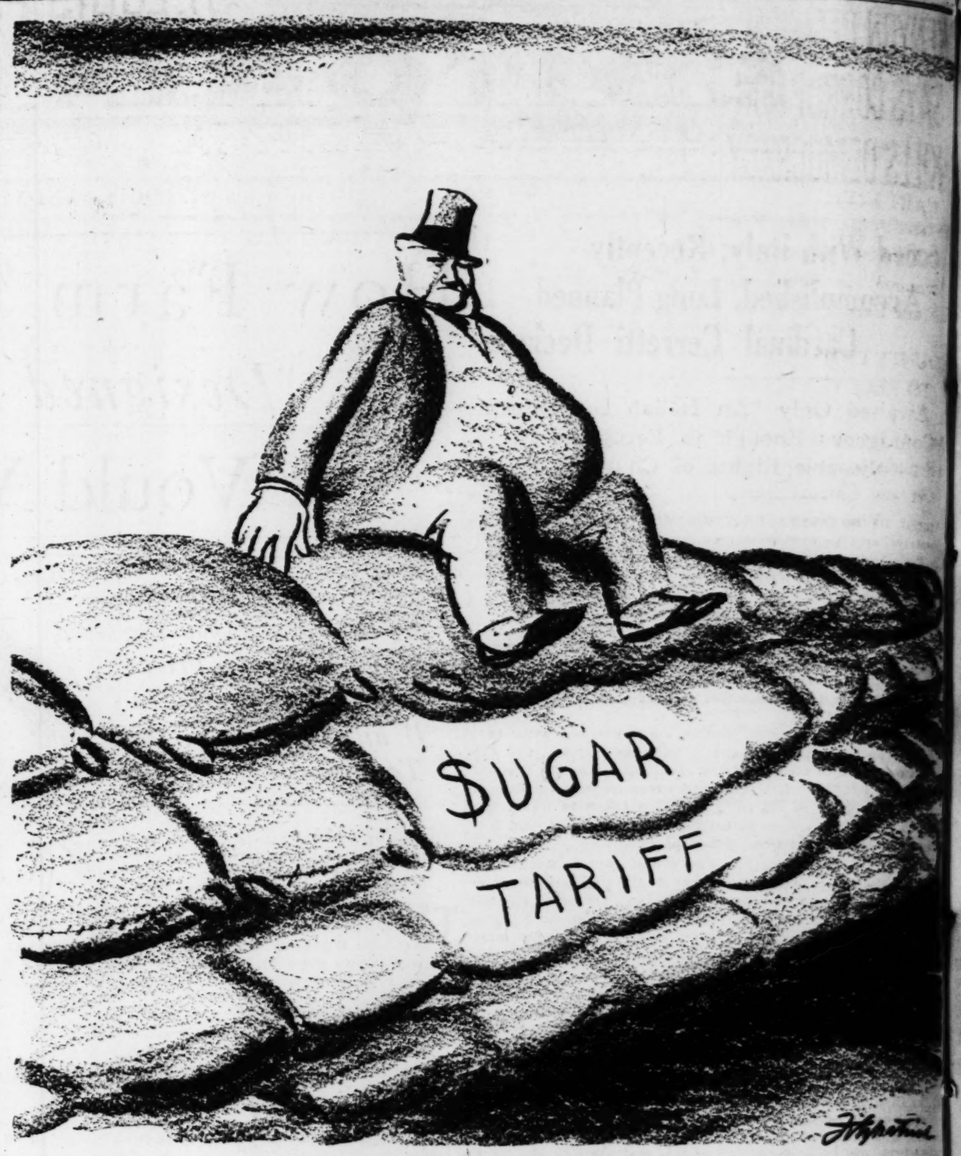
In our opinion the Jones bill has done prohibition only such an injury as any cause can do itself by attempting to put the law on a reluctant people.

THAT MEXICAN TONGUE-TWISTER.

In his interesting description of the air route from Brownsville to Mexico City, Dan C. Robertson said:

> When the visibility is fair, which is usually the case, one may see, upon approaching Mexico City, the snow-capped peaks of Mount Popocatepetl and another mountain.

By "another mountain" Pilot Robertson meant Ixtaccihuatl, that grand and unpronounceable peak which soars 17,338 feet above sea-level. For purposes of international aviation, we fear the names of the two mountains that guard Mexico City must be shortened to "Popo" and "Ix."



RACKETEERING IN A BIG WAY.

Joseph Weldon Bailey, Dissenter

Although the late Senator Bailey was a devout Democrat, it was seldom he was in intellectual sympathy with the dominant sentiment of his party; Cleveland did not please him, nor did Bryan or Wilson; his refusal to compromise his convictions, however, made him a powerful and respected force in Texas politics.

From the Dallas Morning News.

ALTHOUGH it was at Gainesville that former Senator Bailey established his residence on becoming a citizen of Texas, it may be said that his political life in this State had its beginning no less at Sherman than at Gainesville. Both were in the old Fifth Congressional District perhaps the most important centers within its boundaries, and it was as the Representative of that district that Mr. Bailey first made his appearance on the stage of national politics, on which he came to perform with a distinction, and even brilliance, which commanded the attention and respect not only of Texas but of the nation. It adds somewhat to the dramatic manner of his passing that his life ended at the place where, in the political sense, it may be said to have begun. One might easily fancy that, in decreeing that circumstance, fate granted what would have been his wish. For he had no more devoted friends than were those in whose home he died.

The death of Mr. Bailey is a bereavement to tens of thousands in Texas, nor will it be confined only to those who in the days of his political battles were his loyal and admiring followers. For in him were combined courage and ability of such extraordinary degree as to extort admiration from the most inveterate of his foes. His was in all respects a most positive character. Of doubts he knew few if any, nor of opinions; for all his opinions were convictions, and with him it was a point of moral duty to make of his convictions a holy cause not to be compromised. One of that temper inspires his friends with a devotion little less than fanatical in its intensity, and, as a necessary consequence, imbues his enemies with malignance. Yet, for the most part they were the enmities of politics which were tempered with admiration for the abilities of the man.

A generation has grown up since the time when Mr. Bailey was the outstanding figure in the political life of Texas, and within the time of that generation's experience Texas has known no such titanic political contests as those which he fought. One hastily casting his memory back over the last 40 years of the history of this State would recall but one man who dominated the political life of Texas to the degree that Mr. Bailey did, and who commanded the minds and hearts of so large a following in the imperious way that he did. Only Gov. Hogg could be thought to rival him in these respects. But there is the important difference that, whereas Gov Hogg wielded the great power he commanded in ways which brought definite and lasting effects, one will find but few and small evidences of concrete accomplishments in the records of those bodies in which Mr. Bailey worked.

The disparity is to be ascribed chiefly to faults of temperament and intellect, the compensatory penalties of his virtues, which rendered Mr. Bailey almost incapable of co-operating with the majority of those with whom he was politically associated. He had superlatively the courage to oppose a majority, and the courage seemed to put him under temptation to do so. In all the country there was no more devoted Democrat—no more devout Democrat—than Mr. Bailey. Yet the occasions were rare when he was in intellectual sympathy with the dominant sentiment of his party. Three great men came to ascendancy in the Democratic party during the time of Mr. Bailey's political activity, though only two of them during the days of his own public life. It may be said that their individual political proclivities marked the whole gamut of Democratic philosophy. But Mr. Bailey was no more en rapport with Mr. Cleveland than with Mr. Bryan, nor more with Mr. Wilson than with either of the others. Despite their marked differentiations, Mr. Bailey could establish contact with none of them, and while all commanded his ballot and even his voice, though only in a perfunctory way, it was by way of discharging an obligation which he deemed to be the due of his party, and not as an act of intellectual fealty to them.

If there is any just criticism to be made of Mr. Bailey's habit of dissenting, it must be one which regards it as a frailty rather than a fault. Mr. Bailey had delved deep into the history and philosophy of his party; none excelled him in that lore. But it was an erudition which made his the mind of a doctrinaire. And the exigencies of practical politics give to the doctrinaire little more than the opportunity to be a critic of the proposals and acts of men, who, knowing less, are made thereby the more compliant to the demands of expedience. That his criticism was so nearly always adverse in its judgment was a testimony, if not to his wisdom, at least to the integrity of his mind. He was a conservative, even extraordinarily so, at a time when the country took on a mood of liberalism, and his party one even of radicalism. It is an impressive evidence of his intellectual power that in those circumstances he was so long able to keep his place in the front rank of his party and command the respectful attention of a country so little in agreement with him.

THE WONDERFUL PRIMO DE RIVERA.

From the Commonweal.

CONSIDER the strong man of Spain. He has just put down a mutiny of the students. Does he order any executions? Does he shout "Traitors?" No. He expands with forgiveness. He says, in effect, "They are young, full of a beautiful but mistaken courage. Very nice boys. We will close the University of Madrid and send them to other schools for a year." But this is news. Correspondents flock to Madrid. The dictator elaborates his analysis of the movement. "I am convinced that any impartial observer"—here he pauses, recollects that an international exposition is to be held in Barcelona very soon, opens a parenthesis—"and I hope that many will come to Spain as tourists this summer"—closes the parenthesis, and continues, "will soon be convinced by what he sees that the people are well content with the present government." What a man!

WASHINGTON, April 21.

THE game of golf, says John Monteith Jr., can be made much less expensive and at the same time more enjoyable for those who play.

And Monteith is not a professional golfer. He is a scientist. Until a year ago he was connected with the Division of Forage Crops of the United States Department of Agriculture. He knows so much about the business side of golf, however, that the Government was persuaded to give him a leave of absence that he might devote his time in helping the U. S. G. A. grow better grass for putting greens and fairways.

It is not an uncommon thing for golfers to become thoroughly disgusted with the turf around their courses. More than one club management has been changed on account of this. It is Monteith's job to eliminate this condition in so far as possible.

Bobby Jones is one of the strongest supporters of Monteith's work. Bobby has been complaining for quite a while that he is not able to do his best putting on the Bermuda grass greens that prevail in the South. He wants them changed, and has appealed to Monteith.

IN an effort to aid the famous golfer Monteith is endeavoring to have located at Atlanta what he calls a turf garden. By means of this turf garden he will be able to find out just what grass is best suited to the soil and climatic conditions of the South, and club officials in this section will be governed accordingly.

Last season there were established a few demonstration turf gardens on golf courses in different sections of the country. These are supported and cared for by the local clubs, under the direction of the greens section of the U. S. G. A.

They are at Minneapolis, Chicago, Grand Rapids, Detroit, Pittsburg, Boston, New York, Atlantic City and Richmond.

Experiments of all kinds are carried on at the turf gardens. Grass seeds for putting greens and fairways are planted and watched carefully. Various kinds of fertilizers are tried out, and those found to be the most satisfactory are recorded. Cutting experiments are conducted, and the best length for grass on the greens and fairways determined.

And the countless other details necessary to the maintenance of golfers' good disposition are attended to.

MONTEITH says one of the reasons that golf is described as "a rich man's game" is due to the fact that too little attention has been given the turf problem by club officials.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent needlessly on golf courses. A club located in the South will send a golfer to Braeburn or another course. There he will putt on greens that are a source of everlasting joy. He returns home and persuades his club to provide the same greens. Several hundreds of dollars will be spent to no avail. No account has been taken of soil and climatic conditions.

It is Monteith's job to see that clubs who have money to spend on turf spend it wisely.

KENYON DECISION SAYS CORRUPTION KILLS DEMOCRACY

Federal Judge Holds That It Menaces Democracy in Opinion in Oklahoma Fraud Case.

COUNTY ENTITLED TO RECOVER $75,000

Act of Treasurer Can Be Repudiated Because "Secret and Corrupt Agreement" Was Shown.

A national, state or local Government has the right to repudiate any transaction in which its agents committed a corrupt act, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for this district ruled yesterday in an opinion which severely criticised dishonest public officials.

The opinion was written by Circuit Judge William S. Kenyon and was concurred in by District Judges Faris and Sanborn. It affirmed a $75,000 judgment awarded by the Federal Court of Oklahoma to Pottawatomie County in a suit against the estate of Robert Lee Alexander, former County Treasurer, and the American Surety Co. of New York, evidence was that Alexander received a secret commission of $7500 in connection with the investment of $75,000 of public funds in bonds of the town of Devol, Ok.

"That a man cannot serve two masters and serve them both faithfully is as true in law as in holy writ," said the opinion. "It is the duty of an agent even of a private party to look singly to the good of his principal, and not to attempt to line his own pockets with ill-gotten gains. He should not be permitted to occupy a position where duty is likely to be forgotten in the quest for personal gain. How vastly more is this true when he occupies a public position of trust and confidence."

Teapot Dome Opinion Quoted.

The opinion quoted from the opinion writtten by Judge Kenyon in the Teapot Dome case: "If a Government official engaged in making contracts for the Government receives pecuniary favor from one with whom such contracts are made, a fraud is committed on the Government and it matters not that the Government is subjected to no pecuniary loss or that the contract might have been an advantageous one to it. The entire transaction is tainted with favoritism, collusion and corruption, defeating the proper and lawful functions of the Government."

"This is just as true of a county official," the opinion continued. "The highest degree of fairness, honesty and fidelity to the public is required of public officials. Where a public official, such as Alexander was, enters into a secret and corrupt agreement as the Court found he did, that agreement is void at the option of his principal, the county, as contrary to sound public policy. This must be true if government by the people is to endure, for its perpetuity depends on the honesty of those who administer it.

Can Repudiate Corrupt Contract.

"The governing body, be it national, state or local, is not required to show any injury arising from the corrupt act in order to repudiate it. It is not compelled to accept the fruit of a corrupt and illicit contract made by its agent. It can drop the transaction and wash its hands thereof as soon as the fraud is discovered. If this be not so, public officials can gamble on the chance of not being discovered with the knowledge that their civil liability will only be for that which they have received."

The opinion pointed out that the defense had contended that the county suffered no loss in the acquisition of the bonds and that the lower court had held that the bonds were worth their face value.

"If this were true," said the opinion, "it is not quite understandable why the surety company did not take the bonds, sell them on the market and end the litigation. There would be no reason for this lawsuit if the bonds were worth their face value. No doubt, it would not have been necessary to corrupt anyone."

To hand down any other decision, the opinion held, would be "to open wide the door to all kinds of corrput practices on the pare of public officials, to encourage juggling of public funds and to stimulate the practice of sinister chicanery."

How Farm Relief Would Work in Practice

commodities and their food products by minimizing speculation, preventing inefficient and wasteful methods of distribution and limiting undue and excessive price fluctuations."

Large Powers Vested in Stabilization Corporation.

A stabilization corporation may be approved for any commodity by the Federal Farm Board when the board finds that such action is necessary in order to give effect to the declared policy of Congress, as quoted above.

When a stabilization corporation is set up by authority of the farm board, the board is authorized to make advances to it "for working capital to enable it to purchase, store, merchandise or otherwise dispose of the commodity."

The only expressed check upon the powers of the stabilization corporation is that it "shall not withhold any commodity from the domestic market if the prices thereof have become unduly enhanced, resulting in distress to domestic consumers."

The House committee's report on its bill makes no attempt to minimize the powers which are proposed to be given to the Federal Farm Board and, through the board, to the stabilization corporations. Indeed, the report frankly states that the powers are without precedent. It points out, moreover, that the bill proposes "a practically complete exemption to the organizations of agriculture from the operation of the anti-trust and monopoly statutes."

"Advantages to Farmer in Control of Prices."

"We believe," says the report, "that this exemption is justified on two main grounds: First, that the nature of agriculture is such that control of production cannot be achieved as easily as in industry, if indeed it can be achieved at all. With 6,000,000 men engaged in independent farming operations, the probability of successful monopoly to the public injury is very slight.

"In the second place, if as a nation we wish and need a production safely in excess of our minimum needs, we must give to the farmer some off-setting advantages in the control of his prices and marketing that we refuse to all other forms of industry."

If this does not mean the fixing of prices, it means nothing at all.

Still, the committee is careful to say that the bill carries "no hint of price-fixing or arbitrary price elevation."

One may thoroughly agree with the committee that the bill is meant to serve a laudable purpose, by justified means, and yet deny the accuracy of that characterization.

The committee is more outspoken in a later statement: "It (the bill) offers the maximum help the Government can give. It contemplates the stabilization of prices. It is—and should be—more than any Government has ever offered in behalf of any industry."

If Act Fails to Raise Prices It Fails of Its Purpose.

In the minds of the committee there may be a subtle difference between the stabilization of prices and the fixing of prices, but if so, it is a difference that is not likely to be apparent to the consumer. In the actual working of the program the whole scheme aims to raise the prices of farm products. There ought to be no quarrel with it on that score, nor would any concealment of the real character of the effort seem to be necessary. If the plan fails to be a price-fixing device, if it does not raise prices, then it might as well be discarded. It is only because of the politics of the situation that we find the purpose of the measure and its machinery described in camouflaging terms.

More Nearly a Subsidy Than McNary-Haugen Bill.

The truth is—and I state this without intent to disparage the bill—that it is more nearly a subsidy measure than was the original McNary-Haugen bill with its equalization fee. It was claimed as one of the meritorious features of the equalization fee that it would require the farmers themselves to bear whatever losses might be incurred in the control of surpluses. But the present House bill expressly provides that if any losses be sustained by a stabilization corporation they "shall be repaid out of the profits subsequently earned but shall not be assessed against the stockholders of the corporation." The Senate bill says the same thing in slightly different language. But what if there should be no subsequent profits to make up the losses? Neither of the bills states what shall be done in that event. The only inference is that the Government and not the farmers shall foot the bill.

Except for the inclusion of the debenture plan in the Senate bill, the two measures are essentially the same. An easily reconcilable difference concerns the number of members on the Farm Board. The House bill provides for a chairman and five other members, and the Senate bill for a chairman and 11 other members. Each of the bills would make the Secretary of Agriculture a member ex-officio.

How Senators Proposed Debenture Plan Would Work.

The equalization fee having been discarded, the rallying ground of those who think that the stabilization idea does not go far enough is the debenture plan. The Senate bill offers this plan as one of the devices that the Farm Board, within its discretion, may put into effect.

Whatever may be the objections to the debenture plan, it has the merit of being extremely simple. In that respect it is the opposite of the equalization fee, whose intricacies made the McNary-Haugen bill a thing of dark mystery even to some of the Congressmen who voted for it.

The debenture plan provides for the issuance of certificates, or debentures, on exported farm commodities. The amount of the debenture, as fixed by the Senate bill, would be one-half of the tariff rate on the benefited commodity. If it was wheat—on which the import duty is 42 cents a bushel—the farmer exporting wheat would receive a certificate worth 21 cents for every bushel exported. This certificate would be receivable at face value in payment of any customs duties. The cretificate would be transferable, so that the farmer would be able to sell it, at presumably only a slight discount, to any importer for use in paying duties. In the case of cotton, on which there is no duty, the debenture rate is arbitrarily fixed at 2 cents a pound.

The Farm Board would be empowered, under the Senate bill, to order the issuance of debentures with respect to any agricultural commodity. It could also apply the system to manufactured food products. The debenture in such cases being of an amount proportionate to the amount of the food product in the manufactured article.

The notion back of the debenture plan is that it would give the farmer directly one-half of the tariff on farm products.

The debenture plan has been advocated for a long time by the National Grange, which preferred it even to the equalization fee. In writing the plan into the Senate bill, the Agricultural Committee closely followed the Grange's recommendations.

To the criticism that the debenture plan is a subsidy the Grange replies that it is no more a subsidy than the tariff. The Grange estimates that at the rates proposed, the plan would cost about $146,000,000 a year. This money would come directly out of the Treasury, or rather it would be arrested on its way to the Treasury.

"The export debenture or bounty plan," says a statement by the Grange, "is in fact a recognized supplement to the protective tariff system, in many nations today and was proposed by Alexander Hamilton as a part of the original tariff system in the United States."

Such is the debenture plan. It may not be accepted by Congress, but at least it has thrown a new idea—an idea so old that it is new—into the discussion.

France Not Jealous of Italy, Says Herriot

War, I revisited Rome, I was jeered at by one of my friends who lives in the Via Nationale because I wanted to revisit the Forum. He said, "What, you go to see the Capitol which isn't even 50 meters high, a temple made of cardboard with only three columns left standing; rostrums formerly occupied by orators who had nothing to say, vestals who were nothing but intriguers, which is evidenced by the inscriptions thanking them for the favors they bestowed?" I replied, "If I said those things, you would strangle me."

For all civilized peoples, these glorious relics are sources of education. I think of Bolivar, who came to find out the secrets of ancient Italy, traversing the plains of Lombardy with Rodriguez and stopping in Florence. He arrived in Rome, where William of Humboldt and Mme. de Stael united in doing him honor. His jokes and humor, charm his hosts and I find him on Aug. 18 on the sacred mountain leaning against the base of a statue and comparing the plebeians of the Aventine Mountain in revolt to the people of South America demanding their freedom.

The vision of innumerable illustrious personages arising from their tombs passes before his eyes, heroes and martyrs, and turning toward Rodriguez, he pronounces his celebrated oath, "My friend, I swear in the name of these great departed souls, in the name of my country and my honor, to give myself no peace until America is delivered from the yoke of her tyranta."

Thus Italy's past inspired the youth of a continent and its force is not yet exhausted.

The Fascist Decalogue.

We will not reply to the attacks of the Italian press in the same terms they employ. I read recently in the Gazzetta del Popolo what that paper calls "the Ten Commandments of a Young Fascist." I quote a few phrases: "Remember a soldier should not believe in perpetual peace. The rifle and ammunition are given you not for you to destroy in time of peace, but for you to conserve for the day that war is declared." This is according to the Gazzetta of March 5, 1929, the instruction given to 1,200,000 militiamen.

Honestly, I prefer the oath taken by Bolivar. This is what I should say to the young Frenchman: "Remember, the Italians are your brothers, that they form a grand, hard-working nation whose number multiplies and who have often been compelled to leave their country to earn their daily bread, that everything done to better the economic conditions of these people is worthy of attention and encouragement. Do not permit yourself to be disturbed by hasty words, which rather indicate a nervous state than wrong intentions. Believe in peace. It is possible only if you believe in it. Otherwise not."

"I, who for 25 years have lived in Lyons on friendly terms with a powerful and prosperous Italian colony, pay no attention to these passing attacks, even when they are directed against me personally. Nothing will make me change my democratic ideas, my belief in schools free from religious control; but I am nevertheless faithful to this great nation of honest workers, sober and patient. I salute them wherever they may happen to be and I ask them to do everything in their power to bring about the fusion of the efforts of France and Italy for peace. Just as the efforts were fused together in the tragic days of the World War, let us become reconciled with our ancient enemies and let there be no war between brothers.

Accord With Italy Long Planned, Cardinal Says

stantly the same. The Pope wanted nothing but the guarantee that his power should be and appear before the entire world as clothed with that prerogative of sovereignty, liberty and independence which is indispensible to the exercise of a mission which not man, but God has entrusted to him.

Sovereignty Insisted On.

The position which Italy had deemed it fit to create for the Holy See through the Law of the Guarantees, with just the precise object of guaranteeing that independence and sovereignty, was in no way acceptable. The law of the Guarantees was a unilateral act, carried out by the Italian Government in the exercise of its sovereign power against the Pope, who was considered in the light of a subject. The sovereign prerogative which the Law of Guarantees recognized as belonging to the Pope were attributed to him, not as a consequence of an original right of the Pope himself, but as a concession on the part of the Italian state.

If the Holy See had fallen in with this point of view, it would have found itself completely in Italy's power. Even if its material position had been respected, its juridical and moral dependence would have remained an indestructible reality. The prerogatives would have derived their existence from an Italian law and, consequently, could have been revoked according to the wish of the legislators.

The present agreements have, on the contrary, an entirely different character and juridical implication. The discussions which led to them took place with the parties meeting on an equal footing, as between sovereign power and sovereign power, with reciprocal independence of authority and rights. The conclusion was embodied in a bilateral pact where it was not a legislator who imposed a law upon a subject, but two contracting parties who freely and voluntarily entered into a reciprocal pact, whereby on both sides something was given and something received.

And since this pact was concluded between two sovereign powers with equality of rights, by its very nature it has entered the category of international accords safeguarded by the sanctity of international law. It is evident that, such being the case, the rights and the dignity of the church have been perfectly safeguarded so that the whole Catholic world can regard with full confidence the settlement arrived at, at the Lateran on Feb. 11 last.

Nor in fact could it have been otherwise, for it is not even to be imagined that the Pope—and a Pope like Pius XI, conscious of the greatness of his office and the responsibility implied by it—could stoop for even the most flattering kind of offer to anything which was not entirely worthy of the dignity of the Catholic Church or in any way not consonant with the justice due to it.

That all the world can have confidence in the Lateran accords is demonstrated by the fact of the universal and enthusiastic approval which greeted their announcement from all parts of the earth, greeting them as the beginning of a new era in the history of the church.

It is no exaggeration to speak of a new era, for actually it is the Pope's fervent wish that from this moment the apostolic fervor should assume new force. The Pope has always constituted himself an ardent advocate of this idea in order to realize the undertaking of his pontificate, that is, as he said in his first encyclical, when speaking of the moment which all now greet with joy: "It is in the hands of God to bring forth this hour and let it strike; it is the duty of men to see that it does not strike in vain. It will be among the most solemn and fruitful of hours both for the restoration of the Kingdom of Christ and the pacification of Italy and the world."

The fact that Hungarians possessed the key to all Rumanian foreign office telegrams was said to have prejudiced the recent conference at Vienna looking toward settlement of the problem of compensation for expropriated Hungarian landowners in Rumania.

BALLOT ON DAYLIGHT SAVING THIS WEEK

35,000 Registered Voters to Be Polled Through Mails; Safeguards Against Fraud.

Ballots for a straw vote on daylight saving will be mailed by the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday to 35,000 registered voters, who may place a cross in the square before "yes" if in favor of daylight saving or before "no" if opposed and mail the stamped return postcard up to midnight next Sunday.

Results of the poll, which covers 10 per cent of the registration and therefore is declared by statisticians to be a dependable index of the sentiment of the other 90 per cent as well, will be submitted to the Board of Aldermen. Every tenth voter beginning with the first on the poll books will receive the ballots, after the system followed by the Post-Dispatch in the straw vote which forecast renomination of Victor Miller for Mayor.

The ballots will bear the address of a postoffice box, of which the key will be held by a supervistory committee composed of both advocates and opponents of daylight saving. They will remain untouched until Monday, April 29, when the official count will be made by an established tabulating concern under scrutiny of the committee.

A straw vote on this order was decided upon, on recommendation of W. T. Collins, veteran campaigner for daylight saving, as the most expeditious way to get at majority sentiment. Spokesmen of both sides have claimed a majority, while others frankly have conceded that they did not know which side actually had the most followers among the silent bulk of those who would be affected by daylight saving.

The Chamber of Commerce announced that it had received a letter from the St. Louis Retail Druggists' Association opposing daylight saving, and others from the Cosmopolitan Club and the Merchants' Exchange favoring it. These will not be considered in the straw vote, in which only the ballots, safeguarded in various ways against fraud or error, will be taken into account.

The supervisory committee is composed of Judge Walter J. G. Neun, president of the Board of Aldermen; K. F. Niemoeller, secretary-manager of the Associated Retailers of St. Louis; W. T. Collins, Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary of the Building Trades Council; W. H. Lamont, secretary of the Retail Druggists' Association; Nels Anderson, editor, editorial page, St. Louis Times; Douglas Martin, director of publicity, St. Louis Globe-Democrat; George M. Burbach, advertising manager, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and F. D. McDonald, business manager, St. Louis Star.

"Living Pictures" From Bible.

"Living Pictures" of women of the Old Testament and heroines of the new dispensation will be presented with music and dancing in a program at Fontbonne College, Wydown and Big Bend boulevards, at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow. Scenery has been provided by the art department and Mrs. O. A. Wall, instructor in dramatic art, will be in charge. Subjects will be from the works of German, French and Italian artists.

Modest? Shy? Violets Spread All Over Place

"This Will Be Great Year for Flowers" Says Shaw's Garden Expert—Proof Ready to Eye.

Perish the thought that violets are shy and helpless little things. They are persistent and assertive as truth or human folly, as anyone may see today in Forest Park.

Wraithlike, spring almost slipped by unnoticed in the mists of this vagarious April. Only on a few glorious days—and one which ended in disaster for violets and buttercups—did she step forth, splendid and unashamed, touching the hilltops with her red and white and yellow fires, strewing green valleys with the shining silver of fruit trees in bloom.

Golden forsythia and daffodils, the snowy cups and brilliant stars of magnolias cast away reserve to meet the sun, and were shattered by sudden rain. Not only did it rain. As withered tips of tulip leaves testify today, there were nights when nursery jingle might truly, if not prettily, have been paraphrased like this:

Out our little springtime came, blushing like a rose—
Up jumped Jackie Frost and bit her on the nose!

Dogwood and Lilacs Only.

A sudden bounty of the sun bribed dogwood and lilacs to burst forth three weeks before their old acquaintances expected them. And that night it rained. It turned cold. In a few nights it frosted. The dogwood, forsaken by shadbush and wild plum, bravely flaunted its white banner in the rainy woods, but the lilacs went back for a fresh start. They are taking it now, a little—we hope!—more in season.

The rain that chilled the lilacs and shattered the fruit-blossoms also flooded the River des Peres. Receding waters left violets and buttercups, just then peeping out in Forest Park, under three inches of mud. And those "modest"—"retiring"—"bashful" — "unassertive" violets have pushed right up through all that muck.

Leaves are bedraggled by a bitter fight and petals occasionally are ringed like a sport frock caught in the rain. Nothing else is to be seen but barren yellow clay and the rank marsh grass. But there the violets, like truth, rear their heads again—and at once put on all their old deceitful look of modesty.

Still the white magnolia blossoms may be seen at Shaw's Garden. The redbud flames, and beside it the precious remnant of a unique white redbud, blooming courageously in the face of death. There bloom the yellow kerria from Japan, and, as in Forest Park, the yellow Missouri currant which is not native to Missouri, but takes its name from the fact that it was discovered on the upper Missouri by Lewis and Clark a hundred years ago. Both in the garden in the park bloom the white and pink Japanese cherry trees and a few of the burning bush or Japanese quince. At the garden also may be seen a weekly display of wildflowers from Gray Summit.

Great Year for Flowers.

"This will be a great year for flowers," says John Kellogg of Shaw's Garden, who is said to know more about Missouri flora than all other men living. And his proof is ready to the eye.

The woodsmoke haze and fragrance of spring clearing lingers over the Ozarks. Lavender and gold and ruddy brown show in the green of the trees, and black oak-trunks are columnar among the young leaves. Dogwood, redbud and the early white hawthorn, State flower of Missouri, glorify the woods, and the pink wild crab-apple is coming in.

Bluebells dance in the wind at the water's edge. Sweet Williams carpet the roadside. Glades are starred with the yellow hoary puccoon and wild celandine, hillsides with the white rue anemone and feathery mitrewort. Violets bloom everywhere—white dogtooth violets, the velvety bicolor, the yellow-centered bird's foot, the "common" blue and a dozen lovely others.

Whole hillsides in Forest Park are agleam with the tiny white spring beauty. Buttercups are rare, for their traditional haunt west of the Union boulevard entrance, where all the spring flowers grew, has been torn up and where one or two persons loitered among the blossoms, scores watch a steam shovel. Right down among the raw scars of mutilated earth, a few lonely buttercups remain.

Not only along the watercourses do the violets bloom this April in Forest Park. Every patch of grass is gemmed with azure. Once one had to look for places where they grew. Now he would have to search long for places where they do not bloom—that is, if anyone seriously wants to find a place like that.

REGIONAL CONFERENCE OF STREET CAR EXECUTIVES

More Than 50 Men From 12 Valley States Are Expected to Attend.

More than 50 executives of street railways from 12 Mississippi Valley States will attend a regional conference of the American Electric Railway Association to be held at Hotel Jefferson tomorrow and Tuesday.

This will be the second of a series of regional meetings of the association. The first was held in San Francisco, Feb. 27. James P. Barnes, president of the Louisville Railways, who is president of the Association, will attend. J. N. Shannahan, president of the Omaha & Council Bluffs Street Railway Co., and chairman of the advisory council of the American Electric Railway Association, will preside. Following the business session tomorrow a dinner will be given for the visiting delegates by the local members of the association at the Algonquin Club.

GOITRE

A new treatment for goitre has been developed by the W. T. B. Laboratories, 119 Sanborn Bldg., Battle Creek, Michigan, which many believe will prove to be the long-sought specific for this unsightly and dangerous disease. Many of the largest and most hideous goitres begin to recede almost in a day. They gradually get smaller, and in many cases are entirely gone in a few weeks. It is equally efficient in cases of toxic, and so-called inside goitre. The treatment is harmless, and anyone can use it with perfect safety at home.

A 48-page illustrated booklet on the Causes, Dangers and Non-Surgical Treatment of Goitre, issued by the Laboratories, fully explains the new treatment and will be mailed free to any interested sufferer.

Real youth comes from within

Warner's Compound by flushing kidneys, helps you stay young.

The principal outward charm of youth is a clear skin, sparkling with natural color. But how can your skin remain clear if kidneys and liver do not act as nature intended? At times when your system is upset take a few bottles of Warner's Compound, a nation-wide favorite for 52 years. Note how quickly kidneys and liver respond, flushing away the dangerous body poisons that do so much to make you look old and worn out. The very first bottle should show a splendid improvement. Purely vegetable and pleasant-tasting. Start on your first bottle today. You have delayed long enough. Warner's Safe Remedies Co., Rochester, N. Y.

GARDNER
GRAVE VAULT
Rust-Resisting Steel
Air and Water Tight

Frederick D. Gardner announces to the public that he has arranged with the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, for the manufacture of the world famous Gardner Vault a sheet of 12 gauge steel weighing 350 pounds with a copper alloy (rust resisting).

This sheet is 6' 10⅜"x7' 1¾" thus enabling the manufacture of the entire top and sides of the Gardner Vault in one piece without a single seam.

The Mr. Gardner considers a remarkable manufacturing feat and enables him to pass his personal guarantee of 50 years to every purchaser of a Gardner Vault in all the world.

The Gardner Vault is manufactured in large quantities at a small overhead and, therefore, is within the reach of all. No crumbling, disintegration, cracking or leaking.

Ask your funeral director for it.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

B. S.—William Hale Thompson, Mayor of Chicago, was first elected Mayor of Chicago in 1915, re-elected in 1919, serving until 1923. Then after a lapse of four years, he was again returned to the City Hall.

TULSA, OK.—On Kingshighway Cote Brilliante is the next street to Easton avenue, going north, and is about 911 feet from Easton. The frontage of Sherman Park is the only distance between them. From Kingshighway to Union on Easton is two irregular blocks, and is about 2187 feet.

HENRY B.—Prof. R. C. Forbes, head of the mining department of the Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy, at Rolla, Mo., was authority for a statement in 1926 that divining rods, mineral finders and similar devices for locating water, buried treasures, or ore deposits are not generally useful for such purpose, the only exception being the dip needle used in prospecting for magnetic ore. This, of course, does not include the electroscope used to find lost radium. You might write to the School of Mines for an opinion, also for roster of firms which use the devices, if any.

E. A. B.—Today people do not wear mourning for aunts, uncles or cousins, unless there was a deep tie of affection as well as kinship. The tendency is toward sincerity, while formerly definite periods of mourning, according to the precise degree of relationship, were customary. If the aunt you mourn was one who reared you, or in any way had a great claim on your affection, it would be appropriate to wear mourning. For a man or boy, the sleeve band, from three and a half to four and a half inches in width, is correct. It is of dull broadcloth (not crepe) on overcoats or winter clothing, and of serge on summer clothing.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

C. C. B.—No; they cannot have your marriage annulled.

LITTLE BIT—The notice does not take effect until the first, if that is the end of your month.

DELUSIONED.—He or she should have the marriage annulled before marrying again.

N. B.—The kind of selling you describe, giving chances on a farm with certain purchases, is illegal, if you use the mails to sell.

THE HEIRS.—The Court costs must be paid by someone, if the money is to be released from the inheritance fund of the State Treasury. Whether the money would be paid to the heirs or to the administrator would depend upon the circumstances.

W. C. M.—The dealers in the course of study cannot hold either the boy or his parents liable if suit is filed, however, to consult a lawyer, or the Legal Aid Bureau.

C. A. B.—You cannot charge the builder rent for his tools and material. But if he agreed to complete the job in a specified time, you can hold him liable for damages caused you by his delay. Consult a lawyer before he files a lien.

J. M.—When the dealers resold the furniture under the chattel mortgage, if it sold for more than the balance you owed and the costs of the sale, they should have paid you the excess. Ask them what they sold it for, and to whom.

A BOOSTER.—As to it being compulsory to probate a will where insurance, stock, cash, but no other property is involved, if the amount is small, an order of "no administration" can be obtained from the Probate Court. (2) All wills should be filed, if any estate is left.

WORRIED PARTY—The party called A cannot get a search warrant issued to search the house of B for things belonging to C.

A SUBSCRIBER—If a verbal agreement is good at all, it is good until it expires by its terms, or if no time of expiration was fixed, then for a reasonable time.

D. E. A.—Each child and the widow will receive one-fourth of the estate, except that the property owned by the man and his wife jointly will go to the wife only.

MISTER POST-DISPATCH.—If the four lots were owned by the husband and his wife jointly, then on the death of one became the sole owner, and can dispose of them as he pleases.

R. L. M.—If your decree provides for alimony, that will continue unless, and until, the provision is modified. If the decree makes no provision for alimony, you cannot apply for it later, ordinarily.

CONFECTIONER.—Articles of the kind mentioned, aspirin, witch hazel, etc., can be sold by a confectioner or druggist, when they are sold in sealed packages (that is, the original container from the manufacturer).

MRS. E.—You cannot compel the landlord to make the repairs and you will have to give him a month's written notice before vacating, served on him not later than the day before the rent day. Of course, he can sue you for the back rent owed.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

M. W.—The tablets you ask about do not contain "dope," and there is no reason to suppose that taking them as mentioned is liable to prove harmful.

CHARLEY.—It is not necessary to take any kind of internal treatment to cure a case of scabies, or itch; local treatment properly carried out and applied being all that is necessary, such as the following: Precipitated sulphur, one drachm; vaseline, one ounce; mix and apply at bedtime to all infected surfaces or parts of the skin. In the morning, take a hot water and soap bath, put on fresh underwear, so the skin does not touch any clothing which one was wearing before the treatment. Also change the bed linen, to avoid further possibility of contact with material which might be contaminated. Repeat this treatment three nights running. Then, for three more nights, apply a soothing ointment, such as the oxide of zinc ointment. If the case is not cured then, the treatment should be repeated. The change of personal and bed linen between each treatment of the skin is very important.

Three Artists Sing Tonight in KSD Concert

Chicago Symphony Orchestra to Play Music of Six Famous Composers —Cardinal Hayes Will Talk in Broadcast.

Another concert of Spanish music at 12:30 this afternoon is to be the first NBC broadcast today over KSD. It will be given by the Rondalla Usandizaga Orchestra, led by Lucian Gaston. One of the latter's own works, a "paso doble" called "El Riojana," is to be played. The program includes:

Granadina ..... Jimenez
Farana ..... Lucena
Cadiz ..... Albeniz
Alma de Dios ..... Serrano
Granada ..... Albeniz
Andaluria Gitana ..... Sopena
Viva Aragon ..... Folk
El Riojano ..... Gaston

Today's Biblical drama, to be broadcast over KSD at 1 o'clock, will be based on the story of Jael and Sisera. The sketch, taken from Judges, Chapter 4, opens with the revolt of the Israelites against the oppression of Sisera, leader of the army of the Canaanites. It opens with a delegation of Israelites on Mount Ephraim, seeking advice of their prophetess, Deborah. After deliberation and prayer, she proclaims that the day has come for battle. She orders Barak, one of their leaders, to march away with an army of 10,000 Israelites to Mount Tabor. She promises that in the ensuing battle the Canaanites will be defeated, but that their captain, Sisera, will be conquered only by a woman, for so the Lord has decreed.

The battle takes place, and as Deborah has prophesied, Sisera's army is routed. Sisera flees, to take refuge in the tent of the woman, Jael, whose husband is a friend of the Canaanites.

Jael is secretly in sympathy with the Israelites. She welcomes Sisera, gives him food and drink, and promises to shield him. At length, when he has fallen asleep, exhausted, she quietly takes a long tent nail and with a hammer, drives it into his temple.

Thus is fulfilled the prophecy of Deborah that the oppressor of the Israelites will be conquered by a woman.

Following is the program for the usual Twilight Voices concert over KSD at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon:

(a) Woo Thou Sweet Music (Salut D'Amour) ..... Elgar
(b) When From My Love (Madrigal) ..... Bartlett
Mixed Quartet
The Pollywogs at Play ..... Tripkhaus
String Trio
A Picture ..... Pearl Curran
Contralto
Ships That Pass in the Night ..... Huhn
Soprano and Tenor
Dahlia (Song of the Dale—A Norwegian folk song) ..... Arr. Sandby
String Trio
(a) Pale Moon ..... Logan
(b) Milaney ..... Dorothy Foster
(c) Sweet and Low ..... Barnby
Quartet

"The Battle of Flowers" held at San Antonio, Tex., last year as part of the annual Fiesta de San Jacinto, will be recalled in the Stetson Parade broadcast at 5 o'clock over KSD.

As far back in history as can be traced, San Antonio has held a spring carnival. In 1891, it was decided to combine this with a celebration to commemorate the birthday of the State of Texas, since then the Fiesta de San Jacinto has become the foremost annual event in the State.

Artists who have contributed to the Dictograph program for more than a year will be heard in a half-hour of "encores" at 5:30 over KSD and then will take a five months' vacation before returning to the air early in October.

For the final program of the present series Joe Howard will be brought back to the microphone to sing once more the following songs he composed when this century was young: "Goodby, My Lady Love," "What's the Use of Dreaming," and "Honeymoon," the last originally part of the score of his musical comedy, "The Time, the Place, and the Girl," of 25 years ago, but now the theme song of a motion picture with sound features of the same title.

Irma de Baun, soprano, will sing "La Golondrina," accompanied by marimba and guitar and also songs from the musical comedy, "Woodland," by Gustave Luders.

The quartet will sing a medley of ballads that listeners have asked to be repeated, consisting of "On the Banks of the Wabash," "My Old New Hampshire Home," and "Down Where the Cotton Blossoms Grow." They also will sing "Chinatown, My Chinatown."

Music by Wolf-Ferrari, Beethoven, Goldmark, Wagner and Rimsky-Korsakoff will be played by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under Dr. Frederick Stock, in its concert over KSD from 6 to 7 o'clock tonight.

The opening number will be the overture, in miniature, from "The Secret of Suzanne," by the Italian-German composer, Ermanno Wolf-Ferrari. The music is of such a whimsical and classic texture that, from its first performance, it has been a favorite.

Three-Hour Motor Trip to Arcadia Valley Penetrates Scenic Ozark Country

Resorts in Lake Killarney Region Preparing for Large Crowds of Campers—Detour on Fredericktown Road to Be Eliminated by New Bridge Over Stouts Creek—Roads Excellent.

By ROBERT L. BRADLEY,
Automobile Editor.

ARCADIA VALLEY, one of the prettiest spots in the Ozarks and only three hours by automobile from St. Louis, is decking itself out in glad array for the hosts of campers and week-end pleasure-seekers who will soon be taking to their cars to escape the heat of the city. Within a week or two, when the summer sun has taken some of the chill from the air and warmed the waters of Lake Killarney and Stouts Creek, which feeds the lake, the resorts in the Ironton district will begin to function.

Reports that roads leading into Ironton and Arcadia had suffered somewhat from recent rains prompted the writer to take the trip earlier this year than usual. Road conditions were found to be excellent. The trip to Ironton was made by way of Farmington on United States Highway No. 61 and the return by De Soto on Missouri Highway No. 21.

One drives south in South Grand boulevard to the Lemay Ferry road No. 61. This concreted road is one of the most picturesque leading out of St. Louis—winding through hilly, wooded country, with good views from elevated points and with sweet-scented orchards adding a touch of color to the countryside.

At Festus, one glimpses the Mississippi for a brief moment and then the road swings southwest through Crystal City and away from the river. The writer chose to follow No. 61 all the way to Farmington (77 miles of pavement), and swung west through Iron Mountain to Ironton on a county road, which is well-graveled and passable even in wet weather. Another route to Ironton—considerably longer—is to continue on No. 61 to Fredericktown, there taking Missouri Highway No. 70, which skirts the north shore of Lake Killarney.

A mile or two north of Ironton, as shown in the accompanying map, one passes through Pilot Knob, scene of a Civil War battle. The battlefield is visible from the road and those who enjoy hiking might well take an hour or two and scale the path leading to the summit of the mountain. A remarkable panorama is obtainable from the top of Pilot Knob on a clear day.

Arriving in the village of Ironton, an air of bustle and activity was noted; shopkeepers were busy painting and redecorating their stores for the summer business. The tourist may lunch in Ironton or go on through Arcadia to Lake Killarney where there are several dining rooms.

About a mile out of Arcadia, which is a railroad and bus stop, State Highway engineers are building a new concrete bridge over Stouts Creek. Workmen said it would be completed in two weeks. A new gravel road leading to the bridge from both sides is being graded and will be surfaced within the next month, it was said.

At present, one must ford the creek and climb a steep, rocky incline. The discomforts of this detour, however, are forgotten when one catches sight of the rapids just below the bridge.

From there the road leads directly to William Schroeder's cottage resort. Schroeder has a number of cabins, several launches for lake trips and is constructing a large dining room to accommodate his guests. He took us across the lake in one of his boats. Overhead a flock of mallard ducks and big Canadian gray geese circled and dipped. A hawk poised high in the air and swooped down after fish, followed at a circumspect distance by several angry crows. Blue jays screamed along the shore and the queer, metallic cry of the guineas was heard intermittently.

One may land at the edge of the 40-foot dam built across Stouts Creek by the Arcadia Country Club to form the lake. Just below the falls, one may glimpse the prize scenic view of the whole trip. Looking up toward the falls, the blue of the sky contrasts sharply with the green of the trees, the white spray from the spillway and the rainbow colors of the stream below. This view alone is ample reward for the 92-mile drive from St. Louis.

Returning, the writer followed Missouri Highway No. 21 from Graniteville through Caledonia and Potosi to De Soto, striking United States No. 61 at Festus. The gravel-surfaced road is excellent. For those who do not have sufficient time to stay overnight at Lake Killarney and who wish to stop along the roadside, there are several fine picnic stops between Ironton and Potosi.

The Ironton-Festus road has been freshly resurfaced with gravel and several crews are at work scraping and grading the highway where needed. We recommend this route for the return to St. Louis.

Motorists who have several days at their disposal may drive through Farmington to Fredericktown and over Highway No. 67 to Silvia, a short distance from the Sam Baker State Park, a delightful scenic spot. If the dirt road from Piedmont, a few miles west of Silvia, is taken to the Deer Run State Park, inquiry should first be made locally of road conditions.

Another side trip is via Highway No. 32, which leaves Highway No. 21 just north of Belleview, passing through Brule and Howes Mill and Stone Hill, both of the latter towns being a short distance south of Indian Trail State Park.

Because of its fishing, in season, its boating, swimming and hiking facilities, Lake Killarney ranks as one of the most popular resorts near St. Louis.

Hoover on Air Tomorrow and Thursday Night

President Hoover will be heard twice this week—tomorrow and Thursday—over country-wide networks, including KSD and KMOX.

His address at the annual luncheon of the Associated Press, in New York, will be broadcast tomorrow afternoon beginning at 12:55 o'clock St. Louis time.

The address at the Associated Press luncheon will be President Hoover's first radio speech since his inauguration. He will be introduced by Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press.

Edmund Ruffner is to be the NBC announcer for Hoover's talk tomorrow, while Frederic William Wile will announce for the CBS.

The Associated Press luncheon broadcast will be one of the last to be heard from the Waldorf-

'Cannon Ball' Greatest of Cross-Country Road Drivers

GREATEST of all trans-continental and road racing automobile drivers is "Cannon Ball" Baker, who is well known in St. Louis because of his record breaking St. Louis-Chicago and St. Louis-Kansas City runs. He holds far more automobile endurance, cross-country speed and mountain climbing records than any other man anywhere.

For 23 years he has been beating his own and other's records and testing products of auto manufacturers in his "road laboratory" of actual performance. Speeding in all kinds of weather over all manner of roads, he has taken chances only with his own life and is recognized as a really careful driver—considering. In an interview with Henry Morton Robinson, published in the Popular Science Monthly for April, Baker tells a tale full of thrills.

"I've charioted across North America 93 times. The first time with 28 blowouts and three breakdowns. The last time with not a single tire change or mechanical adjustment of any kind. When you stop to think about it, that's just about the history of automobile and motorcycle development in this country," Baker is quoted by Robinson as saying. "My mounts have ranged from the sputtering one-cylinder motorbike with which I made my first trans-continental run in 1911, to the 110-horsepower sporster of 1928. For 23 years I've pushed all makes and models over desert trails, mountain passes, and gully bottoms—taking everything that came in the day's run.

"I grew up in a racing town. Indianapolis, the city that made automobile road-racing famous, was just beginning to hold its speed tournaments when I lived there as a kid. One of my earliest memories is squeezing in at the wind-up of a road classic, in which Harry Payne Whitney, the winner, made an average of 43 miles an hour. Second prize went to a youngster named Barney Oldfield, who came roaring home at the terrific speed of 42.6 miles. Anything better than a mile in 2.20 seemed a break-neck pace in those days.

"The bicycle craze was at its height just then, and naturally I had a wheel—an old Pope-Hartford. Until I was 16 years old, I was satisfied to pedal around with my own leg-power. But when I went to work in a machine shop a year later, I saved enough money to buy a portable motor, rated at three-quarter horsepower, and attached the contrivance to my ice wagon. The effect was dizzying! On a trial spin, I passed a fire engine going 19 miles an hour, and began to regard myself as the coming race driver of the United States. Sometime later I got a second-hand Indian, tinkered around with it till I got it up to 30 an hour, and began looking around for an opportunity to break into motorcycle racing.

"My chance came with dramatic suddenness. A traveling fair came to town when I was about 19, and I heard there was to be a motor cycle race on the old trotting track. With some vague notion of entering my one-lung Indian, I strolled down to the grounds and found the Big Boss in a steaming rage.

"'Run over to the local garage,' he was shouting at a stakeman, 'and see if they've got anyone that can ride a motor cycle. 'Red' Nelson's off on another jag, and we haven't anyone to take his place in the exhibition race.'

"My career as a racing driver dates from that moment. I stepped out onto the track and announced myself. 'I'm pretty good on a motor cycle,' I began.

"'Ever work with a twin-cylinder Indian?' he asked, surveying my lanky 6 feet 2.

"'Sure,' I lied. 'I've been repairing an Indian for two years.' (which was true.)

"'Then warm up that machine and stand by for action.'

"I lugged the red thing out onto the track and for the first three laps I almost collapsed from heart failure. The bike had a handlebar

Car Production Maintained at New High Level

DETROIT, Mich., April 20.—Passenger car production is being maintained at a level equal to or above anything the industry has ever witnessed, observers of the industry pointed out here today. There can be little doubt that production has reached its peak and it has become a matter only of how long the present schedule of operations continues in effect, observers asserted.

Sales continue good in all sections of the country and show a strong tendency to improve even more. Low priced cars are moving best, with medium priced and high priced models selling more slowly. In general, sales may be described as being on an upward trend.

Truck output shows a similar in-

12 States Will Have Planes at Aircraft Show

First Annual St. Louis Exhibit to Be Held at Coliseum May 25 to June 1 —Educational Displays Planned.

Exhibits of airplanes and aircraft accessories from 12 states, including California and New York, will be on display at the first annual St. Louis Aircraft Show, to be held in the Coliseum May 25 to June 1, under auspices of Jackson Johnson Post of the American Legion, according to George W. Curran, post commander.

States already represented are Indiana, Alabama, Oklahoma, New York, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, California, Pennsylvania and Arkansas.

Twenty airplanes of the latest type of construction have been allotted space and virtually three-fourths of the booth space has been reserved by airplane and accessory manufacturers for commercial and technical exhibits.

A number of interesting educational displays will be shown by local organizations, including the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service, Missouri National Guard, Boy Scouts of America, Public Library and American Legion. Other groups which will have displays are the United States Department of Commerce, the air mail division of the postoffice and the Weather Bureau.

The National Guard exhibit will be one of the latest fighting machines, fully equipped with machine guns and bombing racks. Maj. C. R. Wassal, commander of the unit, states.

Among the planes which will be shown are Southern Messer, Cardinal, Ryan, Flamingo, Lockheed Vega, Spartan, Centurian, Ta-homa, Alliance Argo and Verville.

At least 100 exhibitors, displaying practically everything known to the aviation world, will fill the booth space of the Coliseum. New ships, highly colored, will be there with every aeronautical improvement of the industry.

Every afternoon and night of the show will have its particular designation. One night has been set aside as "American Society of Mechanical Engineers' Night" and noted engineers, manufacturers and pilots attending the National Aeronautics Conference here that week will be invited to attend. The doors will be open from 11 o'clock in the morning to 11 o'clock at night, including Sunday, May 26. Disabled veterans of St. Louis will be guests of the Legion Post on Sunday afternoon, the second day of the show.

Motorless aviation, otherwise known as gliding, will come in for a big share of attention at the show.

One of the glider entries at the aircraft show will be that of Gardner Smith of 6254 Delmar boulevard, who has taken over the distribution of a well-known type of glider. Smith is also planning the manufacture of gliders in St. Louis and has obtained the services of one of the leading glider experts in the United States. He will start building within a few weeks.

The glider exhibit, which will form only a small part of the display of airplanes and aircraft accessories at the Coliseum, will include a number of models made by St. Louis youths, one now under construction by students of University City High School.

The display of gliders at the St. Louis show will be one of the largest and most comprehensive ever held in this country. Two of the latest type primary gliders, and the first soaring machine ever built in the United States will be brought to St. Louis by Gliders, Inc., of Orion, Mich., of which William J. Scripps, outstanding glider enthusiast, is president, and Mark A. Kearney, vice president.

Talent o ftwo continents was utilized in the construction of the three gliders which will be brought to St. Louis, Scripps declared at the Detroit show last week. He said that the best principles of construction employed for years in Germany have been combined with construction principles developed in exhaustive tests in this country.

The gliders are built with an immense safety factor and it is contended that it is virtually impossible to wreck one ofthe ships. As much care is taken in construction of the gliders as goes into workmanship in the finest motored air cruisers. The ships have a wing span of 24 feet and are 16½ feet long. They can be taken apart and reassembled in 45 minutes.

More than a score of exhibitors from states as far west as California and as far east as New York have entered airplanes or aircraft accessories in the show, according to Mr. Curran. Fifteen airplanes already have been allotted space in the Coliseum, the latest being tow Messers entered by the Southern Aircraft Co. of Birmingham, Ala.

ARTISTS OF NOTE WHO WILL BROADCAST OVER STATION KSD THIS WEEK

ELLY NEY, pianist, in Eveready Hour concert on KSD next Tuesday night.

FRANCIS MACMILLEN, violinist, who plays in Atwater Kent Hour over KSD tonight.

MERLE ALCOCK, Missourian, who won place in opera. She sings on KSD tomorrow night.

AUTO CLUBS AID IN TOUR OF EUROPE

European travel by automobile is made easy by the Foreign Travel Division of the American Automobile Association, which has arranged to handle such trips for owners who ship their own machines from the United States. The Automobile Club of Missouri, affiliated with the national body, also has a complete Foreign Travel Bureau, under direction of George E. Drummond. Through the Alliance Internationale de Tourisme, of which the A. A. A. is a member, details of continental tours have been simplified.

Every automobile taken from the United States to Europe must have a passport. The owner must also be supplied with international license plates and an international driving license. Plates and licenses issued by states in this country are not recognized by foreign governments. Another problem is the matter of duty imposts exacted by European governments. American-manufactured automobiles are subject to taxation when exported to Europe. However, this tax is waived when the car is taken abroad solely for touring purposes, on the condition that the owner guarantee to pay the tax in the event the car should not be brought back within a year.

Cost of obtaining customs papers, licenses, registration at the United States Customs Office, services of the port officials at the point of landing and a fee for the duty guarantee bond total about $45, including cost of a $1000 marine insurance policy. In connection with the duty guarantee bond, it is required that $100 in cash be deposited. This is refunded after the trip.

The motorist desiring to tour Europe in his own car should apply to the Foreign Travel Bureau for a questionnaire covering details of the trip. Five small photographs should accompany the questionnaire when it is filled out and sent back.

On landing in England, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, or whatever the destination is, an A. A. A. representative will meet the traveler and see to prompt unloading of the automobile, its clearance through the customs office.

An important item is insurance for the car. Policies ordinarily written by American companies do not cover the owner when he is out of the United States, so a clause providing for adequate foreign claim service should be added.

General Motors Dealers Present Spring Display

St. Louis distributors and dealers of the General Motors organization are taking part this week in a nation-wide display of passenger cars. The spring showing began yesterday at local showrooms and will continue through next Saturday. More than 23,000 dealers over the country are exhibiting about 125,000 cars simultaneously.

Various divisions, such as Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Cadillac, Buick and Oakland are co-operating in this event, one of the most extensive of the year. In announcing the spring showing, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors, declared:

"I am sure that General Motors has every reason to feel proud of its accomplishments. Every time I look at the modern motor car and consider the value given the public, I am impressed with what this industry has accomplished during the relatively few years of its existence."

In connection with the week's displays, the following dealers have a representative showing of Oldsmobile sixes and new Viking eights: Igou Motors, Inc., 2922 North Grand boulevard; Lambert-Graves Motor Co., 2233 Locust street and 4035 Lindell boulevard; Grebe Motor Co., 1645 South Grand boulevard; Jerry Mueller Motor Co., 5800 Olive Street road; Kingchester Motor Co., 4576 Manchester avenue; Tucker Motor Co., 3657 Gravois avenue; Larner Motor Car Co., 5180 Delmar boulevard; Franke Auto Co., Hamilton and Ridge avenues, and Mauer Motor Co., 1013 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis.

Motoring Maps Give Compete Highway Data

Requests for the 50-page auto trails atlas of the United States and Eastern Canada continue to be received in large numbers by the Resort and Travel Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. The atlases give information as to highway conditions and mileage between different cities and towns and include mileage charts. They sell for 50 cents or 60 cents by mail.

Equally in demand are the maps of St. Louis and vicinity, showing towns, highways, rivers, streams, lakes and other topography. These sell for 20 cents at the Post-Dispatch or 24 cents mailed. Individual state maps cost 10 cents or 12 cents mailed.

City guides, priced at 25 cents and 30 cents mailed, give location of streets, street car lines and public buildings and also contain a map of Greater St. Louis. Maps of the St. Louis street car system sell at 40 cents or 45 cents mailed.

Four Studebakers In Good Will Tour

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 20.—A nation-wide good will tour covering the four great transcontinental routes from New York to Los Angeles will be launched here May 1. Four Studebaker President eights will make the tour, arriving in Los Angeles for the convention of the Elks grand lodge July 8. The tour will be partly for the purpose of supplying information as to the convention to all Elks lodges visited along the way.

The start from New York will be made May 10. One car will travel down the Atlantic coast, and west to California; another will pass through St. Louis, Kansas City and New Mexico; a third will travel almost due west through Omaha, Neb., and Salt Lake City, Utah, and the fourth will follow the northern route, through Cleveland, O., Chicago and Minneapolis.

Chevrolet Freight Bill Was $46,000,000

The freight bill of the Chevrolet Motor Co. on inbound and outbound shipments of 16 domestic plants totaled more than $46,000,000 in 1928, it is asserted by C. R. Scharff, general traffic director. This was an increase of $11,000,000 over the 1927 freight bill. The report indicates the heavy demands made annually on the the railroads by automobile manufacturers.

Freight cars carrying Chevrolets numbered 272,368, and carried 7,968,047,324 pounds. The original schedule for 1929 of 1,250,000 cars and trucks from the Chevrolet factories has been increased to about 1,350,000 and this will mean a similar growth in the company's freight business, Scharff added.

Peerless Production Held at High Level

Officials of the Peerless Motor Car Corporation, which has completed the greatest quarter in its history, anticipate that all shipment records will be broken in April. The factory is working at top speed to produce the low-priced Six-61. Roadsters of this model are just coming into full production.

Production of the new Straight Eight-125 is also getting under way rapidly. Detailed public announcement will soon be made of this aristocrat of the Peerless line. A feature will be a "no-back" device, which automatically stops back-rolling on inclines.

CAR PRODUCTION IS MAINTAINED AT FACTORIES

clination and is maintained at record high levels, with little indication of any marked curtailment. Sales are high and undoubtedly close to the year's peak. Light delivery models form the basis for most of the business and are now moving in extremely heavy volume.

Manufacture of tires continues at high levels, being the result of heavy dealer ordering which, in turn, has been stimulated by a steadily improving consumer's market, caused by generally better weather. Consumer buying, while extremely heavy, is felt to be far from its peak which, in all probability, will not be reached for at least 30 days.

The crude rubber market has developed an easier tone and with the market becoming more stabilized, there is less possibility of price increases in the immediate future.

Italian Racer Enters Car for Indianapolis Race

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 20.—Gianfranco Comotti, famous Italian racing driver, has entered a car and will compete in the International 500-mile race to be held at the Indianapolis Speedway May 30. He will pilot a Talbot, made in France.

Comotti will join the foreign contingent which is headed by Louis Chiron of France, 1928 European racing champion, who will drive a DeLage. Comotti was a member of the tear of drivers of which Materassi was the leader. The latter, up to his death in a race at Monza, Italy, last year, was a leading European driver.

The Talbot is powered with a straight eight motor, with roller bearing crankshaft and connecting rods. It is supercharged. The feature of the chassis is a girder type frame of sufficient height to service as a body.

Air Horn as Warning.

A horn operated by compressed air to warn motorists approaching crossings is included in the equipment built by the American Locomotive Co. The horn is operated by air from the brake system. It has orifices, which sound to each side and to the front.

Pierce-Arrow Has Three New Dealers

W. G. Astridge, sales manager of the Western Automobile Co., Pierce-Arrow distributer in this territory, announces appointment of three new dealers. Payne-Burnett Co., of Paducah, Ky.; Jefferson-Johnson Motors Co. of Quincy, Ill., and Hancock Motor Co. of Lawrenceville, Ill., have been added to the extensive list of dealers handling the new Pierce-Arrow straight eights, Astridge stated.

General Motors Sold 205,117 Cars in March

General Motors dealers delivered 205,118 cars to consumers in March, according to Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president. This compares with 183,706 cars in March, 1928, an increase of 21,412 cars or 11.7 per cent.

Sales by General Motors factories to dealers totaled 220,391 cars in March, an increase of 11.4 per cent. Both figures for last month constitute records in the company's history, Sloan stated.

If it were possible to drive blindfolded

You would immediately identify which was the Marmon Straight-8

WE really wish it were possible to give you an Automobile Blindfold Test. You would have four cars to drive—one of them a Marmon Straight-Eight, the others to be well-known sixes selling for about the same money. The object: to identify your choice by "feel" alone.

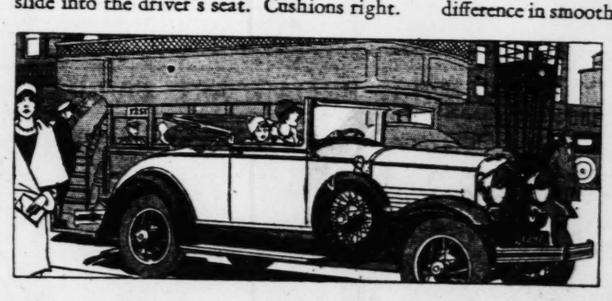
You get the Marmon "feel" when you slide into the driver's seat. Cushions right. Steering wheel big but easy to grasp. Levers just where you want them. Pedals, too.

Now let the Marmon straight-eight powerplant go to work. Touch your toe to the accelerator, and you immediately sense and feel the difference in smoothness and more immediate power at your command. Operation so effortless that the motor seems to be only half trying. That's the charm and the secret of the two extra cylinders. The difference is immediate and unmistakable.

May we ask you now to remove the blindfold and let this Marmon fulfill what it has promised?

Speed? Up to the high numbers. Hills? Try it on any—see if you have to shift. Power? Drive through some deep sand or mud. Pick-up? Step it out at the next semaphore—you're in front!

There is a Marmon straight-eight (the New 68) available for you now as low as $1465. Also the New 78, $1965. (Prices at factory. De luxe equipment extra.) May we put one of these cars at your disposal today for a thorough personal testing?



Above—Marmon 68 Collapsible Coupe, one of many Marmon body styles which provide smart, modern transportation at extremely moderate cost. Attractive Income-Payment Plan.

GOOD WILL USED CARS

At St. Louis A

LAMBERT-ST. LOUIS FIELD is to have another airplane factory. Albert Von Hoffmann, president of the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Corporation, announced last week that he was preparing to build an assembly plant for the Eaglerock Bullet, new low-wing monoplane.

The plant will be situated on the Wabash tracks, east of the Mahoney-Ryan factory. Plans for the building will be announced shortly.

The Bullet, a cabin plane with places for five persons, was developed at the Eaglerock factory at Colorado Springs and is now offered for sale at $8000, with a whirlwind engine. The fuselage resembles a projectile and a top speed of 150 miles an hour is claimed for the ship. Retracting landing gear is a feature.

The two plane factories now operating at Lambert Field are the Mahoney-Ryan Co., and the Curtiss-Robertson Co.

Apron for Taxi Space.

City engineers are surveying the west side of Lambert Field preparatory to installing a concrete apron, 200 feet wide and about 1000 feet long in front of the hangars. Part of the concrete strip will be set aside for spectators, the rest to be used for taxing planes. Preliminary to starting the work the old fence, several abandoned gas pumps and other old construction has been removed and a temporary fence has been strung between the hangars. The flood lights on that side of the field will be placed on one of the buildings and the beacon tower is to be dismantled and the beacon installed on top the grain elevator at Anglum. Spaces between hangars will also be concreted and a comfort station is to be built.

Bond Issue Buildings.

Plans are also being drawn for a new headquarters building and hangars for the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service, for which an appropriation of $75,000 is authorized under the bond issue.

The headquarters building will be erected in the rear of the present hangars occupied by the National Guard. Two new hangars will be built to the north of the present hangars, which probably will be turned over to the Army and Naval Reserve units.

Aviation Exhibit.

A demonstration covering various aviation activities will be held at the Famous-Barr Dry Goods Co. for two weeks, starting tomorrow. The exhibition is being conducted by the Universal Aviation Corporation. Air mail and passenger service, the training of pilots and mechanics, and various overhaul and repair activities will be demonstrated. Several planes, engines and accessories will be on display.

Student Barracks Fitted Up.

The new student barracks of the Von Hoffman Flying School have been fitted up in attractive style. Neat beds, comfortable chairs, showers, a recreation room containing a library and musical instruments make the place homelike.

Capt. John Berry, balloonist, is in charge of the barracks.

Reaches Dying Mother by Air.

Dr. Richard Light, a flying cadet at Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., traveled 1500 miles by plane and train Thursday to reach the bedside of his mother, who was seriously ill at their home in Kalamazoo, Mich. He left San Antonio in an army plane at 5:30 a. m., boarded the Safeway passenger ship at Dallas at 8:30 and reached Lambert Field in time to become a passenger on the afternoon mail plane for Chicago, where he took a train home. Dr. Light is the only medical graduate now in the army flying school.

New Passenger Service.

Passengers will be carried over the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route beginning May 1.

The new Boeing mail planes to be put in service by the Robertson Aircraft Corporation on that date have places for four passengers in two compartments between the mail compartment and the pilot's cockpit. The present air mail schedule, with departure at 4:15 p. m. and arrival at Chicago three hours later, will be maintained. The regular St. Louis-Chicago passenger service conducted by the Robertson company will be continued, giving passengers two schedules to Chicago.

Surveying New Line.

A survey for a proposed passenger line from Kansas City to Cleveland by way of St. Louis is being made by the Universal Aviation Corporation, now operating lines to Chicago and Kansas City.

The sky diner, a tri-motored Fokker recently withdrawn from the Chicago-Minneapolis service, is used to make the survey. The ship is piloted by "Bud" Gurney, who is accompanied by traffic and operations representatives of the company. The proposed line will have rail connections at Cleveland and Kansas City.

15 Robins Built in Week.

The Curtiss-Robertson plant turned out 15 new Robins last week. The plant schedule calls for 14 ships this week and present orders indicate that this pace must be maintained for the next several months. The new paint department at the plant is nearing completion and is much needed.

Drops Wreath on Flyer's Grave.

Lieut. Frank Dunn, pilot for Phil Ball, piloted a National Guard plane over Lake Charles Cemetery Thursday and dropped a wreath during the burial of Lieut. Shapley Gray, who lost his life in a leap from a disabled plane last Sunday.

Discusses New Airport.

"Casey" Jones, head of Curtiss Flying Service, visited St. Louis during the week. He conferred with J. D. Livingston, vice president of the Curtiss-Robertson Co. and discussed plans for the new airport on the East Side, which Curtiss Flying Service will share with T. A. T.

Rushing Repairs.

Charlie Rousch, pilot for the Robertson Aircraft Co., made a trip to Cincinnati last Wednesday in a Ryan brougham, carrying a 150-pound electro-generator replacement part for which an urgent call had been sent in by a Cincinnati manufacturing concern. Rousch made the trip in three hours. The part was supplied by a St. Louis concern.

Planes Commandeered for Army.

Dan Robertson, brother of Maj. William B., and Frank Robertson, who is personal pilot for a wealthy Mexican, came home last week to buy a new plane for his employer. The Mexican Government commandeered the three planes owned by Dan Robertson's employer to use in the campaign against the rebels. Dan has instructions not to cross the border with the new ship until the revolution is over.

Class in Business Aviation.

The first class in "business aviation" opened Thursday evening at the Universal company's night school at 3312 Lindell boulevard.

Twenty-five students, representing various office occupations, are enrolled in the course, which is designed to fit them for office positions with aviation concerns.

Orders for Ryan Broughams.

The following orders for Ryan broughams were reported during the week by the Mahoney-Ryan Aircraft Co.: Aero Service, Inc., South Bend, Ind.; C. L. Morgan, an attorney, Fort Worth, Tex.; and the Aircraft Holdings Corporation of New Mexico. Two ships ordered previously were shipped during the week, one going to China and the other to Los Angeles.

Von Hoffmann Returns.

Bernard Von Hoffmann, vice president of the Von Hoffman Aircraft Corporation, returned home following an aerial business trip in the East and South.

"Columbia" Gets His License.

Alfred Dunlap, known to everyone at Lambert Field as "Columbia," has received his license as a transport pilot. After spending several years in haphazard fashion trying to learn to fly, "Columbia" enrolled for a flying course in a regular course and was graduated.

Goes to Seattle for Ship.

Mail Pilot R. D. Newton departed for Seattle, Wash., Friday to bring back the second Boeing mail plane for the St. Louis-Chicago route.

Dance for Employes.

Employes of the Universal Aviation Corporation will hold an informal dance at Roosevelt Hotel next Saturday night. Miss Lucille McTigue of the Lambert Field stenographic force will be hostess.

Hired as Test Pilot.

David McCauley, Lambert Field flying instructor, has been engaged as a test pilot for the United States Bureau of Standards with headquarters at Washington. He is a graduate of the Army flying school and has a record of 1100 hours in the air.

Special Air Cancellation Stamp.

A special air mail cancellation satmp is being designed for use during the meeting of the Aeronautic Division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, to be held at Hotel Jefferson, May 27 to 30.

British Flyer Views Field.

Capt. S. R. D'Oyly Hughes of the British Royal Flying Corps, who is in the United States to make a study of commercial aviation, arrived at Lambert Field last week and will spend some time here reviewing local activities.

Three New Flying Schools.

The Universal Aviation Corporation has announced the opening of three new flying schools and the purchase of $100,000 worth of new training planes. The new schools will be established at Kansas City, Mo., Cleveland, O., and Columbus, O. The equipment order covers 20 training planes purchased from the Fleet Aircraft Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Three of the ships have been delivered to the local Universal School.

Back to Crescent, Ia.

P. A. Eckland and Wallace Shinn, Lambert Field graduates, departed last week in a Standard biplane for Crescent, Ia., Shinn's home town, where they expect to go into the passenger carrying business.

Hildebrand Goes to Omaha.

L. C. Hildebrand, an assistant in the operations department of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, has been transferred to Omaha, where he will be in charge of operations of the new air mail and passenger service to be inaugurated by the company May 1.

Mail Pilots Shifted.

John Hunter is now flying the St. Louis-Evansville mail route in place of Joe Hammer, who was transferred to another run on the Interstate company's system. Hunter's brother, Walter, is a pilot on the St. Louis-Kansas City passenger route.

Rotarians Travel by Air.

Thirteen Alton (Ill.) Rotarians chartered a plane at Lambert Field last week for a trip to Springfield, Ill., where they attended a meeting of Rotary clubs.

Refueled in St. Louis.

Visiting planes refueled at Lambert Field during the week included a Sikorsky Amphbian on its way to Louisville, Ky.; a Ryan brougham of the Texas-Pacific Oil Co.; a Fleet biplane going to Little Rock, Ark.; a Fokker transport of Western Air Express; a Whirlwind Travel-Air; and a new Knoll.

Bendix Aviation Co. Formed.

Formation of the Bendix Aviation Corporation, with an authorized stock issue of 3,000,000 shares, was announced by Victor Bendix of New York yesterday. The new company will take over assets and business of the Bendix Corporation and its subsidiaries, such as the Bendix Brake Co., the Eclipse Machine Co., the Delco Aviation Corporation, the Stromberg Carburetor Co. of America and the Scintilla Magneto Corporation. The various companies controlled by the Bendix Corporation manufacture automobile and airplane parts and accessories.

Henderson Made Manager.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Clifford W. Henderson, who directed the 1928 Los Angeles National Air Races and Aeronautical Exposition, voted by the National Aeronautic Association as the greatest air classic in American Aviation history, has been appointed Manager of the Aircraft Show Section of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, according to an announcement made here by C. L. Lawrence, chairman of the chamber's show committee.

..A "Gas" Tax for Germany.

Preparation for a rush of highway and motor transportation development in Germany during the next five years is causing Dr. Werner Fellchenfeld to make a study of gasoline taxation and other problems related to motor transport in the United States. He will later prepare the way for a commission of officials of the German Government.

2 EXTRA MILES FROM EVERY GALLON OF GAS

UNTIL you have driven the new Nash "400" with the Twin Ignition motor, you can have no adequate idea of how much pleasure it has added to motoring.

Here are some plain, unvarnished facts and figures which may serve to convince you that you owe yourself a ride in a Twin-Ignition-Motored Nash.

With Twin Ignition instead of single ignition (two spark plugs per cylinder firing simultaneously, instead of one) higher compression is practical, and a much more efficient combustion of the gases is accomplished.

The result is that the identical Nash motor, by actual test, produces 22% more power than with single ignition, 5 miles per hour more speed, and gives you 2 extra miles of travel from every single gallon of gasoline you buy.

In fairness to yourself, don't think of buying any car today, until you have seen and driven the brilliant new Twin-Ignition-Motored Nash "400."

Hudson-Essex Adds Two More Local Dealers

Firm in Maplewood and One in Overland Hold Openings.

Two more dealers have been added to the Hudson-Essex organization in greater St. Louis a total of three new dealers within the past two weeks, R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., announced.

R. L. Cochran, a veteran in St. Louis automobile circles and member of the Chamber of Commerce of Overland, Mo., and J. C. Jones, former Ford salesman and later a salesman for Hudson-Frampton, have organized the Cochran-Jones Hudson Essex Co., and established sales service quarters at 2601 Woodson road, Overland.

The Maplewood Hudson Essex Co. has opened a dealer agency at 7195 Manchester avenue, Maplewood. George E. Van Horn, formerly in the Chicago offices of Commercial Investment Trust, a national finance company, and later general manager of the Hudson-Essex agency at Battle Creek, Mich., is president of the Maplewood firm.

Both dealers presented their opening displays yesterday. Each has adequate sales and service facilities.

Frampton reports that business of the Hudson-Frampton Co. to date in 1929 has been 41 per cent greater than in the same period in 1928. The company is distributer of Hudson and Essex ...rs in 34 Missouri and Illinois ties. He also reports that ...sands of persons viewed the cars in the Essex Challenger month which closed March 31.

"While the Hudson factory was working at full shifts, producing 1900 cars a day," Frampton stated, "sales exceeded production during March. The production schedule for Hudson and Essex machines was 110,000 units in the first three months of 1929. The schedule for the next three calls for an output of 140,000 units."

He pointed out that Essex dealers at present are able to fill orders within two weeks of receipt.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Automobile drivers in the United States keep to the right.

Automobile drivers in England, Austria, Sweden, Argentina and Angola keep to the left.

How did these opposite customs arise?

"For the world divides roughly half and half on the rule of the motoring road," says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The present score is: 60 of the nations and colonies favor the right side drive; 43 cling to the left. Iraq added one to the right side score when she decided to reverse the English rule of left side driving, which has been in use there since the World War, and return to her former rule of Keeping to the right.

"The need of a uniform rule is not so apparent in North America as in Europe. Consider the problem of a motorist who tries to drive from Norway to Italy through the Dolomites. He starts bravely out from Oslo, keeping to the right until he reaches the Swedish border. Thereupon he keeps to to the left. Let him have his wits about him, because, when he ferries over to Denmark, he must again move over to the right of the road. Germany the same, he thanks heaven. Back again to the left in Czecho-Slovakia. And just as the bewildered autoist gets used to left driving in Austria, he must steel his nerves to switch back to the right rule of the road in Jugo-Slavia and Italy.

"Probably our custom had its origin because it was natural to grasp weapons with the right hand while the left hand carried the shield over the heart on the left side of the body. From this it follows that armed men passed each other shield to shield, left hand to left hand.

"That fact accounts for the pedestrian custom of the keeping to the right.

"Even in England the rule of the sidewalk or pathway is 'keep to the right.' How then did England acquire the custom of keeping to the left on highways?

"One student of the problem finds the origin of the practice in the habit of the English coachman of sitting on the right side of the coach driver's seat. He grasped the whip in his right hand. In passing another coach he wanted to be in a position where he could best prevent a collision. So he passed an oncoming coach on that coach's right. From his seat on the right of his coach he could see how near his wheels came to those of the other vehicle.

"The English rule of the road was made a law in 1835 but before that date this poem appeared in an English journal:

"The law of the road is a paradox quite.
As you're driving your carriage along;
If you go to the left you're sure to go right.
If you go to the the right you go wrong."

"On the Continent it was more frequently the custom for a postilion to guide the horses than a coachman. The postilion took his place at the left of the lead team in order to have his right hand free to grasp the nearest bridle. He also wanted to avoid collisions, but, being on the left, it was better for him to turn his horses to the right. Thus France and other European countries have the same rule of the road as the United States.

"It has been suggested that automobiles in America keep to the right because oxen did in the old days. Oxen were the draft animals most used in the colonies. The ox driver directed them by voice and whip. He held his whip in his right hand and trudged along on the left of the oxen and, therefore, turned to the right.

"All the countries of the New World keep to the right except British Honduras, Panama, Paraguay, Argentina, Uruguay and Prince Edward Island in Canada. The Far East follows the British, or left-turning custom, almost unanimously; China, Japan, Siam and even the Philippines. That the Philippines should reverse the American custom is surprising. Generally as a country drives so drives the colony or protectorate. Nearly all British colonies follow the mother country's lead. Exceptions, are Iraq, Palestine, Canada and British Guiana. Most French colonies keep to the right with France but Angola has the left-driving rule, although Portugal stands by the 'right.'"

EUROPE LOSES LEADERSHIP IN FINE CAR FIELD

A few years ago the American who sought the latest creations in motor cars looked to European builders, but American artistry and craftsmanship now dominate the fine car field, in the opinion of H. H. Franklin, president of the Franklin Automobile Co.

"It used to be a widespread belief that in style, quality, originality of design, fine fittings and upholstery and outstanding engine performance, the Europeans far surpassed us," Franklin said in a recent interview. "A careful survey of the fine car business in this country reveals a complete reversal of this condition.

"The great inroads that American manufacturers of fine cars have made in the past few years is a distinct tribute to the industry in this country. At recent international salons in Paris and London, where the leading manufacturers of the world exhibited their products, marked interest was shown in American-built cars.

"Today America has gained the position formerly occupied by Europe in this field."

A. L. Dyke of St. Louis Owned Motor Quadricycle in 1900

A De Dion-Bouton "quadricycle," said to be the first self-propelled vehicle imported into the United States, was at one time owned by A. L. Dyke of St. Louis, a pioneer automobile and parts manufacturer, and is now the property of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington.

Purchased in France in 1896 by a St. Louisan named McMillan, it was later acquired by Dyke, who operated it in the streets of St. Louis until 1902, when he disposed of it.

"The vehicle, a cross between a motorcycle and a sidecar, performed remarkably well," Dyke says. "Its speed ranged from three to 25 miles an hour. If a hill were too steep, you could help it along by working the pedals, which were also used in starting the motor. The engine was of the single-cylindered, air-cooled, vertical type, geared directly to the rear axle. Jump spark electric ignition, with a dry battery to supply current, was used. The carburetor was merely a tank containing highly volatile gasoline from which the vapor was drawn by suction of the piston through an automatic inlet valve in the engine head. Later this was replaced by a constant level, or float-feed type, of carburetor designed by George P. Dorris and myself."

Dyke further related that the machine could be driven through traffic with ease. "In those days," he continued "traffic consisted mostly of horse-drawn vehicles, and one could drive on either side of the street. Imagine such a condition today and you will understand why an automobile trying to do 15 or 20 miles an hour on the streets of St. Louis in 1900 was declared a nuisance."

Although entered in the first automobile race to be held in Missouri, Aug. 5, 1900, the strange contraption did not win. The race was promoted by the Automobile Club, and contestants included John L. French, who drove a gasoline vehicle designed by George Dorris and built by the St. Louis Motor Carriage Co.; Sample Scott, in an electric runabout; A. D. Scott, in a similar vehicle; Dyke, in his quadricycle, and Harry R. Geer, in a steamer. French won the two-mile race in the "fast" time of four minutes and 36 seconds, "speeding" at the rate of 26.08 miles an hour.

The De Dion machine was also on exhibit at the first automobile show held in the State, Oct. 1 to 7, 1900. The display was in the old Exposition Hall, the site of which is now occupied by the Public Library. Dyke also exhibited two electric vehicles he designed and built himself.

Anna Held, famous actress, took a De Dion quadricycle with her on her many trips across the country. She employed a chauffeur to operate the machine.

Highway Obstacles.

"Bumper gates" are used on the highway from San Antonio to El Paso, Tex., through the vast grazing area. These obstacles consist of swinging gates across the highway which may be opened by moving the bumper of the car up to them and driving through. The gate is weighted so that it closes by itself. The gates are installed for the purpose of keeping range cattle from straying from one ranch property to another, the land not being fenced parallel with the highway, but only on lines which cross the highway.

Story of Spark Plug in Movie For Government

The Champion Spark Plug Co., at the request of the United States Department of Commerce and Bureau of Mines, has made a new motion picture, entitled "On the Firing Line or the Story of the Spark Plug."

Recently gasoline conservation became such a vital problem that the Government made an exhaustive study of fuel waste in internal combustion engines and has been carrying on an educational campaign to encourage gas saving in motoring. The Champion company produced a successful photoplay a few weeks ago. The second edition of the film has now been released for showing.

Observers of the new film are said to have been impressed with these facts: That a hot, intense spark means economy, power and a "live" engine and that deterioration of spark plugs results in loss of power, wastage of gasoline and oil and wear on engine.

New Speedway in Spain.

A modern automobile road, 260 miles long, is under construction between San Sebastian and Madrid, Spain. The roadway will be 36 feet wide, with six feet set aside for parked cars. The curves are to be made wider and will be banked, enabling drivers to make turns without having to slacken their speed. At every few miles there will be stationed small huts, where one can buy gas, tires and other accessories, and at no point will there by any intersection with other roads. Where other roads cross from the speedway they will either be elevated or tunneled.

Roosevelt, Marmon Sales Show Increase

Capacity productions of new Roosevelt cars, as well as an increase in shipments of Marmon "68" and "78," straight eight models, is reported by the Marmon company as the result of heavy retail orders in all three lines received since April 1.

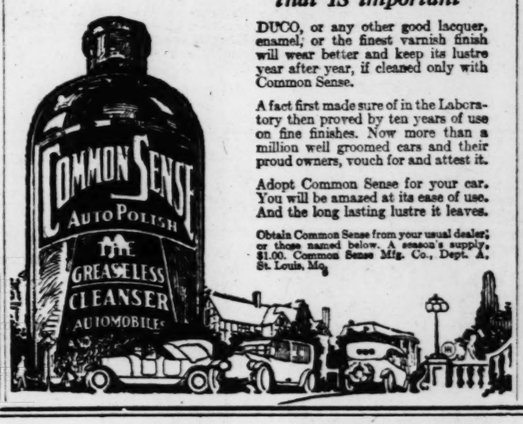
Although the Roosevelt, first eight to sell below $1000, was not introduced to the public until a few weeks ago, demand for the new car has taxed the manufacturing and shipping facilities of the Marmon company to the greatest extent in the company's history. The company reports a 40 per cent increase in operations in March and the best week in its history from April 1 to 7.

Production at present is averaging 250 Roosevelt and Marmon cars a day. Roosevelt shipments consist mostly of five-passenger sedan models.

Engineers at the Marmon factories are now inspecting completed units. This is said to be a new departure in manufacturing practice. Heretofore inspection by engineers has been limited to the design of new cars, testing, experimental work and operation of research laboratories, it is said.

Cleans cars—safely!

and for year after year use that IS important



DUCO, or any other good lacquer, enamel, or the finest varnish finish will wear better and keep its lustre year after year, if cleaned only with Common Sense.

A fact first made sure of in the Laboratory then proved by ten years of use on fine finishes. Now more than a million well groomed cars and their proud owners, vouch for and attest it.

Adopt Common Sense for your car. You will be amazed at its ease of use. And the long lasting lustre it leaves.

Buick Sales Manager Says Prosperity Is Closely Allied With Social and Economic Life in America—Tells of New Car.

Discussing the new six which will be manufactured by Buick, although it will be lower priced and entirely different in engine and body style, C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Co., touches on some interesting points regarding the psychology that influences the public in buying automobiles.

In a statement issued yesterday, Churchill said: "The modern American family, having played an important role in dispelling the saturation bugaboo in automotive transportation, was given a great deal of consideration in Buick's plan of adding to its line a new car in the lower priced field.

"In recent years America has become more and more conscious of the values offered in the automotive industry. The American family has become motor-minded. With a complete understanding of these facts, gained through a quarter of a century of fine car building, the Buick company will shortly introduce a car attractive in price and with quality performance, which will fit admirably into the scheme of modern family life.

"A study of automobile sales statistics for many years reveals an interesting fact about the evolution of automobile ownership in the average family. It shows that extremely few persons, once they have owned a car, ever join the ranks of non-owners.

"First, there develops the desire for ownership. Friends, relatives, neighbors have cars. The desire becomes so strong that concerted economy—saving with the definite goal of ownership—is adopted.

"Who cannot recall the day when it was usual, if you were getting up a social affair of some sort, to make sure that each guest had transportation, so that one of the few so fortunate as to own an automobile might accommodate those without cars? What a long time it has been since we heard such an inquiry! It is taken for granted today that every family has an automobile—one at least. Of course, not every family has a car, but it may be assumed that every family without one is wishing that it had, and that most of these families are practicing the strictest sort of thrift to hasten the day when they, too, will take to wheels.

"Today the utility of the motor car is amazingly varied. The head of the family finds the automobile all but indispensible for his transportation to and from business. Professional men and women are almost as dependent upon its fast, reliable service as upon their specialized knowledge itself. The housewife, using the car for shopping, finds it possible to conduct the household upon a smaller budget, for her marketing area is broadened vastly and she can shop around for values as never before.

"With all these thoughts in mind, the Buick Motor Co. has decided to produce a new car which will meet everyone of these requirements. In designing such a car, we have been conscious of the new and greater demands placed upon automotive transportation. It must not alone be attractive in price and appearance, but it must also meet the demand for performance and stamina, which modern highways and traffic have made necessary.

"There is every reason to believe that the extremely powerful appeal of the automobile—the fascination of owning a dynamic, moving thing—has stimulated the nation's prosperity by creating a greater incentive for thrift than ever before existed. Doesn't it look sometimes as if the desire to own automobiles had not only encouraged men to work, but taught them to save, too? And isn't it evident, with this process still going on, that the automobile market is going to expand a lot further before it even settles down to a constant annual quantity?"

"The automobile is woven so closely into our social and economic life that we cannot vision modern civilization without it. The mere pleasure-riding aspect of automobile ownership—once the major reason for buying a car—is the least important consideration today; yet this argument for buying is tremendous, as witness the Sunday procession of pleasure seekers on any highway in the land," Churchill concluded.

"Cannon Ball" Baker Still Setting Records

throttle, the first one I'd ever seen, and when I went around corners I'd unknowingly twist the throttle wide open in my attempt to stay on the track. From the grandstand the effect must have been wonderful—but to this day I don't know why I didn't kill myself when going around those corners. When I finally brought the old boat to a halt, the Circus Boss wiped a moist brow and asked me my name.

"'Erwin Baker,' I replied.

"'Erwin me eye,' he flared. 'No guy that drives like that should be called Erwin. From now on your name is Cannonball, and your pay is eighteen a week.'

"The name stuck, although I've had a couple of raises in pay since then. Well, I worked with that circus all summer, racing around the dirt tracks throughout the Middle West. I managed to save about $150—and you can guess what I bought with my savings. Right! A brand-new motor cycle, bright red, and guaranteed to deliver 80 miles an hour. When I got through tuning it up, there wasn't a bike on the dirt track circuit that could outrun that streak of red paint.

"My next two years were spent breaking track records at various state fairs. I've never figured up how many local records I broke, but it's way up in the hundreds. It was a tough racket, but I gained a helmetful of experience. Some of those experiences were wildly hazardous, involving the loss of limbs, machine, and once or twice the lives of close associates.

"One day a chap named Bob Perry and I were meeting some local boys in a 25-mile exhibition race at Rockford, Ill. I was out in front, leading my teammate Perry by about 50 yards; the rest of the pack was half a lap behind. A vicious blowout twisted the handlebars out of my grip, my machine whizzed from under me, and I was catapulted in a semicircle through the air, landing flat on my back in the middle of the track.

"My instinct was to get up and crawl off the track. But a secondary reaction told me that old Perry would come thundering past in a split second, and that the slightest movement on my part would confuse matters fatally. So I lay motionless on my back, looking up at the deep blue sky for three eternities. Perry, by adroit steering and lightning headwork, veered his machine away from my head and midriff—but couldn't avoid my ankles. He shot across my shins going like a motor-driven bullet. As soon as he was past, I rolled over and over till I reached the edge of the track, and sat up in time to see Bob slide across the finish line an easy winner. I made him buy me a quart of liniment with his prize money—and he said he was glad he didn't have to spend the money on flowers.

"I soon began to notice something about my motor cycle brethren. They could go just as fast as I could, and were every bit as nervy—but somehow they didn't seem to have my endurance. I discovered that I could ride for 24 hours a day, and feel as fit at the finish as at the sendoff. This quality of endurance had no particular value in the 25-mile races, but when the motor cycles began to improve, and we were asked by manufacturers to shoot at long-distance marks, I realized I could sit astride a bike just a bit longer than the other fellow.

"In 1916 I determined to give my staying powers a thorough test. So I entered in the 24-hour grind at Cincinnati, O., where they were holding out a big stake to anyone who could break the track record for distance.

"We started at 8 a. m., and for 16 hours I clicked off better than 65 an hour, stopping only for gas and oil (and water for myself). That track was as hot as a griddle; there wasn't a breath of wind to ease the rays of a midsummer sun.

"About 11 p. m., when I was well in the lead, and everything seemed to be rolling my way, a swarm of gnats settled over the track. The tiny insects began splattering against my goggles; they'd stick there, and as soon as I'd wipe them off, another batch would come at my glasses like water out of a hose. Finally, one of them shot past the corner of my goggles, and landed smack in the corner of my eye! A harpoon couldn't have hurt worse.

"The pain drove me frantic, and before I knew what had happened my machine was headed for the top of the bowl-shaped track. In another yard it would have crashed through the guardrail and probably have killed a dozen spectators. I jerked the front wheel hard about,' as sailors say, but the movement was too abrupt. I was hurtled through the air, my bike tore ahead like a crazy rocket—and when I regained consciousness I was in the accident ward, with one eye blinder than a mole. The gnat had been removed, but the doctor told me it had paralyzed an optic nerve, and that only careful treatment would bring the eye back to normal.

"Well, as I lay there all banged up, I started figuring how I could get back into that race. I reckoned that if I could average 70 an hour till morning, I'd still have a chance at the prize. So I turned to the medico and asked him if my machine had been injured much.

"'Why no,' he said. 'It's in the pit, and in better condition than you are right now.'

"That was enough for me. 'Doc,' I said, 'I'll be back for breakfast.' Then I bounced off my cot and started for the track, steering with one good eye. The medico thought I was crazy, but I was never saner in my life. I wanted that first-prize money, and I wanted the satisfaction of knowing that I could take a fall and still keep going! During the next seven hours I whirled around that track like a marble in a cup, and when 8 a. m. arrived I had hung up a new track record of 1534 miles. With both eyes open I'd have done 200 miles better than that.

"After I had made certain I could take a long-distance licking, I conceived the idea that I could be of service to automobile manufacturers who wanted to give their product the severest possible testing under actual road conditions. A thousand miles of road test is worth 10,000 miles of laboratory analysis. So I broached my proposition to R. E. Olds, designer of the Reo and the Oldsmobile, and one of the great geniuses in the automotive industry."

Baker Sets Record In Franklin Sedan

Driving through desert heat and across wind-swept mountains, over the famous route from Los Angeles to Phoenix, Ariz., and return, "Cannon Ball" Baker, piloting a model 135 stock air-cooled Franklin sedan recently clipped one hour and 11 minutes from the former record and lowered the train time between these two points by four hours and 33 minutes.

The Franklin made the 892 miles of desert and mountain highway in 17 hours and 47 minutes, an average of 57.16 miles an hour. Baker covered the 466 miles of the eastward route in 8 hours and 31 minutes and the return route, through a gale, in 9 hours and 16 minutes. During the journey the engine temperature did not exceed 190 degrees, he reported.

The route Baker covered is regarded as one of the severest tests for a car's power, speed, stamina and general roddibility.

Cities Share in Gas Tax of Only 4 States

Municipalities share in the distributing of receipts from gasoline taxes in only four of the 47 states levying a tax, according to Prof. M. H. Hunter, taxation expert of the College of Commerce, University of Illinois.

Indiana and Ohio each allow cities a small percentage of the tax, one-twelfth in the former and 30 per cent of the three cents in the latter. Maryland and Louisiana allow their largest cities a small part of the tax for local purposes. New Orleans being empowered to levy an additional one-cent tax.

While the present legislative sessions may change the tax distribution in various states, there are only four states now using funds from their gasoline tax for other purposes. Three of them, Florida, Georgia and Texas, use a part of the receipts for educational purposes.

"The inclination to make other functions than highway construction and maintenance share in receipts from gasoline tax, and allow municipalities to receive part, at once leads to the question as to whether there is any justification for the policy," Prof. Hunter declared. "The increased agitation for an extension to the policy also makes it desirable to examine the merits for the modified distribution."

Roadbuilding in Canada.

Upwards of $7,100,000 will be spent in the Province of British Columbia this year for road construction. A further sum of $2,500,000 is to be spent for maintenance of highways and roads, and $1,000,000 has been voted by the provisional government for the construction, reconstruction and permanent improvement of trails and bridges required as access to the more important mineral areas within the province.

$8,750,000 on Roads In New Hampshire

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CONCORD, N. H., April 20.—An enlarged highway program for New Hampshire is assured by passage by the Legislature of two bills, signed by Gov. Charles W. Tobey, providing for bond issues totaling $8,750,000.

The New Engalnd Council for some time has been urging upon the Legislatures of the various states the need of a $1,000,000-a-year program covering 10 years, for construction of concrete highways in the six New England states. An increase in automobile registration fees, increase in the gasoline tax or bond issues were urged as methods of obtaining funds.

One of the bills passed provides for an $8,000,000 bond issue to be spent in 10 years. The other authorizes raising "by bonds or notes" $750,000 to be loaned to towns to aid them in completing sections of trunk lines within their corporate 712,965 Cars in Missouri.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Motor vehicle registrations in Missouri reached a total of 712,965 and motorists in that State paid $8,765,609 in registration fees. This is an increase of 30,546 motor vehicles and of $512,600 in fees, according to computations of the American Motorists' Association, based on official figures of the United States Census Bureau.

Plenty of room in the NEW SUPERIOR Whippet

An important advantage of the new Superior Whippet Four and Six is "Finger-Tip Control"—one button in center of steering wheel which operates starter, lights and horn.

THE larger bodies of the new Superior Whippet Four and Six afford more spacious interiors, with extra head room, leg room and elbow room. Seats are wider and deeply upholstered, with contours scientifically designed to fit natural body curves—thus enabling all passengers to enjoy restful, relaxed positions at all times. Riding comfort is further enhanced by the increased wheelbase, snubbers, oversize balloon tires and longer springs both front and rear.

The beautiful and ultra-modern design of the new Superior Whippet makes it the style authority in both the Four and light Six classes. Many tasteful refinements include longer lines, higher radiator and hood, chromium-plate, and sweeping one-piece full-crown fenders.

The faster speed and pick-up of the new Superior Whippet result from a higher compression engine, giving more than 20% added horsepower. Low consumption of gasoline and oil, and dependable performance, insure exceptional operating economy and minimum service costs.

LINCOLNS ON DISPLAY AT HOTEL CHASE

Ford Motor Co. Announces Salon Showing May 1 to 4.

The Ford Motor Co., in conjunction with the local Lincoln dealer, the Brodhead Co., 3333 Washington boulevard, announces a salon display of Lincoln cars at Hotel Chase on May 1, 2, 3 and 4. The exhibit will be one of the most extensive Lincoln displays ever seen in St. Louis and will represent an investment of more than $300,000.

Included in the various custom built models will be a town sedan by Willoughby, a three-passenger coupe by Judkins, sport phaeton by Locke, a Willoughby limousine and models by Lebaron, Dietrich and Brunn. Various color combinations, charming new body styles and the latest upholstery motifs will be presented.

A copper-plated chassis, showing a cut-away motor in actual operation, will be a feature, revealing the watch-like precision of the engine parts.

Another striking feature will be the Lincoln custom-built body in pure white and a display of the "millionth of an inch" set of Johannson gauges.

The salon will be open to the public from 1 to 11 p. m. daily.

U. S. Officers Study Truck Maintenance

PONTIAC, Mich., April 20.—Fifteen U. S. Army Reserve officers are enrolled in a 14-day course of instruction on motor truck maintenance being conducted by the General Motors Truck Co. in Pontiac.

This is part of the U. S. Army Reserve Officers' training program in which industrial leaders are co-operating. The class, which reported recently, was arranged by Capt. John R. Bailey, regular army instructor, Quartermaster's Corps.

At the opening of the school, an officer of the Medical Reserve Corps was on hand to make a physical examination of the reserve officers who reported for instruction. Sessions are being held in the service division of the General Motors Truck Co. and the course includes visits to the truck company's plant, the Oakland-Pontiac plant, Buick and A. C. Spark Plug Co., Flint, and the General Motors proving grounds in Milford.

Truck Companies Vote to Combine

Boards of directors of the Republic Motor Truck Co., Inc., of Alma, Mich., and the commercial truck division of the American-La France and Foamite Corporation have approved an agreement consolidating these two companies. The agreement is subject to ratification by stockholders May 15.

The merger brings together two of the largest truck companies in the industry. The new corporation will be known as the La France Republic Corporation, Charles B. Rose, president of the American-La France and Foamite Corporation, will head the new company.

It is believed that the American-La France plant at Bloomfield, N. J., will be sold and all manufacturing activities centered at Alma, Mich.

Low Gas Mileage Shows Need For Car Economy

Larger engines, high speed and acceleration—the triumvirate of fuel waste in the automobile—focus attention on the increasing importance of economy in the operation of cars. America is suffering from low gas mileage and the automobile industry looks to the car owner and driver himself as the man best equipped to make the remedy effective.

With the increase in piston displacement and unnecessary use of reserve power, gas mileage averages have materially decreased until it requires but a little inefficiency in operation to start one thinking of the high cost of filling up. Whereas a few years ago many people figured their mileage around 20, today one is not surprised if the average does not exceed 12 miles to the gallon. In overlooking the importance of maintaining their cars in a more efficient way, however, motorists are said to be missing an opportunity to raise the average mileage considerably above this minimum.

One popular make of car will do 16 miles to the gallon normally. If the spark of its high compression engine is not timed accurately mileage drops to 13 or less.

Where so much is expected of the modern car economy naturally hangs by a hair. Not being any too well versed in the business of getting more miles to the gallon, the average owner fails to obtain even normal results and too often submits to the situation as a necessary evil. To qualify as a motor modernist he must learn that the new cars require new methods in effecting fuel economy and that these plans must be adjusted to meet the needs of particular makes and models.

The way the gasoline filter is installed on some cars makes it prone to waste fuel, for example. If it is attached between the vacuum tank and the carburetor, and the bowl is not drawn up snug, a considerable amount of leakage can occur at this point.

Because of a growing tendency to give the car owner optional rear axle reduction ratios gas mileage sometimes appears satisfactory though the number of trips to the filling station prove otherwise. This can be attributed to failure to change the speedometer gearing in order to compensate for the change in rear axle gearing. Checking the accuracy of the speedometer is another point now being emphasized in the process of boosting gas mileage.

Of outstanding importance in the war against low gas mileage is skillful handling of the engine. This calls for less frequent use of power surplus, especially in acceleration. Seldom is it necessary for the driver to utilize all of the engine's reserve and to do so where there is no need for it is simply the equivalent of throwing away good money. Too many drivers feel that in accelerating to the limit they are displaying the remarkable abilities of their cars when, as a matter of fact, they are merely admitting that they are not aware of the equal abilities of rival cars. Any driver who is skillful in gear shifting still has the advantage of the man who merely relies on his engine to win for him the traffic race.

Use of Automobiles Brings About Change In Population Trend

Use of the automobile has resulted in the building up of suburban sections to the extent that tehe 1930 census is not expected to show the usual increase in urban popufation, figures compiled by the American Automobile Association reveal.

It is pointed out that in 1790 there were only six cities in the United States having as many as 8000 inhabitants. A statement by the association continues:

"The population of these cities formed alittle more than 3 per cent of the total population of the country. In 1920 there were 924 such cities and their population was nearly 44 per cent of the total. Including the population of smaller cities down to those with 2500 inhabitants, the urban population of the United States in 1920 formed a little more than half of the total and the rural a little less than half, while the farm population taken alone formed less than 30 per cent.

"It appears, therefore, that we are becoming more and more a nation of cities. But there are certain strong factors operating against this tendency. One of the most potent of these is the automobile. You may be obliged to work in a city, but if you own a car you can readily live out in the more spacious regions of hollyhocks, roses, and vegetable gardens. There are some who prophesy that by reason of this growth of suburban residential areas the 1930 census will not show the usual increase in the proportion of urban population."

A Motor Record of Black Marks.

Automobile accidents have not been reduced in New Jersey despite the new statutes for the protection of motorists. A total of 225 children under 15 years of age were killed by cars during the past year. Licenses of 1952 drivers were revoked for drunken driving—one-third the total number of revocations in the State.

Cost of Operating Car.

After studying the records of more than 800 automobiles, Prof. T. R. Agg, highway engineer in the civil engineering department of Iowa State College, estimates the average operating cost of motor vehicles is 6½ cents a mile. The maximum is 9½ cents for heavy automobiles, and the minimum 4 cents for light cars, he claims.

Red Tail Lights for Horses.

Because of the numerous horsemen cantering about the streets of Irvington, N. J., the city authorities are drawing up an ordinance to require horses to carry red tail lights after dark. No mention is made of headlights.

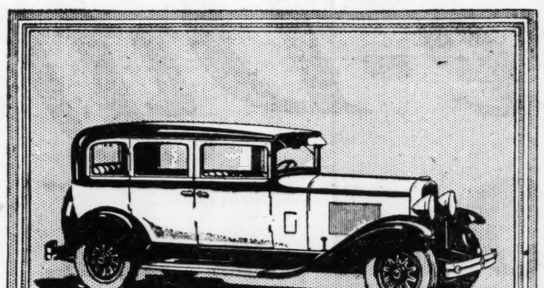
VIKING EIGHT



PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

The new Viking—just announced—is one of the principal attractions of the General Motors Spring Showing. A product of General Motors, built by Oldsmobile—it brings to the medium-price field the advantages of 90-degree V-type eight-cylinder design.

It introduces elements of beauty, performance, and engineering never before available in a car of this price. The Viking is trimly tailored in appearance. Its fleet, low lines and graceful proportions are the most recent expression of Fisher designing skill.

Viking performance is the result of new developments in the 90-degree V-type principle, brought about by the introduction of new engineering advancements based on well-established time-proven fundamentals. This new engine delivers 81 horsepower, with exceptional smoothness throughout the entire speed range, and remarkable response to the throttle.

The chassis of the new Viking is exceptionally strong and durable in construction. The wheelbase is 125 inches. Specially designed springs controlled by four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers assure restful riding ease.

We invite you to inspect this illustrious new car during the General Motors Spring Showing—to take it for a trial drive—and to judge it by your highest standards of appearance, performance, and value. Then you will appreciate that the introduction of the Viking is a significant event in automotive history.

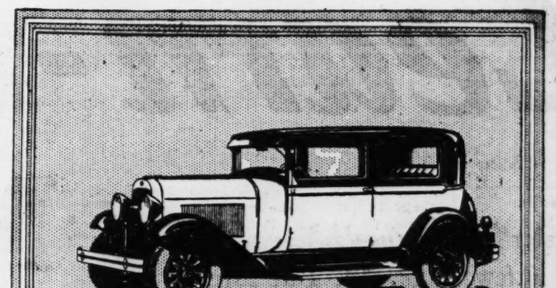
OLDSMOBILE SIX



PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

The 1929 Oldsmobile—now on special display during the General Motors Spring Showing—more than ever before, achieves Oldsmobile's aim to build a car for the American family that, at moderate price, gratifies their finer tastes as well as satisfies their every need.

Oldsmobile's beautiful bodies by Fisher present new style and smartness—the result of new exterior refinements. Interiors are roomy and comfortable, with plenty of head room and leg room. Seats are wide and deep-cushioned. Upholsteries and appointments are more luxurious than ever.

Oldsmobile's big high-compression engine now delivers 62 horsepower—combining remarkable speed, power, and acceleration with sterling dependability and long life. Typical of its fine car engineering standards are such features as controlled cooling, full-length vertical radiator shutters, fuel pump, automatic spark, thermostatic charging control, crankcase ventilation, and pressure-lubricated piston pins—a feature formerly characteristic of high-priced cars. And Oldsmobile's complete equipment includes four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers, the new Fisher adjustable front seat, gasoline gauge and engine temperature gauge on the dash.

See this finer Oldsmobile during the General Motors Spring Showing, April 20th to 27th. Compare it with other cars. Drive it, and make your own performance tests. And you'll agree that you can't match its value at its new lower price.

NATURE STUDY CLASS FOR SCOUT LEADERS

Will Open Tuesday Evening at Michael School Under Dr. F. H. Staley.

A new departure in Boy Scout leaders' training classes will be made by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council Tuesday evening, with a training course in nature study at the Elias Michael School, Euclid avenue and Forest Park boulevard, under direction of Dr. Forest H. Staley, an authority on reptiles.

The leaders' nature study training class, perhaps the first to be given by a scout organization, is one of the specialization courses offered by the local council in a five-year series leading to a gold key degree. Heretofore training has been limited to elementary and advanced scoutmastership, with standardized specialties in swimming and life saving, handicrapt and first aid.

The nature study class will be limited to 25. The first meeting will be devoted to the study of insects with the use of books and laboratory material. Laboratory work will cover the killing, preserving and mounting of insects, collecting and identifying genera and species. Collections of mounted specimens will be shown.

According to present plans, the class will meet regularly on consecutive Tuesday nights.

Regular spring training courses are drawing to a close. A course in first aid, which has been given by Dr. Hall of Washington University at the University Medical School, will hold its next to last meeting tomorrow evening, while a class in elements of scoutmastership will conduct its eighth meeting at the same time at the Michael School. The eighth meeting of the swimming and life-saving class will be held at the Principia pool Tuesday. There will be, however, a second class in swimming and life saving, to run six more weeks. This work, which is under direction of Fred Potthoff of the American Red Cross, is intended for all classes of swimmers. Thoes who complete the course will receive a specialization certificate to apply toward a gold key.

Troop Notes

North District.

A Fathers' and Sons' hike will be taken to Ferguson by the scouts and their fathers of Trrop 3, Grace Ho' Cross Church, today. Nineteen scouts, three committeemen and four officers were present at the last meeting of the troop, one of the officers being Assistant Scoutmaster Hunt, who had been absent for six weeks because of his attending the St. Louis Scout Leaders' Training Course. A map-drawing contest between the Bob Whites and the Rattlesnakes will be held tomorrow evening.

Scout George Stojan won first prize in a leatherwork project contest, and Scout George Engelke first in a woodcarving contest, at the last meeting of Troop 19, of the Blair Howard School. Scouts William Zengel and George Kindermann took second and third, respectively, in the leatherwork contest, while Scouts Robert Shober and William Zengel placed second and third in woodcarving. The specimens submitted in the contest will be exhibited at the next public meeting of the troop. Plans are being made for a number of hikes this summer to the troop's camp site.

Scout Ralph Henning won first prize in an individual achievement contest just ended in Troop 32, St. Peter's Evangelical Church. The award was made at a banquet and entertainment conducted by the scouts for their parents a week ago Friday evening. The Tiger patrol, of which Louis Klick is patrol leader and George Steuber assistant, ranks first in an interpatrol contest. The dinner was prepared by the Mothers' Auxiliary of the troop. Chairman E. H. Schultz of the North District Court of Honor showed motion pictures taken by him in England, France and Germany, while Field Executive L. L. Hotchkiss spoke on camp.

Inventory of all scouts of Troop 149, St. Paul's M. E. Church, who will be ready to re-register next Friday for the coming year, was taken at the last meeting of the troop. The scouts voted to make the coming meeting a parents' night. The scribe was instructed to write reminding every member of the troop to register. A drill was held, and a game of "Grab the Hat" played.

West District.

Practice in first aid was held at the last meeting of Troop 30, of the Y. M. H. A., after instructions were given by Assistant Scoutmaster Dave Pruver. The troop also met in Forest Park last Sunday, to practice signaling, mapping, judging, and compass work, then adjourned to the Y. M. H. A. to tie knots and practice bandaging. One of the teams which will represent Troop 30 in the coming Camparall will be selected this week.

Troop 101, West Park Baptist Church, has voted to enter two patrols in the Camparall. Practice began last week. Field Scout Executive S. C. Reaves gave a talk at the last meeting.

A steady increase in membership at Troop 102, Flynn Park School, made the organization of a fifth

NATURE STUDY CLASS FOR SCOUT LEADERS

Will Open Tuesday Evening at Michael School Under Dr. F. H. Staley.

A new departure in Boy Scout leaders' training classes will be made by the St. Louis Boy Scout Council Tuesday evening, with a training course in nature study at the Elias Michael School, Euclid avenue and Forest Park boulevard, under direction of Dr. Forest H. Staley, an authority on reptiles.

The leaders' nature study training class, perhaps the first to be given by a scout organization, is one of the specialization courses offered by the local council in a five-year series leading to a gold key degree. Heretofore training has been limited to elementary and advanced scoutmastership, with standardized specialties in swimming and life saving, handicraft and first aid.

Troop 101, West Park Baptist Church, has voted to enter two patrols in the Camparall. Practice began last week. Field Scout Executive S. C. Reaves gave a talk at the last meeting.

A steady increase in membership at Troop 102, Flynn Park School, made the organization of a fifth patrol necessary at the meeting last week. Moose patrol was judged winner in a patrol project contest, each of the members having submitted a leather neckerchief slide on which a Moose had been tooled. Games were played, and the scoutmasters' benediction given. Scout Jack Schroeder is now scribe of this troop.

Scout Joe Hemker of the Tiger Patrol, Troop 113, has passed five merit badges within the last few weeks—in craftsmanship in wood, forging, craftsmanship in metal, woodcarving and machinery. Former Scout Alan Austen was present at the last meeting of the troop and gave a short talk.

South District.

A Parents' Night was conducted by Troop 15 of St. Luke's Lutheran Church last week. Features of the program were of demonstrations in signaling, first-aid, knottying, and use of the neckerchief. Stunts and a melodrama were also presented by the boys. Former Assistant Scoutmaster Eggers was introduced to the parents as the nwe scoutmaster of the troop, his application for that position having recently been accepted. The introduction was made by Field Scout Executive M. D. Shippey of the South District. The new scoutmaster gave a short talk, urging the parents to co-operate with their sons, and encourage them to advance in scout rank.

Two new scouts, Harry Nicolaus and George Kuehnel, joined the troop last week.

Two new patrol leaders were appointed at the meeting of Troop 160, Immanuel M. E. Church, last week. Herman Pfeifer was made leader of the Wolf pjatrol, and Robert Ecoff of the Panthans. Austin Smith remains leader of the Eagles ,and Earl Crapton of the Bob Whites. Alfred Richter was appointed Scribe.

Scout Edward Timpone is leading in a Camparall contest, with 40 points. The Eagles are running slightly ahead of the Panthers in an Interpatrol contest. Assistant Scoutmaster Hill and Patrol Leader Smith each received eight merit badges and the Life Scout badge at the Court of Honor last Monday evening. The entire troop plans to observe "go-to-church Sunday' today by attendng the evenng servce n a body.

Scouts Charles Waite, Carl Claypools and Bob Dunn passed cooking tests on a hike taken by Troop 189, Shaw Avenue Methodist Church, to Chain of Rocks last Sunday. The Flying Eagle Patrol won an interpatrol contest by cooking the best meal. On the way to the campsite the troop visited the waterworks. A treasure hunt was also held.

Signaling and compass work and a four-man half-mile relay race were on the program of the regular meeting last week. Scout Lee Hall received Star and Life Scout badges at the Court of Honor Monday evening, while Scouts Jerome Wallis and Lawrence Hall received Testaments for attending the Shepedah Club at Irondale.

Headquarters Notes.

Twenty-six new scouts were added to the membership in St. Louis last week, nine in the North and nine in the South districts, six in the Suburban and two in the West district. The recruits and the troops were:

West District—Troop 54, Marvin Levin; Troop 113, Carr Shatts.

North District—Troop 22, Edward Bader, Edward Fohl, Henry Fohl, Hubertus Hundelt; Troop 33, Harold Hofmann; Troop 108 W. Seaton; Troop 146, Edward Johnson; Troop 171, William Nighey; Troop 206, Walter Pleau.

South District — Troop 118, George King; Troop 155, George Hennkens, Richard Stubblefield; Troop 168, F. M. Alpiser, J. F. Lallinger; Troop 180, George Wieman; Troop 244, Howard Ohlendorf, Julian Kalinowski, Calvin Ashby.

Suburban District—Troop 186, Arthur Lieber Jr., Charles Limberg, Elliott O'Reilly; Troop Brentwood 1, John Tegethoff; Troop Kirkwood 2, Fred McAvoy; Troop Webster Groves 7, George Olcott.

Suburban District.

The Suburban District Drum and Bugle Corps, which appeared on the program of the City Court of Honor last Monday night, has been invited by the St. Louis Tuberculosis and Health Society to play at the annual Tuberculosis baseball game at Sportsman's Park June 12. The corps is composed of scouts who are members of troops in St. Louis County.

The Webster Groves Junior High School Scout Club, of which Scout Oliver Stone of Webster Groves 7 is Chief Scout, conducted the opening ceremony at the Court of Honor last Monday night. The ceremony consisted of a pageant telling the story of Scouting in India. D. H. Nicholson, assistant scoutmaster of Webster Groves 3, has charge of the club.

An overnight hike to a farm in the county was taken by the scouts of Glendale 1 last weekend in preparation for the selection of a patrol to represent the troop in the coming Camparall. The hike proved a test of camping ability, as it rained the whole time the troop was out. Instruction in signaling and cooking was the main activity.

A parents' meeting, to demonstrate the activities of the troop and patrols, was conducted by Overland 1 of the Overland School, a week ago last night. Games, stunts and a special project by each patrol, comprised the program. The Eagles gave "An Accident in Camp"; the Moose, "The Indian Fire-Spirit Dance" and the Foxes' Missing Link Orchestra parodied selections from celebrated composers.

Y. M. C. A. STATE CONVENTION TO OPEN IN CITY THURSDAY

Dr. J. T. Stocking Will Deliver Two Addresses; Session at Tuttle Memorial.

The forty-sixth annual State convention of the Y. M. C. A. will be held in the Bishop Tuttle Memorial Building Thursday and Friday. Fifty-four associations and branches in Missouri will be represented at the convention.

The Rev. Dr. J. T. Stocking of Pilgrim Congregational Church has been selected as convention pastor, and will deliver two addresses. Thomas W. Graham, dean of the Graduate School of Theology of Oberlin College, will conduct all the meetings.

In addition to the regular convention business, a committee of seven, which has been studying the work of the State Association in its relation to local associations, will make its report.

ON SCOUT EXECUTIVE BOARD

Dr. Theodore P. Brooks and Harry Schollmeyer New Members.

Two new members, Dr. Theodore P. Brookes and Harry Schollmeyer, have been added to the Executive Board of the St. Louis Council of Boy Scouts, Earle W. Beckman, scout executive, announced Thursday. Dr. Brookes will become chairman of the Committee on Health and Safety, while Schollmeyer will continue as a member of the Council Camping Committee.

Dr. Brookes has been connected with the organization for eight years as health and sanitation expert of the Camping Committee. His two sons, Theodore Jr. and Robert, are both scouts. Schollmeyer has been on the Campaign Committee four years. It was largely through his efforts that the council was presented with the 250-acre Lions' Den week-end camp, near Imperial, Mo., by the South Side Lions' Club two years ago.

Jewish Nationalists Leaders Not Pleased by Perfect Balance, But Want More Immigrants.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, April 20.—The movement of Jewish population into and out of Palestine last year was exactly balanced; immigrants 2178; emigrants 2178.

This extraordinary coincidence is by no means pleasing to the leaders of the Jewish national movement, seeing that their aim is to bring the largest possible number of Jews into the homeland, or, at least sufficiently large numbers of them to form a majority of the population.

The figures for the period since June, 1920, when the civil administration was established, are, however, much more encouraging to the movement. In that period 92,000 Jews were registered as having entered the country, while the round number of 26,000 were emigrants.

During the whole post-war period, therefore, there has been a considerable gain in immigration, but not large enough to realeze the ideals of the Nationalist movement.

Horse Cabs Violate Traffic Laws.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 20.—Horse-drawn vehicles run afoul of the Paris police more often than do the taxicabs. Four-fifths of the traffic violations are committed by drivers of private cars and trucks.

FIRST NEGRO HONOR COURT AT VASHON SCHOOL APRIL 29

To Award Badges to City and County Scouts; Plans Being Completed.

The first Negro Court of Honor ever to be held in St. Louis will convene at the Vashon High School, 3026 Laclede avenue, April 29, to award merit badges and other badges of honor to Negro scouts and leaders of St. Louis city and county. The entire program has not as yet been arranged, but, according to William Puffer, educational director of the local Boy Scout Council, it is intended to award all honors due, as well as present training certificates to Negro scoutmasters and assistants who have completed a training course.

A special Negro Board of Review to examine applicants for awards will be held at Scout Headquarters, 505 Chemical Building, tomorrow evening. Puffer will head the board.

Should the number of applicants prove too large to review in one evening, another board to accommodate the surplus will be arranged later in the week, Puffer said.

ESSEX THE CHALLENGER

Hear the radio program of the "Hudson-Essex Challengers" every Friday evening
Station KWK—9-9:30 P. M.

these important things
CHALLENGE TOO!

ESSEX challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other gives you back so much for every dollar you put in.

That is why the big buying swing is to Essex. That is why motorists by thousands are switching from past favorites, and trading in their old cars for the big values Essex the Challenger gives. Essex challenges:

IN SPEED—challenging anything the road offers up to 70 miles an hour. IN FAST GETAWAY—any car regardless of size or price. IN RELIABILITY—60 miles an hour for hour after hour. IN FINE APPEARANCE, upholstery and detail—compare with cars in which high price is paid for just those things. IN ECONOMY—compare with cars best known for low operation cost.

And with its superb chassis quality and fine, large bodies—Essex establishes also an outstanding leadership in proved VALUE. It offers a completeness of fine car equipment formerly identified only with costly cars, and available, when at all, only as "extras," at extra cost on cars of Essex price. Check these items when you buy—they represent easily above $100 additional value. But they do not cost one cent extra.

The performance ability of Essex the Challenger is due in no small part to its Super-Six motor. Thus, while it is a "Six," no one who knows can regard any other "Six" as being comparable in the power it delivers.

Essex is built by Hudson under famous Super-Six patents. No one can copy or match it. The fundamental and exclusive Super-Six principle—developed in one million motors and over 12 years of continuous service, stamps Essex as the unapproached "Six" in every particular of performance, smoothness and reliability.

EASE OF BUYING

FOR INSTANCE, in this city your first payment, with your present car included, may be as low as $225.00, and your monthly payments $44.12.

Your present car will probably cover the entire first payment. The H. M. C. Purchase Plan offers the lowest terms available on the balance.

. . . EASE OF OWNING

On our own streets Essex the Challenger under competent observation, averaged 20.7 miles per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 18 to 20 miles and upward. Commercial users operating large fleets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs, covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car ever tested.

Nash Directors Pass $1.50 Share Dividend

Nash Motors Co., directors, meeting in Kenosha, Wis., approved the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share. Net income for the first quarter of 1929 was $4,118,670, compared with $2,604,878 for the first three months in 1928.

Commenting on the company's financial statement, President Nash stated: "We feel that the earnings report is very satisfactory, in view of the extremely cold weather during January and February, which prevented dealers throughout a large portion of the country from taking delivery of cars. In spite of adverse weather, January sales were 77 per cent greater than in January, 1928, and February exceeded the same month last year by 33 per cent. In March the popularity of the '400' series again manifested itself with sales 44 per cent greater than a year ago.

Whippets Are Spacious.

Spaciousness is one of the attributes of the new Whippet fours and sixes. With an increased wheelbase to work with, engineers of Willys-Overland were able to fashion wider and deeper seats. Even with three passengers in the rear compartment of the sedan or coach, each may enjoy a comfortable relaxed position all the time.

CAR OWNERS FAVOR OIL CONSERVING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The nation's automobile owners, who annually spend more than $2,000,000,000 for gasoline and oil, favor a constructive program for conserving the country's oil resources, but will be quick to resent any move on the part of the industry to create an artificial shortage with the purpose of raising prices to the consumers, a statement of the American Automobile Association, issued today, declares.

President Hoover's policy, so far as oil resources of the country are concerned, is indorsed by the association. The statement follows, in part: "When it is considered that America has only about 18 per cent of the world's oil resources and in 1928 produced 68.2 per cent of the world's output, it is time to adopt some means of assuring a future supply. If all elements of the oil industry are sincere in the move to join President Hoover in honest conservation of these resources, there is little danger of unfavorable reaction on the part of the consumers. If, on the other hand, there develops any indication that the oil interests intend to use conservation as a cloak for the creation of an artificial shortage, the car owners will be found ready to take part in the fight."

Road Conditions Generally Normal

Road conditions in this part of the Middle West are rapidly returning to normal, except where local rains have softened dirt roads again.

Reports to the Automobile Club of Missouri on Friday were that virtually all roads in Missouri and Illinois were free from water. Some dirt roads in the northern part of Missouri were still closed, while others were badly rutted. Generally, however, maintained roads were pretty well smoothed out.

Traffic was running freely from all sections to and from Southern Illinois and Southeastern Missouri.

A six-mile dirt detour has been established on Missouri highway No. 36, west of Macon. No. 36 is the important cross-State route from Hannibal to St. Joseph. It is all-weather, except for this new detour which, the Auto Club reports, would be bad going if wet.

No More Parking in N. Y.

To make the streets safe for fire engines and hustling traffic, police in New York City send for the wrecking crews of the Department of Street Cleaning instead of issuing summonses for illegal parking. The offending car then is carted off to the nearest police station and held for the $10 fee. Owners who fail to reclaim their cars within 24 hours will have to go to the Municipal Building to recover their impounded automobiles.

WSAI Begins Broadcasting On New Wave

Authorization by the Federal Radio Commission to WSAI, Cincinnati, to operate full time with WDRC, New Haven, Conn., on 1330 kilocycles is expected to solve one of the more serious station problems arising from the reallocation of Nov. 11.

It also will give listeners in WSAI's territory the NBC Red network program, of which they have been deprived for nearly six months. However, WSAI must use only 500 watts power, instead of the 5000 at which its transmitter is rated.

Dispatches from Washington said that KSAI would attempt to synchronize with WDRC, and that if the synchronizing was successful, the Cincinnati station would be assigned permanently to the 1330 kc. channel. Otherwise, it was stated, WSAI will have to return to the 800 kc. channel, on which it has been operating day time only with its full 5000 watts power because this wave length is a national cleared channel at night, shared by WBAP, Ft. Worth, Tex., and KTHS, Hot Springs, Ark. WSAI engineers at first asked that they be permitted to synchronize with WBAP. Judge Robinson, the Second Zone commissioner, favored this, but the board's engineers objected. The experiment with WDRC finally was agreed on.

However, the Crosley Radio Corporation, which operates both WSAI and the 50,000-watt WLW, says that WSAI and WDRC are not synchronizing, but are merely operating simultaneously on 1330 kc., and that no interference has been reported, although the experiment was begun on April 16. The experimental license to WSAI is effective until May 1.

Powel Crosley Jr., owner of WSAI and WLW, says that he has every reason to believe that it will be only a short time until WSAI is using its full 5000 watts of power.

CLUBS NAMED FOR THIS RADIO SOPRANO

JESSICA DRAGONETTE, diminutive, but vocally famous soprano, who is the "sweetheart" of the Philco operetta broadcasts. This pose recalls her role as the Nun in Morris Gest's production of "The Miracle."

"JESSICA DRAGONETTE CLUBS" in several sections of the country and a "Jessinette Club" in Denver are among the latest expressions of approval of Jessica Dragonette and her work in the Philco broadcasts, featuring her as the sweetheart in Victor Herbert operettas.

But not until recently, just about the time that Philco began its three week programs, continuing an operetta act by act each week, has she heard from the club groups who meet to hear her voice. In addition to letters from small towns in Illinois and Kentucky, she has heard recently from a club in Denver.

"We have had many discussions as to Miss Dragonette's personal appearance," writes the president of the "Jessinette Club." "Is she a blonde or brunette, tall or short? We would like an autographed photograph of her for her clubroom here."

Miss Dragonette sent the club her photograph, explained that she was perhaps the smallest star among singers at NBC studios and that she always had been blonde and intended to remain so.

WCFL Hearing May Be Start Of Bitter Fight

A situation even more embarassing for the Federal Radio Commission than that caused by KVOO's application for the channel used by KWKH at Shreveport, La., has arisen as a result of hearings the past few days on the petition of WCFL, the labor union station in Chicago, for the national cleared wave length (870kc) now used by WBBM, and for full 50,000 watts powtr at night.

Not only is the question of organized labor's attitude toward broadcasting and the Radio Board involved, but granting the application of WCFL would result in opening the whole Chicago broadcasting situation. WBPM interests would not yield to a decision relegating their station to an inferior position without a desperate struggle to obtain one of the cleared channels now assigned to WGN, WMAQ and WLS-WENR. What a row that would precipitate is easily imagined.

WCFL bases its claim to the channel on the assertion that organized labor has a right to have a national station. It is offering dazzling promises for the future.

WBBM bases its defense on past performances. Comparing its programs with those of WCFL, it declares that those of the latter are so inferior that there is slight justification for permitting the station to broadcast, much less giving it a national channel.

Under the reallocation of Nov. 11, WCFL was given daytime only on 970 kilocycles with 1500 watts.

Hope Thomason of Chicago, attorney for WCFL, told the Commission that the present assignment of the station was not suited to the needs of its listeners. WCFL is owned by the Chicago Federation of Labor," said he, "and its broadcasts are conducted for organized labor as a whole. By order of the Commission, our station is permitted to broadcast only until sunset. Such an arrangement is obviously unfair, as the majority of union men do not return from work until after 6 o'clock. Thus they are deprived of listening to their station. The only time we are permitted to broadcast are those hours that find all of our potential listeners at work."

E. N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation, said that labor felt that, with 40 cleared channels, it was entitled to at least one of them.

"Another reason for requesting this change," Nockels said, "is that on our present assignment our programs suffer a great deal of interference from KYW and KDKA, thus depreciating the value of what little time we have on the air."

Charges that the Radio Commission had given all of the best channels to newspapers and large corporations were made by Victor Orlander of the Illinois Federation of Labor, in testifying for WCFL.

Orlander offered in evidence resolutions by the Illinois State Federation of Labor and the International Seaman's Union, which condemned the commission for having given the cream of the broadcast spectrum to large capital interests.

Judge E. O. Sykes, Third Zone commissioner, asked Orlander on what he based this statement.

"On the broadcasting situation as I see it," replied Orlander.

"Well, I believe that if you will take the latest kilocycle list," said Judge Sykes, "and study the commission's assignees that the commission has licensed to broadcast, you will find that such is not the case. In fact, in your zone alone there are over 35 church and college stations. Do you call that unfair?"

Thomas Littlepage of Washington, who is counsel for WBBM, told the Commission that WCFL did not need full time.

"All day yesterday," he said, "we sat here and listened to evidence given by labor leaders as to what the aims and objects of organized labor were. We heard reasons why labor should have full time on the air.

"But labor does not need full time on the air. WCFL uses a very small part of the time that it now has for the furtherance of labor's cause. In fact, it seems to devote about 10 minutes a day of its time to broadcasting labor bulletins."

Ralph Atlass, owner of WBBM, told the commission that WCFL did not use all of the time allotted to it.

"WCFL has been granted the use of some of the evening hours but does not use them," said Atlass. "Its transmitter is not even on the air during these hours."

In closing his cross examination of E. N. Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation, Littlepage told the Commission that WCFL, which had so strongly denounced the alleged radio trust, was itself using NBC programs.

STYLE IN A COMMERCIAL VEHICLE

Pays CASH DIVIDENDS Today

—even more directly than in a pleasure vehicle

JUST a few years ago it might have seemed absurd to discuss style in a commercial vehicle. Today it is important not only to discuss it, but to find it—if a truck is to be purchased wisely.

Every truck that operates today, during all its working hours, is doing one of two things: helping to win good-will for its owner, or helping to lose it. And a modern public demands that modern vehicles serve it.

THIS WEEK: A SPRING SHOWING This week you are specially invited to see how GENERAL MOTORS TRUCKS match modern truck performance with modern truck appearance.

They are modern trucks in the true sense, and in every sense, of the word. Not because we say so. But because they are built to perform. Because they are never offered to a truck-owner until General Motors Proving Ground tests have proved that they do. Because actual working operations of owners by the tens of thousands prove the fact daily.

You are invited to prove or disprove these facts, in your own work—now; during this week of Spring Showing.

A WORK-TEST AT OUR EXPENSE Accept the General Motors Truck that most closely meets your special requirements (we provide whatever available model, chassis or body most efficiently meets your work needs). Make an adequate working test—without obligation or liability.

Find out: a) how much these modern trucks cut time and distances; b) how much they aid extension of territory you cover, or c) how much they would raise work-capacity-per-unit for you; d) how much it costs to operate them as compared with your present costs; e) how safety parallels speed in modern truck performance. Whether you find proof or disproof of our statements you will have valuable information. Get it. Ask for your Work-Test this week.

That test will give you a first-hand fact-story of General Motors Truck value. It applies to the complete line of General Motors Trucks:

A COMPLETE LINE OF MODERN TRUCKS PONTIAC-powered Light Duty equipment—7 types of different basic STRAIGHT RATING capacities; 3,800 lbs. to 8,000 lbs., maximum allowable total gross weight; $625 to $1085.

BUICK-powered Medium- and Heavy Duty—33 types of different basic STRAIGHT RATING capacities; 8,000 lbs. to 18,000 lbs., maximum allowable total gross weight; $1395 to $3315.

BIG BRUTE-powered for Heaviest Duty—2 types of 28,000 lbs., maximum allowable total gross weight; $4250 and $4350.

(Time payments at lowest available rates, financed through our own Y. M. A. C. plan).

Red Cross Speeches Over KSD Tuesday

Executives who will meet at Washington, D. C., in a national session of the American Red Cross on Tuesday are expected to turn to radio as a powerful ally in hours of national emergency.

"Broadcasting and Its Relation to Public Necessity and Relief" will be discussed at their luncheon meeting.

Frank A. Arnold, director of development for the National Broadcasting Co. will be the speaker at that meeting. The topic was originally scheduled for an address by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the NBC, but the latter is in Europe, making a survey of foreign broadcasting.

Other prominent speakers at the luncheon will be Archbishop Michael Curley of Baltimore, and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

The proceedings, together with the three principal talks, will be broadcast over KSD and allied NBC stations, beginning at 12:45 o'clock.

HOOVER ON AIR TOMORROW AND THURSDAY NIGHT

Astoria Hotel, for that place will be torn down soon.

President Hoover will be heard in a special program which will be broadcast from Washington from 8 to 9 o'clock the night of April 25. His remarks on this occasion will concern plans of the Government to erect new buildings in Washington and to develop a park system in the nation's capital.

Other speakers on this program, which will be broadcast from the United States Chamber of Commerce building, include Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of Treasurer; Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, Representative Richard N. Elliot of Indiana and Milton B. Medary, member of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

In addition to KSD, the following Middle West stations in NBC network are scheduled to broadcast President Hoover's address tomorrow: KYW, WHO, WOW, WDAF, WHAS, WSM, WMC, KVOO.

WSAI BEGINS TO BROADCAST ON NEW CHANNEL

mitter to its assigned channel. But J. A. Chambers, technical supervisor of WSAI and WLW, was able to obtain a 1330 kilocycle crystal within 18 hours. By 5:30 p. m. last Tuesday, he had the WSAI transmitter retuned, partially rebuilt and in operation on it, new channel.

Although arrangements for programs had to be made within 24 hours, NBC officials were able to get sponsors of commercial features on the Red network to restore their programs to WSAI and the station went on the air the first night with a full schedule of WEAF features. It is understood that Red network programs will make up most of WSAI's night schedules.

There has been persistent complaint throughout Ohio and adjoining territory because the assignment of WSAI to daylight operation made it impossible for NBC Red chain programs to be broadcast in Cincinnati. Listeners in that territory declared that trying to pick up these programs from distant stations was generally unsatisfactory, and complaints have been increasing in intensity in proportion as the approach of warm weather has brought more and more static.

There has been talk that WCKY, the new 5000-watt station being erected at Covington, Ky., across the river from Cincinnati would carry the Red chain programs. It is now supposed that WCKY will become the Columbia System station for that part of the Middle West.

WLW Bans Dance Music 'Vocal Chorus'

Vocal choruses sung by members of dance orchestras broadcast by remote control have been forbidden by WLW. Hereafter, all dance orchestras picked up from points outside the WLW studios must confine their entertainment efforts to playing dance music.

Ford Billings, director of WLW, says the interdiction is designed to please listeners who dislike the words of popular songs although they enjoy the rhythm and melody.

"Those others, who wish to know the words of current musical numbers, can be satisfied in the number of times the songs are sung by regular vocalists on variety programs," Billings says.

Network programs naturally are not affected by the WLW ruling except that the station takes few dance programs from the chain.

Organ Designed For Radio to Be Installed by WIL

Jack Coleman, Staff Tenor, in Talking Movie Shown in Chicago.

WIL is to install a new pipe organ in its studios on top of Hotel Melbourne, W. M. Ellsworth, managing director of WIL, said work of installing the organ would begin immediately and that the organ should be ready for broadcasting within three weeks.

The organ is the three-manual type, built especially for broadcasting, and will be installed at a cost of approximately $20,000, Ellsworth said. This is the first step in a new development program for WIL. A special console is specified for the organ, and it is to be decorated in ivory and gold, with gold lettering.

Jerry Cammack, staff pianist and well-known theatrical organist of St. Louis will play the organ. He assisted in designing it. The organ will produce the effects of all instruments in symphonic and jazz orchestras.

Jack Coleman, staff tenor of WIL, has won recognition in sound pictures, making his first appearance in a talk-o-phone just released to the Home Theater in Chicago. Coleman has been with WIL for two years.

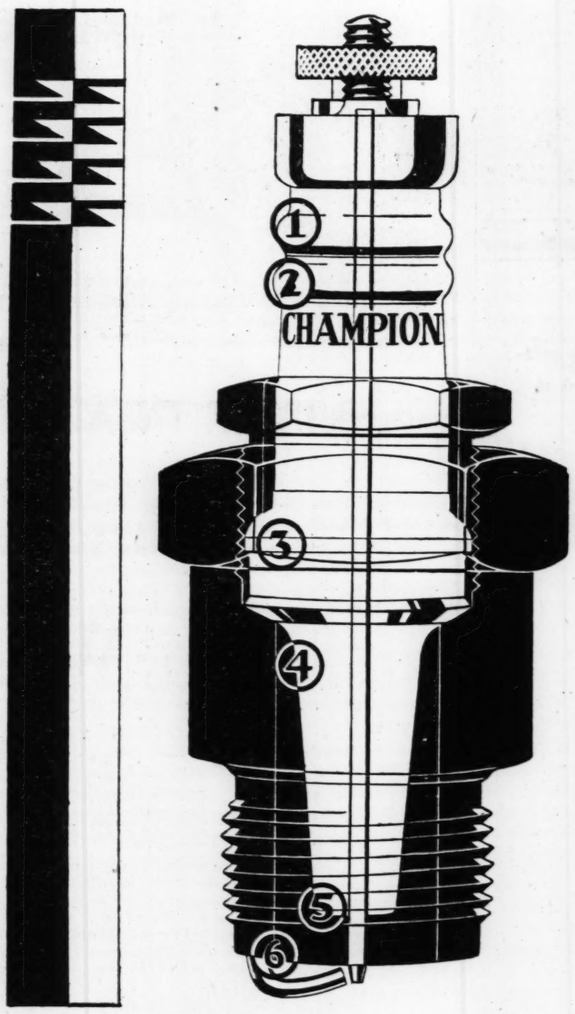
The Spotlight Players will be a regular feature on WIL each Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Alice Jones Wientge is directing the plays.

Art and Roy, from Monterey, Mexico, are appearing on WIL programs Monday and Tuesday evenings. They sing old-time Spanish songs in duets and also "harmony" numbers in English.

Tonight's Studebaker Concert.

Another concert of popular music will be played in the Studebaker program at 9:15 tonight, including: "Limehouse Blues," "Softly as in the Morning Sunrise," "You're Perfect," "To a Water Lily," "I Want a Man," "If I Had You," "Makin' Whopee" and "Alabamy Snow."

A New Improved CHAMPION for every type of engine



CHAMPION

Excels and outsells with these exclusive features

1 Exclusive sillimanite insulator—as vast an improvement over all previous insulators as the original sillimanite over porcelain. Specifically designed to meet all conditions of the most advanced engineering.

2 A remarkable new sillimanite glaze which remains practically impervious to carbon and oily deposits even at extreme temperatures.

3-4 Advanced, new, solid copper gasket-seal which retains all advantages of two-piece construction, and remains absolutely gas-tight against the much higher compression of today's engine.

5-6 Special analysis electrodes which have been greatly improved to resist pitting and burning, and through scientific design assure a maximum spark and a fixed spark gap under all operating conditions.

Designed and Made to Meet the Stresses of Modern Engines

THE world preference which belongs to Champion Spark Plugs is the just reward of great merit. The great resources and exclusive facilities at the command of the Champion Spark Plug Company have always been exclusively devoted to the betterment and refinement of its product. Champion has ever yielded the utmost efficiency, for the longest time, in the most gruelling and exacting service.

The results are that it has been a generally accepted fact that Champion is the better spark plug. You may now avail yourself of a vastly improved and better Champion Spark Plug than ever before.

Here, now, is a new, improved Champion—far in advance of the Champion Spark Plug of even six months ago.

So much better, so greatly improved for modern high-compression service is this new Champion that motorists will find it a revelation in exacting the utmost in power and economy from modern day fuels and high-compression engines.

If your present spark plugs have served you 10,000 miles or more, you have reached the danger mark. A complete new set of Champions will amaze you by restoring the performance your car had when new.

The new improved Champions will, furthermore, show actual savings in gas and oil which will more than offset the cost of these new Champions.

For Best Results Change Your Spark Plugs Every 10,000 Miles. No matter how well a spark plug is made it must deteriorate under the tremendous stress imposed by modern engines.

The high compression actually delivers trip-hammer blows. The intense heat imposes terrific strains. Destroying chemical reactions take place.

That spark plugs continue to function under the extremes to which they are subjected is a tribute to the great advances made in spark plug design and manufacture. And in this advancement Champion has always played the major part—always pioneered and anticipated the requirements of engine designers. Remember—it is a genuine economy to install new Champions every 10,000 miles.

SUPREME ON LAND, WATER, AND IN THE AIR

Champion—the accepted standard for automotive use, outselling throughout the world.

Champion Aviation Spark Plug. Revolutionary in principle, design and performance.

Champion Marine and outboard engine spark plug—a consistent record breaker.

Champion Motorcycle spark plug—the finest available and winner of every type of extreme competition.

WIL is to install a new pipe organ in its studios on top of Hotel Melbourne. W. M. Ellsworth, managing director of WIL, said work of installing the organ would begin immediately and that the organ should be ready for broadcasting within three weeks.

The organ is the three-manual type, built especially for broadcasting, and will be installed at a cost of approximately $20,000, Ellsworth said. This is the first step in a new development program for WIL. A special console is specified for the organ, and it is to be decorated in ivory and gold, with gold lettering.

Jerry Cammack, staff pianist and well-known theatrical organist of St. Louis will play the organ. He assisted in designing it. The organ will produce the effects of all instruments in symphonic and jazz orchestras.

Jack Coleman, staff tenor of WIL, has won recognition in sound pictures, making his first appearance in a talk-o-phone just released to the Home Theater in Chicago. Coleman has been with WIL for two years.

The Spotlight Players will be a regular feature on WIL each Tuesday evening at 9 o'clock. Mrs. Alice Jones Wientge is directing the plays.

Art and Roy, from Monterey, Mexico, are appearing on WIL programs Monday and Tuesday evenings. They sing old-time Spanish songs in duets and also "harmony" numbers in English.

Tonight's Studebaker Concert.

Another concert of popular music will be played in the Studebaker program at 9:15 tonight, including: "Limehouse Blues," "Softly as in the Morning Sunrise," "You're Perfect," "To a Water Lily," "I Want a Man," "If I Had You," "Makin' Whopee" and "Alabamy Snow."

Three Artists in Concert, Symphony Broadcast and Talk by Cardinal Hayes on KSD Tonight

LOUISE GROODY, star of "Hit the Deck," in radio debut on Happy Wonder Program on KSD next Wednesday night.

Beethoven, Dr. Stock has chosen to read the second movement—the andante cantabile con moto—which was written in 1800. Though not performed as often as some of the later symphonies this bears all the marks of the greatness inherent in the composer. The movement to be played is in the calm, serene manner.

The third number will be the orchestra's reading of Goldmark's Rustic Wedding Symphony. It will be the "Dance" movement. The wedding has taken place and the feasting will continue most of the night. Guests gather about with banter and good wishes for the bride and bridegroom. Then the same band that has serenaded them prepares to make them all dance, for in the Carpathians no wedding is complete without a dance.

When Wagner was in the midst of composition of the "Ring" music dramas there came a commission from the Emperor of Brazil to write a dramatic opera for the Italian Company at Rio de Janeiro. In dire need of money, Wagner put aside the "Ring" music and composed "Tristan and Isolde." From this opera, the Chicago Symphony will play the "Love Music" and "Brangaene's Warning," in the second act. Isolde is impatient to meet Tristan. The court has gone out to hunt in the darkness. Isolde paces the garden awaiting her lover, who is to desert the hunt and secretly return to her. In the distance, the hunting horns are heard. She gives the signal and Brangaene, fearful of the consequences, climbs to the tower to act as guard. The long duet that follows is the very delirium of love. The gamut of the lovers' ecstasy is run through satisfaction, madness, languor, joy of life and longing for death. The cry of the watcher warns them, but they are unheeding. Their discovery and tragedy "Capriccio Espagnol," Opus 34, by Rimsky-Korsakoff will be the closing number. In this suite of five numbers, written entirely in the Spanish mode, most of the instruments have an opportunity to display their special forms of technic. It is gay, dignified, abandoned, by turns, but always beautiful and pleasing.

Program details follow:

Overture to "The Secret of Suzanne"—Wolf-Ferrari
Orchestra.

Andante cantabile con moto from Symphony No. 1 C Major Opus 21—Beethoven
Orchestra.

Dance, from Symphony No. 1—Goldmark
Love Scene and Brangaene's Warning, from Act III, Tristan and Isolde—Wagner

Capriccio Espagnol, Opus 34—Rimsky-Korsakow

Patrick Cardinal Hayes, archbishop of New York, will speak for 20 minutes over KSD, WHAS, WMC, WOW and other stations in an hour's program at 7 o'clock to inaugurate the tenth annual Catholic Charities week. The Paulist choir, singing from the studios of WLWL, New York, also will be heard as will a large orchestra directed by Cesare Sodero.

The message will be the second radio address by the Cardinal to an NBC audience. He faced a WEAF microphone once before. Graham McNamee will announce.

Program details follow:

War March of the Priests—Mendelssohn
Orchestra.

Egrediente Domine .....Father Finn
Emitte Spiritum .....Schgeizky
Sanctus, from St. Cecelia Mass...Gounod
Paulist Choristers.

Agnus Dei ..... Bizet
Orchestra.

Address—Cardinal Hayes.

Angelus ..... Massenet
L'Arleisienne Suite ..... Bizet
Coronation March ..... Meyerbeer
Orchestra.

Clara Jacobo, soprano, of the Metropolitan Opera, who sings in the Atwater-Kent hour at 8:15 over KSD, is a native of Italy, came to America when she was 3 years of age and grew up in Lawrence, Mass., where she worked in the mills as a young girl. She won her first operatic and concert triumphs in her native country. Her operatic debut was in 1921, at the San Carlo in Naples. It was in Italy that Manager Gatti-Casazza of the Metropolitan found her and engaged her.

Francis Macmillen, violinist, who also will be soloist in the Atwater Kent hour, is a native of Marietta, O., the old home town of former Vice President Dawes. He, too, gained his first triumphs abroad, winning the Brussels Royal Conservatory prize with great distinction, the first and only time it has been won by an American. He was hailed in Europe as a new genius of the violin.

The third soloist in tonight's Atwater Ktnt concert is Kenneth Hines, the 22-year-old Buffalo tenor, who gained national distinction las December as runner-up in the finals of the Atwater Kent Foundation National Radio Audition. Hines was New York State prize winner in the 1927 audition.

This young singer, who is still pursuing his vocal studies under the scholarship awarded him by the Atwater Kent Foundation, has been known for the last five years throughout Western New York as a tenor of conspicuous ability. He is soloist at the the First Presbyterian Church of Buffalo, the oldest church in that city.

The program for tonight is announced as follows:

Talking Movie Broadcast in Tabloid Tonight

Novelty Announced for Majestic Hour Through KMOX—Canadian Station Joins Columbia Chain This Evening as Permanent Link.

SOMETHING new in radio is planned for tonight when a talking motion picture will be broadcast over KMOX and other Columbia chain stations, with original members of the film cast and with the director of the photo play directing the air presentation. This will take place in the Majestic Hour.

Also, tonight will see the first Canadian station joining an American network on a permanent basis. This station is CFRB, at Toronto.

The usual Ballad Hour is scheduled over KMOX at 2 o'clock. But it is probable that there will be no Cathedral Hour over a St. Louis station, as KMOX plans to broadcast a baseball game.

"The Holy Spirit; His Work in an Unbeliever" is announced as the topic for the Rev. D. G. Barnhouse's sermon in the Radio Vespers broadcast at 4:30 over KMOX.

Opening with Caesar Cui's "Orientale," the La Palina concert at 7 o'clock over KMOX is to have a program made up of music by famous Occidental composers that was inspired by India. La Palina is to sing the ever beautiful "Song of India," from Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera, "Sadko."

Here is the program:

Orientale	Orchestra. Cui
Song of India	La Palina. Rimsky-Korsakoff
Garden of India	Orchestra. Spitalny
On the Road to Mandalay	Underhill Macoy and Orchestra. Speaks
Torchlight Dance of the Bride of Kashmer	Orchestra. Rubenstein
Hymn to the Sun	La Palina. Rimsky-Korsakoff
Star of India	Orchestra. Bratton
Moonlight on the Ganges	Orchestra. Myers
Scheherezade	Orchestra. Rimsky-Korsakoff

Ben Selvin's orchestra will play again tonight in the Sonatron broadcast, at 7:30 over KMOX.

Selvin will present a program of popular music, including solos by members of his orchestra.

CFRB is to join the Columbia chain at 8 o'clock tonight, when the Majestic Theater of the Air will produce a radio version of "The Alibi," an "all-talking" picturization of the play, "Night Stick." Wendell Hall, recently appointed director of the Majestic Hour, will be master of ceremonies.

Roland West, director of the film, will direct the radio version and will play the role of Sergt. Tommy Glennon, portrayed in the film by Pat O'Malley. Eleanor Griffith and Chester Morris will act for the broadcast the roles they have in the film. Jewel Carmen, star of "The Bat," will play Daisy Thomas, acted in the film by Mae Busch.

When it came to a radio presentation of the film tabloid, West had to call on Hall and other experts in writing for the ear only instead of the eye and ear.

In the picture, Joan's father could punch Chick Williams in the jaw and get the action over without a word. In the radio presentation he does not actually hit Williams, nor does Williams stagger across the room after the supposed blow is struck. Instead, Joan's father bellows: "Take that!" The handy property man produces a noise which resembles the thud of a heavy blow, and Joan exclaims scornfully: "You struck my husband—you copper!"

WHITE PHOTO

ELEANOR GRIFFITH, stage and movie star, who will play Joan in the talking movie broadcast in the Majestic Hour tonight.

"The Alibi" is told against a background of New York night club life, the action including melodramatic clashes between police and gunmen in holdups, pursuits and other tense situations.

"I've Never Seen a Smile Like Yours," the theme song by Justin Johnson and Eddie Frazier, will be played.

West directed Norman Talmadge in "De Luxe Annie" and in "The Dove," Lon Chaney in "The Monster," and Jewel Carmen and Jack Pickford in "The Bat." Chester Morris was the star of "Crime" on the stage. Eleanor Griffith was the star of "The Spider," and once was prima donna for the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic, when Dorothy Mackaill danced in it. "The Unknown Purple," the play, was written by Roland West and placed by him on the stage and in films. All four principals in the radario of "Alibi" have had stage, film and radio experience.

The broadcasting will be done from the New York studio of the Columbian System, at WABC.

The film tabloid is scheduled to occupy the first 30 minutes of the Majestic Hour, the balance of which is to be devoted to a lively review staged by Wendell Hall.

W. Francis Jenkins, television inventor, who is building two 5000 watt stations in the East to broadcast radio pictures, and Dr. Lee de Forest, discoverer of the principle of the vacuum tube, are to be featured in an interview during the De Forest broadcast at 9 o'clock over KMOX.

A program of band music will be played during the broadcast by Arthur Pryor and his musicians.

Tonight's Around the Samovar concert will begin at 9:30 over KMOX. The Russian singers and musicians are to give the following program:

Dream Waltz	Balalaika Orchestra. William Andreef
Deceit—	Ellena Kazanova, violinist.
Kazbek—	Eli Spivak, baritone.
Ships—	Mme. Nicolina, soprano.
Polka Coquette (Russian Ballroom Dance)—	Balalaika Orchestra.
Gypsy's dance—	Ellena Kazanova, violinist.
Romance	Rubenstein
Sleep, My Sorrowful One—Soprano Solo	Tolstoi
Faded Flowers—	Mme. Nicolina. Eli Spivak.

For the Notebook.

A microphonic tube will cause a hum in the receiver.

To intercept images sent out by television broadcasting stations, it is necessory to employ a scanning disk of 60 holes rotating at 20 R. P. M.

After placing each tube in turn in the detector position, try tapping with the finger. The tube which produces the least ringing noise under this treatment will be the least likely to cause singing.

Junkin to Manage State Radio Audition

George Junkin, director of KMOX, has been appointed Missouri manager of the 1929 Atwater Kent National Radio Audition. Junkin is working with Mrs. Frederick Nussbaum, who has been reappointed State chairman.

The local elimination auditions, to qualify one young woman and one young man from each district for the State audition over KMOX in the fall, will begin at once, Mrs. Nussbaum said.

The eligibility requirements are virtually the same as those of previous years. All nonprofessionals between 18 and 25, who intend to follow a vocal or musical career, are qualified to compete in the local eliminations, with the winning local boy and girl competing in the State audition. This year the cash awards and scholarships will be apportioned as follows: To the boy and girl winning first prize, $5000 each and two years' tuition in a vocal or musical institution, and golden decorations; second, $3000 each and one year's tuition; third, $2000 cash and one year's tuition; fourth, $1500 cash and one year's tuition; and fifth, $1000 each and one year's tuition.

Mrs. Stewart W. Manss, 5540 Pershing avenue, has been named chairman for St. Louis, and local young men and women who intend communicate with her as soon as to compete in the contest should possible, Mrs. Nussbaum said.

NEVER has universal prestige come so swiftly to a motor car as to Studebaker's President Straight Eight . . . and never was prestige so richly merited.

Merely, to create a single car capable of The President's heroic feat of speeding 30,000 miles in 26,326 minutes, would be a triumph. To design and produce in quantity and at The President's One-Profit price, motor cars so uniformly excellent that four of them could be picked blindly from the assembly lines by impartial officials, who disassembled, checked and certified them as regular factory production cars in every particular, then re-assembled and sealed them, to start and finish a steady grind of 20 days and 19 nights at 64 to 68 miles per hour average—that is an epic!

Studebaker now sells more 8-cylinder cars than any other manufacturer on earth

What wonder that this magnificent President Eight, styled in youthful, vigorous beauty, cradled in ball bearing comfort, should have outsold every other eight in the world within six months after its introduction!

ends Costly Violins To Radio Musician

...the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20. The man who sold to the New York admirers of Yehudi Menuhin a Stradivarius violin that they gave to the youthful musical genius has lent two instruments, valued at $85,000, to Mme. Berthe Poncet for radio concerts.

Emil Herrmann owns a Stradivarius, valued at $45,000, made in 1714, and a Guarnerius, made in 1737. Herrmann has four Strads in his collection, which was handed down to him by ancestors who made a hobby of gathering rare instruments. The Guarnerius was in possession of a French family.

'Voyagers' Will Be New NBC Feature Wednesday Nights

Dramatized Legends and Music of European Nations to Make Up Program.

Dramatized legends and typical musical forms of nations on the other side of the Atlantic will be embodied in a new series of half hour NBC programs to be heard through KWK every Wednesday night, beginning April 24. The first program will go on the air at 9 o'clock, but for subsequent broadcasts the time will be 8 o'clock.

The programs, to be known as "The ABA Voyagers," are sponsored by the A. B. A. Cheque department of the Bankers Trust Co.

The plot of the broadcast concerns the adventures of a group of young Americans traveling abroad with a college professor as their guide and counsellor. They are a talented group, and sing and play musical instruments as they travel from one city to another. In each city they will hear music of that particular section of the world and at each city they also will hear a dramatized legend.

Hugo Mariani will be the musical director of the program and a male octet will sing in each episode. Alwyn Bach, one of the best known announcers on the NBC staff, will be permanently assigned to the program. Aline Berry, an NBC dramatic artist, also will be a regular member of the group.

The first program will deal with the adventures of the Voyagers in an old inn in Cologne, Germany, during carnival time. Music of the Rhineland will be heard as well as a legend of old Cologne.

The second episode in the series will find the Voyagers in Spain where they will hear a program of Spanish melodies and hear a romantic Spanish legend.

'Raytheonians' Will Go on Air May 5

A new program to be known as "The Raytheonians" will be broadcast for the first time on Sunday night, May 5, over KWK and allied NBC stations. The series will run for 52 weeks.

It will be sponsored by the Raytheon Manufacturing Co., Cambridge, Mass., and will feature the music of many lands. Lew White, organist; a male octet to be known as "The Raytheonians," Milton Cross, announcer, and nationally known radio soloists will take part.

All-Wagner Concert on KWK

Ralph Leopold, Pianist, Soloist—John Hays Hammond to Talk in Collier's Hour—Other NBC Features Scheduled for Today.

RALPH LEOPOLD, pianist, in Baldwin Concert on KWK tonight.

Today's NBC features to be broadcast over KWK are scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock with the usual service conducted by the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling. "The Greatest of These," is to be Dr. Poling's topic.

Faith, he will say, unites man to Christ, secures forgiveness and completes his redemption. Hope implies both recognition and desire of good. But love is the dynamic and truly unselfish virtue of the three, and is therefore most important.

Hymns and anthems will be played by an orchestra during this service, which is sponsored by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Three dances from a fairy ballet by Rybner, a Danish composer, are to be played by the Whittal Angio-Persians, whose program at 5:30 over KWK is announced as follows:

Excerpts from "Prince Ador"	Rybner
Dance of the Demons
Dance of the Gypsies
Ballabile (Grand Waltz)
Minuet No. 2	Beethoven
Annie Laurie
A Bunch of Roses	Chappi
Arabian Dance	Crist
Czardas, from "Ballet Russe"	Luigini
Onward, Christian Soldiers	Sullivan

Russian songs and other music may be heard in a concert by the Nomads, set for 6 o'clock over KWK. This program includes:

'Way Down to South Russia	Folk Song
Crimea Sketches	Spendiaroff
Orchestra.
The Ring	Gypsy Song
Tenor.
Chatter Box	Ziboulka
Orchestra.
Lullaby	Gretchaninoff
Violin.
Valse	Fall
Orchestra.
Old Crib	Gypsy Song
Tenor.
Grandpa	Fomeen
Accordion.
In Gypsy Circle	Russian Gypsy Song
Orchestra.

With Ralph Leopold, pianist, as soloist, the Baldwin concert will bring an All-Wagner program at 6:30 this evening over KWK. Leopold is recognized as a Wagner interpreter of ability. His numbers for tonight's concert will all be his own transcriptions, including the Ride of the Valkyries, from "Die Walkuere"; the Magic Fire Music, from the same opera, and the Love Music, from "Tristan." He will be assisted by the quartet in the Pilgrim's Chorus from "Tannhaeuser." George Raselsy is so sing the Prize Song, from "Die Meistersinger," and James Davies baritone, the King's Prayer.

When a youth, Leopold was organist in Philadelphia churches and was the youngest person ever made a member of the American Guild of Organists. He later studied the piano in Europe, and made a concert tour of the continent including many engagements with orchestral organizations.

Returning to America, Leopold was enthusiastically received on his New York debut. Since then he has apepared with the New York Symphony and other great orchestras and has been successful as a concert artist.

As a boy, Leopold was steeped in Wagner tradition and literature and as a student in Berlin he devoted himself to Wagnerian research.

The program for the Enna Jettick Melodies broadcast at 7 o'clock over KWK follows:

Wait Till the Sun Shines, Nellie.
Venetian Love Song ..... Nevin
Quartet and ensemble.
I Hear You Calling Me ..... Marshall
Tenor and ensemble.
Jesus, Lover of My Soul
Quartet and ensemble.

John Hays Hammond, noted mining engineer, is scheduled to talk on "The Underprivileged Boy" during the Collier's Hour broadcast at 7:15 over KWK.

Indian Fighter Will Tell Story Over KSD

Major-General Hugh L. Scott, U. S. A., retired, Indian fighter and friend of Indians, will relate some of his early experiences with the Indians of the Northwest, during the "Empire Builder's" program over KSD tomorrow night.

Gen. Scott is credited with having more intimate knowledge of Indian lore, history and religion than any living person. On several occasions he astounded the nation by going unattended into hostile Indian encampments, restoring peace and effecting the surrender of the warriors.

He has always felt that the Indian was more sinned against than otherwise. He has no sympathy with the causes of many of the early Indian wars. Humane, kindly Indians who had befriended white men times without number were virtually exterminated by the Government to satisfy the greed and rapacity of the white man, as Gen. Scott sees it.

To Sing Spirituals on KMOX.

A new feature over KMOX on Tuesday and Thursday evenings, from 6:15 to 6:30 o'clock, will be the Diamond Trail Bar Quartet, who will specialize in Negro spirituals.

'Betty Crocker' Now Bride of Californian

The secret marriage of a pioneer in radio and the identity of "Betty Crocker" were revealed when Mr. and Mrs. Arden Bucholz of Filmore, Cal., sailed from New York for New Orleans.

A wedding in Lansford, Pa., made Miss Agnes B. (Betty) Lutz, of the National Broadcasting Company's program department, Mrs. Arden Bucholz. Her husband was a childhood sweetheart.

Now the NBC must find a new "Betty Crocker," for Miss Lutz has been that radio personality since "Betty Crocker's" voice first came from radio speakers in thousands of homes more than three years ago.

Mrs. Bucholz, a native of Princeton, N. J., has been in radio work since 1923. Her first work was as hostess at WEAF. When the NBC was organized several years ago, she was assigned to the program staff.

More than 20 per cent of the farmers in Pennsylvania now have radios. The most popular sizes of farm radios are the five and six-tube sets.

Trade Notes

The first meeting of the dealers' section of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association with its new chairman, Matt Kaemmerer, presiding, was that of Tuesday night at Hotel Kingsway. Kaemmerer told the dealers that within two weeks the auditors should have ready for them the proposed uniform accounting system, in behalf of which the Radio Trades Association plans an educational campaign. Dealers who install this system will be furnished statements giving definite figures on overhead, sales and service costs under all sorts of dealer conditions. These will enable a dealer to know exactly what part of his expense he should apportion to each department and what business he must do to carry these apportioned loads and make a proper profit.

A committee reported that investigation had disclosed that only through the finance companies could a certain insurance coverage be obtained. Tomorrow, it was stated, the secretary of the Radio Trades Association would have available details of a plan for insurance coverage for dealers on all time payment sales, including fire, theft, tornado and conversion risks and, in addition, coverage on all sets out on demonstration.

A talk on selling radio as specialty merchandise was given by Dr. George W. Allison, director of education and sales research for the Meadows Manufacturing Co., Bloomington, Ill.

Otto E. Heilmann has been appointed factory representative for Adler-Royal Radio Furniture, including numerous console models.

A new four electrode, screen grid amplifie rtube, Radiotron UY-224, embodying a 2.5 volt heater element which permits operation from alternating current will be placed on the market around May 1 by the Radio Corporation of America, it is announced. This follows introduction of the UY-245 power tube.

This new radiotron is recommended for use primarily as a radio frequency amplifier in circuits especially designed for it. It may be used in special circuits as a detector or as an audio frequency amplifier.

The screen in the new UY-224 makes possible high, stable amplification per stage.

Characteristics of the UY-224 follows: Plate voltage, maximum, 180 volts; negative grid voltage 1.5 volts; screen voltage, maximum, 75 volts; plate current, 4 milliamperes; screen current, not over one-third of plate current; plate resistance, 400,000 ohms; amplification factor, 420; mutual conductance, 1050 micromhos; heater, 2.5 volts; amperes, 1.75.

Plant No. 3 of the Zenith Radio Corporation, in Chicago, is to be in production of the new Zenith line by May 1, Lindeman-Hoffer, Inc., distributer, reports. The new plant has about 360,000 square feet of floor space, with an unobstructed stretch of floor 4500 feet long.

The Zenith Co. is to make its own cabinets, installing a wood mill and finishing department. Plant No. 1 is to be devoted to making chassis, automatic tuning devices, assembly of chassis and general offices. Plant No. 3 will be used for making cabinets, assembly of receivers and final testing.

Doubled production in the 1929-30 season is planned, and an entire line of automatic tuning models is to be made.

Soloist in Chain Broadcast on KSD Born in Missouri

A Missouri artist, Merle Alcock, is to be soloist in a General Motors Party broadcast over KSD tomorrow night that is described as a spring music festival.

Miss Alcock was born in Andover, Mo., where her father was a Methodist minister. Her girlhood was spent in this state, Iowa and South Dakota, wherever her father's pastoral duties called him. She studied music at Drake University, Des Moines, Ia., then in Chicago and New York.

In 1915, she got an audition before Walter Damrosch, and was engaged as soloist for a tour with the New York Symphony Orchestra. Presently she won a hearing before Gatti-Cazazza and began an engagement with the Metropolitan Opera. She scored a distinct "hit" in Rimsky-Korsakoff's picturesque opera, "Coq d'Or."

After she had rather definitely arrived as a singer, Miss Alcock attracted the notice of Mrs. Charles M. Schwab, wife of the steel man. To many music lovers she is known as a protege of the Schwabs. Incidentally, Schwab is a pianist of ability and Mrs. Schwab has a voice of much the same quality as that of Miss Alcock, which is a rich, flexible contralto.

Akron Station Joins NBC's WEAF Chain

WFJC, at Akron, O., has become a permanent link in the National Broadcasting Co. system.

WFJC uses 500 watts power and operates on 1450 kilocycles (206.8 meters).

It is the fifth NBC outlet to be established in Ohio. Two, WLW and WSAI, are in Cincinnati, and WTAM and WEAR are in Cleveland. Addition of the Akron station brings the total of NBC stations to 67.

Programs from WEAF will go to the Akron transmitter.

Elly Ney, Famed As Pianist, Plays In Eveready Hour

A musical dramatization of the career of Franz Liszt, the Hungarian who became the greatest of pianists and a notable composer, is to be broadcast in the Eveready hour next Tuesday night over KSD.

Elly Ney, recognized in Europe and this country as a piano virtuoso, is to play some of Liszt's works during the program. She is a grand daughter of the younger brother of Marshal Ney of France, but was born in Bonn, Germany, the home of Beethoven. Recently she was given the freedom of that city, and is said to be the only woman who has been so honored by a German municipality.

Tuesday night's broadcast is to trace the life of Liszt from his boyhood in the hamle of Raiding, far from the line of travel on the great Hungarian plain. There the only strangers he saw were occasional wandering bands of Gypsies, whose music was to have so profound an influence upon him.

Now and then, especially in the summer time Liszt's birthplace would be filled with the hubbub of bells and songs and a tribe of these wanderers would set up their tents. The villagers would crowd around their romantic visitors and ever in the front row little Franz Liszt would be found listening raptly to their wild music. In a series of great rhapsodies, Liszt later preserved this gypsy music.

Liszt early displayed such prodigious genius at the piano that he swept in triumph through European capitals at an age before the average music student is out of an academy.

Liszt's meeting with Wagner will be depicted. The association of these two greatly affected the future of both. Liszt's position as director of the Court Opera at Weimer enabled him to produce Wagner's "Lohengrin," "The Flying Dutchman" and "Tannhauser" at a time when Wagner's operas were looked upon with scorn because none understood them.

An entire company of Eveready Hour artists will assist in the dramatization of Liszt's life. Mme. Ney's playing will be supplemented by an orchestra or symphonic proportions under Nathaniel Shilkret.

New Fairy Story Hour on Air.

A special feature for children will be started over KMOX next Saturday by Lady Bee, who will tell stories and fairy tales for an hour, beginning at 10 a. m. Her daily 5 p. m. broadcasts will continue as usual.

Approved Jacobean Cabinet No. 35 with Model 900 Stewart-Warner Radio, illustrated above; 8 tubes, including rectifier. Uses 2 UX-245 power tubes together with five 227's—the most advanced and powerful tube equipment known to radio today. "Balanced Bridge" circuit. Plug-in for Television—an exclusive Stewart-Warner feature. 22-carat gold plated connections. Built-in aerial. Plug-in for Phonograph. Illuminated visible angle dial. New Stewart-Warner Electro-Dynamic Reproducer. Cabinet of American Walnut—height 38″, width 27″, depth 15″.

Approved Sheraton Cabinet No. 58, with Model 900, of Walnut and Australian Lacewood, with silent sliding doors, embodies all features listed above. Height 52½″, width 25½,″ depth 17″. $165.50 less tubes.

Stewart-Warner Radio comes in 60-cycle and 25-cycle AC, 100 to 130 volts, models for any current. Also DC and battery operated.

The new 900 Series STEWART-WARNER RADIO

Through the severest field tests to which any radio was ever put—by night and by day—across even the most difficult mining regions—the new Stewart-Warner has come with flying colors—and out-performed in side-by-side comparison sets costing double its price.

For Stewart-Warner Radio Engineers have done the thing that "couldn't be done" —by developing an entirely new "balanced bridge" circuit—by creating a radio that's so selective it gets stations you never knew existed. It's so powerful it brings distant stations booming in with a volume never before possible. It's so exact it reproduces programs with an unmatched realism of tone.

Here's the new champion of the air—here's "THE SET WITH THE PUNCH." Modern—even to plug-in for television. Performance that's 5 years ahead.

Before you even consider the purchase of any radio, hear this new Stewart-Warner—"the set with the PUNCH." Then you'll appreciate the difference between this 5-years-in-advance champion and "just a radio set."

CHRYSLER MOTORS PRODUCT

Announcing NEW FEATURES that create even Higher Standards in PLYMOUTH Performance, Comfort & Quality

FULL SIZE

This is Plymouth's National Display and Demonstration Week

PLYMOUTH now shows the public something new and altogether unconventional in even higher standards of performance, comfort and quality.

Today's improved Plymouth has longer stroke; a much heavier crankshaft; much larger main bearings and connecting rods; a full-pressure lubricating system of new design—and other Chrysler advancements that have a brilliant new effect on Plymouth performance.

You'll find remarkable new smoothness—not only at normal driving speeds, but at all the extremely low speeds and exceptionally high speeds, where smoothness is rarely found in a low-priced car.

IMPORTANT NEW FEATURES

Increased Engine Stroke and piston displacement giving even greater flexibility and smoothness throughout the entire speed range.

Heavier Crankshaft.

Larger Main Bearings and Connecting Rods—additional factors in increased smoothness.

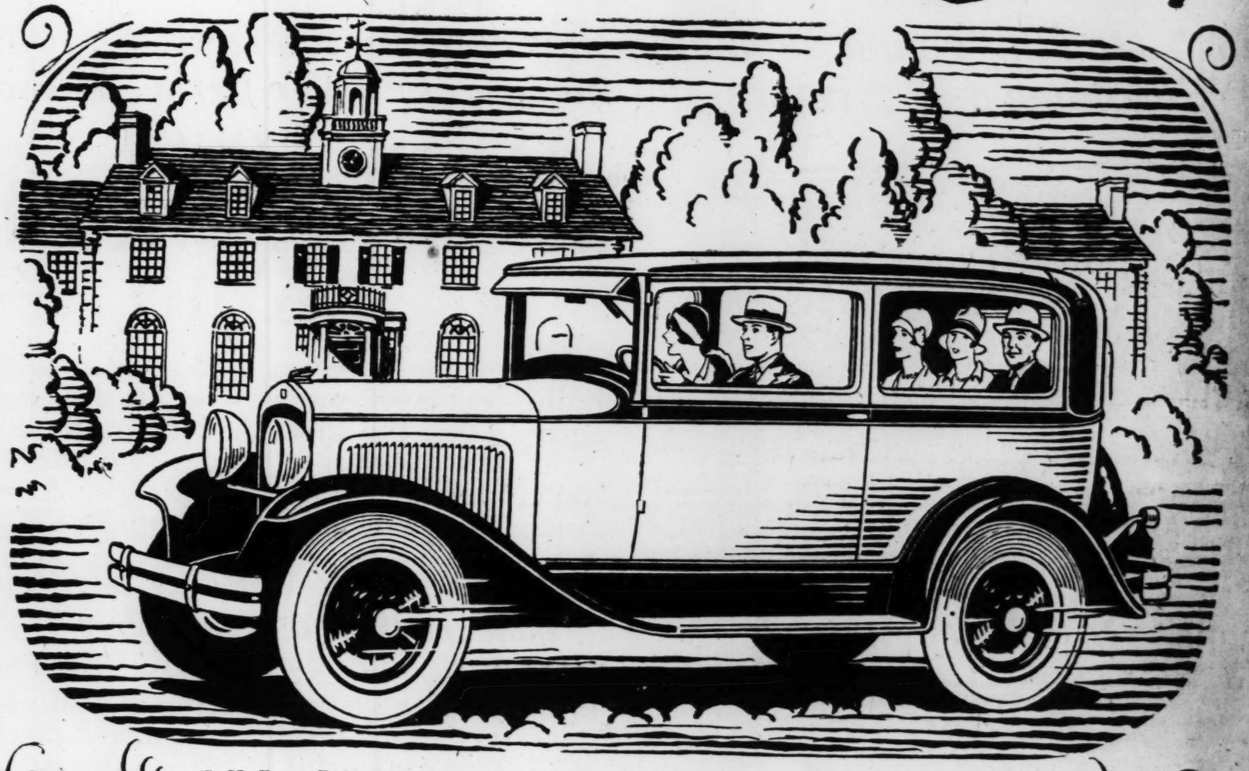
New Design Full-Pressure Lubricating System, with drilled oil channels to all crankshaft, connecting rod and camshaft bearings, giving still better performance and still longer life.

Improved Steering Mechanism which absorbs road shocks usually transmitted to the steering wheel.

Greater Economy of operation and upkeep.

New Self-Conforming seat cushions.

New Spring Colors—and a number of other highly scientific new Chrysler engineering refinements.



THE FULL-SIZE 2-DOOR SEDAN, $675

In addition, rubber-insulated engine mountings, silcrome exhaust valves, aluminum alloy pistons, body impulse neutralizer and other advanced features contribute largely toward making Plymouth's performance so consistently and delightfully smooth.

Already famous for comfort, the full-size Plymouth is now more comfortable than ever. Its wide deep seats with self-conforming cushions of a new type, give you a feeling of repose such as you get in an easy-chair.

Plymouth radiates the charm of new Springtime colors that enhance its crisp smartness of line.

The obviously greater quality and value of the improved Plymouth are found in every phase of its appearance and behavior—in its greater interior roominess and comfort—in its greater economy of maintenance and operation—and in its greater stamina and long life.

Equally obvious is the greater safety of Plymouth—made certain by the general ruggedness of its construction, and by the positive, instantaneous control of its full-size Chrysler weatherproof internal-expanding 4-wheel hydraulic brakes.

$655.00 and upwards f.o.b. factory

This is Plymouth's National Display and Demonstration Week. Make it a point this week to examine and drive the improved Plymouth. It is well worth your time to enjoy the real surprise that we promise you.

And So to Bed for Season

Fagan's Comedy of the Life of Samuel Pepys, Which Comes to the Shubert Tomorrow Night, Probably Will Mark End of the Local Theater Year—Another English Drama Which Has Scored in New York.

IT has been a difficult matter to predict when the legitimate, so called, theater season in St. Louis would come to an end. The Shubert has been opening and closing its doors with startling irregularity but there is reason to believe that the comedy, "And So To Bed," which comes to that house tomorrow night, will really and appropriately mark the end of the theatrical year. This piece is J. B. Fagan's play, built around the life of Samuel Pepys, which had a long run in London, where it first saw the light of day, and which also pleased New York and Chicago immensely. Lee Shubert, who is directing the present tour, brought over the London production, including scenery, costumes, furniture and electrical effects. Eugenie Leontovich, will have the role of Mrs. Peppys, Walter Kingsford plays Samuel Pepys himself, Roberta Beatty is the Mrs. Knight, while Boyd Davis enacts the role of King Charles II.

Pepys is famous not only for his Diary, but for the part he played in developing the British Navy as Secretary of the Admiralty. However, it is not his serious side which is dealt with in the play, but rather the more human aspects of his character. Pepys was a great philanderer, and the comic incidents of the play grow out of his acquaintance with Mrs. Knight, his wife's jealousy, and the untimely appearance of the King when Pepys calls on Mistress Knight.

J. B. Fagan, the author, is an Oxford man; and he is no stranger to patrons of the theater, at least by reputation. He was represented on the American stage for the first time by "Gloria," a drama in which Julia Marlowe starred. Douglas Fairbanks, then a young romantic actor, was seen a few years later in another Fagan play, "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." Elsie Ferguson has toured in his "The Wheel of Life," and other well-known players were seen still later in the Fagan dramatization of "Bella Donna."

ANOTHER Englishman is responsible for one of the smashing hits of the late theatrical season in New York. "Journey's End," which will likely get out to St. Louis next fall. From a grammar school in Surrey, a 17-year-old English lad, Robert Cedric Sherriff, went to war in the summer of 1914. Out of an infantry training camp he was sent to France as an officer. In the Ypres salient in 1917 he got a nasty wound, and was sent back to England after 15 months at the front to do staff duty until the war ended.

Daily from France, or a least every other day, he wrote home to his mother, sister or brother. When he was mustered out he returned to Surrey, became an insurance clerk, and spent many of his evenings writing and producing short plays with a neighborhood acting group.

Six years after the armistice he found at home all the letters he had written, packed away in order. They seemed on rereading to hold material for a novel, and he began to write one. Half way through it he decided to try a play instead.

That was the genesis of "Journey's End," hailed in London as the most powerful play yet fashioned by an Englishman out of the World War, and brought to the United States by Gilbert Miller.

ALL of the characters in "Journey's End" are men, and all of its action unfolds in the officers' dugout of a British trench before St. Quentin during four days in March, 1918. Of plot it has only enough to motivate its character studies of fighting men—studies which melt into a tragic polemic against war.

There is Lieutenant Osborne, the kindly schoolmaster with his leavening poise and quiet courage. There is Captain Stanhope, commander of the company. And there is young Lieutenant Raleigh, assigned by coincidence to the company commanded by Stanhope, his hero at school and the fiance of his sister.

The company is awaiting a German attack, with orders that it must hold its ground to the last man in order to delay the inevitable advance of the foe. On the eve of the expected assault a raiding party has to go out. Osborne and Raleigh lead it. Osborne does not come back. The next day the offensive comes, and Raleigh is its first victim. He dies in a verminous bunk as Stanhope kneels beside him, and when Stanhope has gone out to his own certain death, the last curtain falls upon a dugout which is crumbling under enemy shells around the corpse of young Raleigh.

Others come and go in the candle light while shells boom outside and the very lights flash—lithe young officers, some eager, some afraid. But Osborne, Stanhope and Raleigh are the main figures—Osborne furtively leaving his ring and his wife's picture and his copy of "Alice In Wonderland" for the captain to send home as he goes out on the raid; Stanhope guzzling whisky to sustain him against his own hatred of battle and his fear of cowardice; Raleigh saying: "It all seems sort of romantic to me," and hearing Osborne answer: "You must always try to think of it that way—it helps."

SINCE the works of Henrik Ibsen were first brought in translation to the attention of English-speaking theater audiences almost 60 years ago, most of his dramas have been seen often on the American stage.

But never have the plays of the Norwegian dramatist been given so extensive a hearing in the United States as they received this season in New York. The Actors' Theater presentation of Ibsen's "Lady From the Sea," directed by and starring Blanche Yurka, is the year's eighth Ibsen production there, and it revives a play which has been seen but twice on Broadway. Sixteen years ago it was done there, and before that Eleanora Duse played it in New York in Italian.

"Lady From the Sea," mystical and symbolic, was adjudged by the critics to be less within the realm of Miss Yurka's abilities than "The Wild Duck," the presentation of which, earlier this season, ranks as one of the high lights of the year.

But it gives Ibsen a rank perhaps never attained by another playwright, for the records do not show that seven different plays from the same pen ever were seen in New York in the same season. The late Avery Hopwood had five plays on Broadway, all at the same time. Eugene O'Neill has been represented this season by four at once: "Strange Interlude," "Dynamo," "S. S. Glencairn," and his one-act piece, "Before Breakfast." There were half a dozen Shakspearean revivals in the same season a few years ago when John and Ethel Barrymore, Jane Cowl, Marjorie Rambeau and other ranking stars

When Mary Pickford Was Gladys Smith—By David Belasco

Mary Pickford, Who, at the Start of Her Theatrical Career Moved Back and Forth Between the Spoken Stage and the Then New Motion Pictures, Has Broken Her Long Silence, So Far as Audiences Are Concerned, in the Talking Picture, "Coquette." Mr. Belasco, Who "Discovered" the Tremendously Popular Star of the Screen Tells of Her Start Up the Ladder.

"THE moving finger writes, and having writ, moves on" was the quotation which came to my mind recently when I read the announcement that Mary Pickford—my little chum—is to take her bow in the talking moving pictures with "Coquette" as the vehicle.

My first meeting with this golden-voiced bit of femininity occurred during 1907 when I was preparing to produce my play, "The Warrens of Virginia." I had chosen Frank Keenan and Charlotte Walker for the leading roles. The next necessity was two children—just the right children—for the role of "Bob" and "Betty." Here was a problem indeed, for it was indicated that the children must be of the Southland, that they must match adequately the characters of the father and mother, and that they must have unusually fine voices.

Child after child appeared and was rejected until one day the late William Dean, then my assistant, came to me with a note from Blanche Bates, asking me to see a little protege of hers.

"She's a sweet, self-possessed little thing," he told me, "and has had some stage experience, though nothing of especial note."

"I was waiting in the dark auditorium the next evening. The sole illumination of the stage was the pilot light—a single brilliant standard incandescent which is kept burning continuously when the remaining lights are off. Soon there was a stir in the wings, and I saw Mr. Dean motion the child forward.

Her intelligent eyes searched the darkness until she made out my figure in an aisle seat, well forward. She smiled, thoroughly unperturbed, inclined her head in greeting, and said:

"I have memorized some lines from 'Patsy Poor,' a character in 'Human Life,' if you wish to hear them."

Then, without further preliminaries, and with the utmost of self-confidence, the child began voicing the lines. And as she spoke, I marveled at the clearness of her diction, the music of her tones. There was no slurring of consonants, no nervous juncture of words. I had but to close my eyes and imagine myself listening to the clear-cut, well trained voice of some debutante graduate of a fine finishing school.

I watched her hands in the glare of the pilot light, but there was not the slightest evidence of nervousness. The expressive fingers moved gracefully in time with her gesticulations. Her eyes gleamed with interest as she entered into the role she was assuming, while each of her changing postures was graceful in the extreme.

I WAS sincere when I said, "That's very good," at the end. She had made a splendid impression under the most trying conditions. I knew then I had found my "Betty Warren," and I told her to come to the office the next day.

"B it what a name for the stage!" I exclaimed, when she appeared and announced simply, "I am Gladys Smith."

"Yes, it is pretty terrible, isn't it?" she asked, laughing merrily after she had settled herself in one of my largest chairs. "But daddy's name was 'Smith' and mother chose the 'Gladys' part of it—so I'm helpless."

"Possibly not as helpless as you think." I rejoined. "We must find a name expressive of your personality and your fine voice.'

"If I could have had a choice, I would have selected 'Mary,' for I love that name best of all," the child replied. "But I do not like 'Marie'."

"Very well," I replied, "but 'Mary Smith' isn't helping any. We must find a suitable last name, something like 'Fairfax' or 'Tolliver' or 'Hardin'—"

"One of my relatives married a man named 'Pickford'" she suggested tentatively.

"'Mary Pickford'," I ejaculated. "It was made to order for you. That is it: the perfect name!"

It was thus she was christened in the name which has become so famous throughout the world.

ALREADY I was under the spell of the child's winsome personality, and remarkably musical voice, but I believe it was the latter quality which attracted me most. There was an indefinable cello note in her lower registers, and a flute-like clarity and sweetness in her overtones, which told me beyond the question of a doubt that she would score as the daughter in my play. Master Richard Story also came to me providentially at the same time, and I do not believe there ever were two sweeter child characters in productions.

With the close of "The Warrens of Virginia," Mary came to me and said:

"Unless you advise against it, I think I will try motion pictures for a while. I have had some tests at the Biograph studio and Mr. David Griffith has promised me regular work. I think I will like it, but I do not want to attempt it if you think it will interfere with my stage prospects. Tell me what to do, please, for you are my best friend and adviser."

Here indeed was a problem! I knew that the child's beauty and sweetness would make her a success in pictures. But on the other hand the stage would be losing these qualities, plus a particularly melodious voice. But in the end I nodded approval.

But Mary came back to me in 1912 to play the role of "Juliet" in "A Good Little Devil," a fairy fantasy. And strangely enough there were cast with her other juveniles destined to score successes later. Among those were Ernest Truax, cast in my play as the Scotch Orphan; Lillian Gish, Wilda Bennett and Regina Wallace. Each had an important role.

Mary brought back to the theater a new expressiveness of feature, her remarkable "speaking" hands, and an amplification of her natural poise and gracefulness. But best of all she brought back every note of her superbly musical voice.

PRESENTLY when the end of the season came, Mary called on me to say, plaintively:

"Will you have a place for me next season, Mr. David, dear?"

I shook my head negatively.

"Why—but why—" she said. "What have I done—"

"Everything, my dear," I rejoined, "I'm going to let you go back to the pictures, where they're clamoring for you; where you have made hundreds of thousands of admirers by your splendid work. You can go equally as far on the stage, but it will take years, and in that time you can have progressed an incredible distance on the screen. I want so badly to see you on the heights that I am willing to forego all my plans in order that my little chum may find stardom quickly."

I think we both were a bit misty-eyed at the parting, but Mary walked from my studio that day to put her dainty feet on the ladder of screen fame—and joy has been mine in the passing years to know that my advice was good.

We have never lost contact. I always think of Mary Pickford as America's Sweetheart—but my "little chum." Always I have rebelled at the loss of her glorious voice in the silences of motion-pictureland, but now it seems that even that is restored in "Coquette."

Elgar's King Olaf For Music Week

The Apollo-Morning Choral Clubs will celebrate the opening to Music Week by the presentation of Elgar's "King Olaf" at the Odeon on May 6 with four soloists and orchestra under the direction of Charles Galloway.

The soloists will be Mrs. Hector Pasmezoglu and Katherine Cowan, sopranos, Bernard Ferguson, baritone and Judson House, tenor. Both women are members of the Morning Choral club and are well known in musical circles. Ferguson, another prominent figure in St. Louis, was for two seasons with the Municipal Opera Co. and is one of the best known concert and oratorio singers in the country. Judson House, the tenor, has appeared in many programs with Ferguson. He, too, is a leading oratorio singer.

To Present "Laff That Off."

The Players of the Perpetual Help Young Men's Sodality will present the comedy, "Laff That Off" at their auditorium, Twenty-first and Linton avenue next Wednesday night and will repeat it there on the night of May 1. The cast will include Gene Braunger, Vincent Imming, Cecelia Bruna, Madge Koetting, Betty Mager, Adelaide Koehnemann, Edward Hoormann, Ted Schiff, Aloy D. Scheffer and Eddie Harzberg.

Silverman Off for Coast

Local Orchestra Leader, Long a Fixture Here, Goes to Hollywood to Make Music for the Warner Synchronized Films—Grand Opera House, Home of the Continuous Vaudeville Idea, Bows to the Rush of Talking Pictures and Makes Change in Policy After Fifteen Years.

BY NIE.

THE scattering of the organization built up here by the Skouras brothers in their effort to establish the St. Louis brand of movie theater entertainment in the newly formed chain of Warner theaters throughout the country goes merrily on and last night Dave Silverman who has been with the local outfit almost from the time pictures were first shown in St. Louis, left for Hollywood. Out in the Cinema City Dave is to take charge of the musical end of Warner Vitaphone productions, scoring all of the synchronized films and writing much of the music and "theme songs." The amiable Mr. Silverman, has been the conductor of the orchestra at the Ambassador since that theater opened.

Never sensational, but quietly efficient Silverman literally went up the scale with the Skouras boys. He specialized on the scoring of music in connection with the films and has been preparing for an opportunity to move to Hollywood.

Born in Philadelphia in 1890 Silverman started his musical career at the age of seven. He was a "boy soprano" in a church choir at 12 and came to St. Louis soon after, taking up violin lessons on his arrival here. He sang in a synagogue at Thirteenth and Carr streets but soon abandoned vocal efforts for the piano. In 1908 he was made leader of a three-piece orchestra at the Gem Theater on Sixth street near Market, where Gene Rodemich was also playing. He then moved to the new Hippodrome across the street and then in succession to the Downtown Lyric, the Lyric Skydome at Taylor and Delmar and the West End Lyric. After a brief engagement with the Hotel Chase he went to the Grand Central, then to the Missouri and finally the Ambassador.

Incidentally Silverman's successor at the Ambassador will be Albert Roth, first violinist at the Missouri. The name of Roth means little to the local audiences but as "Red," long a foil to the successive Masters of Ceremonies at the Missouri Theater he is known to every motion picture fan in St. Louis. And speaking of Masters of Ceremonies, Harry Rose, who came here under an optional contract with his local contract depending upon his success, has been signed up for a long term and will remain at the Missouri indefinitely for his breezy style and pleasing personality clicked right from the start.

MARY ASTOR, one of the most beautiful of the screen stars whose voice is still to be tested out in the talkies, is on display at the Fox this week in "Romance of the Underworld." Miss Astor spent the first 12 years of her life in her birthplace, Quincy, Ill., and the first of her teens in the Kenwood Loring School for Girls in Chicago.

The lure of the screen seized her and she went to New York and was playing an important role in "The Beggar Maid," directed by Herbert Blache, when she was 15.

After playing leads with Barthelmess, John Barrymore and Douglas Fairbanks she was signed by First National to a three-year contract and was co-featured with Lloyd Hughes in many productions.

Fox signed her for one picture, "Dressed to Kill," Irving Cummings' epic of the underworld. So well did she click that she was signed to a long-term contract and her first assignment under that arrangement was another Cummings' crook-melodrama, "Romance of the Underworld," which, as said before, is being shown this week.

WITH the introduction today of Photophone, the latest sound and talking device, the Grand Opera House will present only three, instead of four, shows daily, making the first time in 15 years that the Market street variety house departed from the four-show-daily policy. The new policy will be permanent. On Sundays the doors will not open until 12:40 p. m., with the screen features starting at 1 o'clock, and vaudeville at 3, 6 and 8:45. On weekdays the doors will open at 11 o'clock, with screen features starting at 11.30 and vaudeville at 1:15, 6 and 8:45. The program policy will be sound pictures and vaudeville acts.

The change recalls that the Grand Opera House, 15 years ago, virtually revolutionized the vaudeville world by presenting continuous vaudeville at movie prices. So successful was the policy that, for years, the Grand was regarded as one of the biggest money-makers in the show business, and theater men came here from all parts of the country to study the policy and marvel at the crowds that packed the theater. The next few years saw theaters throughout America put the Grand idea into effect and every theater that adopted the policy is said to have become a veritable gold mine.

The St. Louis Theater, controlled as is the Grand by the Radio-Keith-Orpheum organization, also seems to be fishing around for a change in policy and this week is trying out the band show style of entertainment with the Louisville Loons orchestra on the stage combined with the local house musicians. The R-K-O officials will watch the experiment here this week and if the Grand avenue audiences take to it that form of entertainment, combined with vaudeville and talking pictures, will likely be continued.

ALOYSIUS is the original "ham actor" of the talkies. (The pun, be it added hastily, is his press agent's, not ours.)

At the age of two months, this healthy young pig makes his movie debut in the new school of animal actors demanded by this modern screen technique which paradoxically has "silence" for its watchword.

In the good old days of silent pictures, animal actors had to be trained, of course, but they could be directed with shouted orders from behind the camera. In the talkie regime the animal trainers must be as tongue-tied under the merciless microphones as the directors, and like them, must transmit orders to their "players" by means of gestures and signs.

So Aloysius has been educated to "enact his part" in the "Smiling Irish Eyes" by obeying gestures from Colleen Moore, with whom he appears in several scenes.

In this Irish romance Miss Moore joins practically all the rest of Hollywood in the talkie field, and she will be heard in several songs. In preparation she has been studying her music like an aspirant to grand opera. Her leading man, James Hall, will sing, also, but he has had musical comedy experience.

K. C. Choral Club To Give Silver Jubilee Concert

Will Celebrate 25 Years of Music Offerings at St. Louis University on Wednesday Night With Fine Program.

WEDNESDAY night the Knights of Columbus Choral Club, under the direction of William Diebels, will celebrate its silver jubilee with a concert at the St. Louis University Auditorium.

During the past 25 years this club has presented to music lovers of St. Louis and of many other cities in the United States and Canada a wealth of choral numbers, many of these being first time productions.

Two soloists to be heard at this concert will be Merleta Davis, St. Louis lyric soprano, and George E. Muskens, lyric tenor, also of this city. Merleta Davis studied for many years in Chicago, while Mr. Muskens received his vocal training in Rotterdam and in New York.

With Esmeralda Berry Mayes at the piano, the Choral Club will present the following program:

Watchman! What of the Night...Sarjeant
Knights of Columbus Choral Club.

Thyrsus to Present "Liliom" Next Month

Thyrsus, the dramatic organization of Washington University, will make a production of Franz Molnar's drama, "Liliom," at the American Theater on the night of May 10. The company is being rehearsed by Donald Blanchard, who produced the play for the Theater Guild of Asheville, N. C., two seasons ago.

The Thyrsus Club included in the cast for "Liliom" some of the newer material in the organization, which promises to produce effective acting in the realm of amateur drama.

The part of Liliom, the sullen, childlike, useless bully with "a way with him," will be played by H. Robert Shampaine, one of the new members of the organization. Julie, the servant girl who is ashamed to confess her irrepressible love for Liliom, will be impersonated by Mary Jane Roach, who displayed her talent in one-act plays presented last fall. Other principal roles are played by Dorothy Zetlemeisel, Willis Wager, Mary Virginia Harris and Mary Wickenhauser.

Highlands to Open For Summer May 5

The opening date at Forest Park Highlands has been arranged for Sunday, May 5. The Highlands will be open daily, including Sundays, until Labor day, and with favorable weather the term may be extended several weeks beyond that holiday.

In conformity with the plans of the 32 preceding seasons, Forest Park Highlands has been completely renovated and repainted and new electrical lighting devices installed throughout its 14 acres of playgrounds.

turned almost in a body to the bard's plays.

This season, however, Walter Hampden did "The Enemy of the People" for a time; Alexander Moissi did "Ghosts" in German; Eva Le Galliene's company has three Ibsen plays—"The Master Builder," "John Gabriel Borkman" and "Hedda Gabler"—in its repertory; and Miss Yurka has played Gina in "The Wild Duck," Hedda in "Hedda Gabler," and now Elida in "Lady From the Sea."

All in all, Miss Yurka's Ibsen season has been so successful that she plans another, in which she will do "Romersholm," "A Doll's House" and "Lady Inger of Ostraat," the latter never produced in America. Bernard Shaw's dream of an Ibsen theater may come true at last, and in New York.

County Youngsters To Give an Operetta

The Junior Players of the County Theater Guild will present "The Seven Old Ladies of Lavender Town" an operetta by Henry C. Bunner and Oscar Weill, next Friday night and Saturday afternoon and evening.

The scene of the operetta is laid in the mythical land of Kategreenaway and the time is "once upon a time." A novel feature of the production will be the introduction of old-fashioned waxwork figures.

Barbara Stanwyck and Frank Fay are in Hollywood To Star in the Talking Pictures

BEHIND THE SCREENS

By Helen Hurd

Musical Comedy Gets Setback When Marilyn Miller Quits Stage for the Talkies

HOLLYWOOD, April 20.

HOLLYWOOD has gone talkie wise and sound foolish. There are no ifs and maybes about it. The trail between the Cinema City and Broadway is kept hot by the Bright Light favorites coming West to test their lung power. In fact, it looks like the time is coming when the unenlightened fan will no longer be able to tell his favorite moving picture theater from a dyed-in-the-wool playhouse if he goes by the names on the electric signboards. The registration of sound recruits thus far reads like an abridged edition on the Actor's Equity. Here are just a few of them—Fannie Brice, Ted Lewis, Sophie Tucker, George Arliss, Maurice Chevalier, Ina Claire, Paul Whiteman, Charlotte Greenwood, Moran and Mack. Then there's Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fay who are also out here to do big business in the outlouds. Barbara Stanwyck, star in the stage success "Burlesque," and who, you will remember became Mrs. Frank Fay on a smoggy St. Louis day not so long ago, is under contract with United Artists for an all-talkie called "The Locked Door," which is an adaptation from the old play, "The Sign on the Door" played 14 years ago by Mary Ryan, and once made some 10 years ago as a silent picture, by Norma Talmadge. Frank Fay is rewriting the story for her, and she confessed that he is letting her in for a lot of real work. I thought she ought to be able to do something about that, but real artist that she is, she wants it that way—the more work, the more play, and the play's the thing.

Incidentally, Frank is about the busiest boy in town, for aside from the work of rewriting Barbara's picture story, he is writing one for himself, which he will do later. In the meantime, Joe Schenck, head of United Artists, has loaned him to Warner Brothers for a celluloid version of "So Long, Letty" with Charlotte Greenwood. And speaking of the ha-ha comedies, nearly half a million dollars have been expended at the Radio-Keith-Orpheum stand in the last 60 days soundproofing all the stages. With "Rio Rita," "Hit the Deck," "Ringside," "The Viennese Charmer," and "Help Yourself to Happiness" scheduled for immediate production, things will soon be humming there—and humming is the word for they are all musical comedies.

Work has begun making every studio stage on the Fox lot soundproof, which seems to imply that Winnie Sheehan meant what he said when he announced recently that Fox would make no more silent pictures. And it's the same story at all the studios. It seems that having passed the formative stage, moving pictures are now entering on their second phase of development. There is nothing small about the moving picture business, either, for the industry has gambled to the extent of $40,000,000 in studio equipment alone, to say nothing of the millions required for theater apparatus. And I say gambled, for the public's reaction to sound pictures is still to be discovered.

But back to the drama. It seems that the firm of Mammy, Inc., is here to out-mammy all preceding blackface, spotlight, pleadings and supplications. "Mammy" is to be the name of the film, starring Al Jolson, which for a change is to relate the experiences of a minstrel man. And—don't jump when the light flashes—Irving Berlin is in Hollywood to write the words, lyrics and music. Sob, sister, sob!

The Two Black Crows will indulge in a few Moranecdotes and Mackisms for Paramount in blackface, too. Here are some figures on them which ought to make a difference to the mammy singers over the land. They have been doing blackface comedy for 25 years. Averaging two makeups a day, each uses a pound of burnt cork a month. This equals 300 pounds per Crow, or 600 pounds of burnt cork consumed to the time they started in pictures. Now, since a pound of burnt cork is good for an average of 65 makeups, the amount of burnt cork consumed by the pair would blacken the entire 38,900 inhabitants of Quincy, Ill., with enough left over for only a hundred mammy singers. Now, if there's any questioning these figures and if anybody cares about it work it out yourself.

And another thing, the time they have consumed in making up would be sufficient to cover the entire sailing time from New York to Cherbourg, with time left over to learn to master the Hawaiian guitar.

Another Broadway luminary is Will Rogers, who is soon to hotfoot it back to the West, where the cowboys throw a mean line. Anyway, when he gets through pinch-hitting for Fred Stone, he will be starred in "They Had to See Paris," a talkie from the story by Homer Croy.

These talkies are dragging the authors in, too, by the carload. Frank Craven planned to keep on going after "The Nineteenth Hole," but he was captured by Harold Lloyd, and he is now enjoying the weather and golfing while he writes the dialogue for Lloyd's newest comedy. And also Frederick H. Brennan, former St. Louis newspaper man, is writing the scenario for an important new Fox movietone, "The Brass Bowl," based on a story by Louis Joseph Vance.

As an example of what the "legit" musical comedy stage has to look forward to, Marilyn Miller has been lured to Hollywood. She has signed a contract calling for $100,000 per year to do "Sally" in the First National alley, and I saw Irving Fisher out there the other day. He will be remembered as the tenor of the Garden Theater Company last year and his eyes are cast on the talkie and single lots.

Mention Chester Conklin to the average movie fan and he will draw a mental picture of a funny, pathetic, rather stoop-shouldered old geezer with incorrigibly wandering spectacles and a great street-brush moustache.

Mention Lon Chaney to the same fan and he will picture—well, almost anything, but it probably won't have a moustache.

Conklin, because of his screen character consistently depicted, could walk down the main street of any American village and not be recognized by his most rabid fan. Perhaps the same could not be said of Chaney, the "don't-step-on-it" joke to the contrary, because the man of many faces occasionally has appeared on the screen with his own. But he never has worn a moustache.

Now both Conklin and Chaney are going in for something different. Chaney, for the sake of his role in "Thunder" a tale of the railroads, has subdued temporarily his avowed aversion for lip adornment, and is wearing a moustache he cultivated on a location trip in the East.

And Conklin, who has become famous as the wearer of a brush and "spec," is forsaking both and will give the fans some idea of how he really looks in "Stairs of Sand"—which, incidentally, is the only non-talkie now being made by Paramount.

Since everybody else is doing it, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks are going to make the long promised picture together with the first production of Shakspeare the screen has had in ages. Nobody else would think of doing a drama by the Bard, but Doug and Mary are to start work in June on a tremendous production of "Taming of the Shrew." It will be an all-talkie. There have been rumors for some time that Miss Pickford's swan song to the films would come with a picture made with Fairbanks but the talkies have changed all that. Her success around the country in her first sound film, "Coquette"—which, she tells me, is on view in St. Louis right now—has opened up the new field to her and she means to go on indefinitely with no idea of leaving the screens flat. "Taming of the Shrew" will be the first picture in which these two stars have appeared together.

In Hollywood you never know when the break will come or in whose lap it will fall.

Take, for example (and a good, generous, example it is) 12 dancing "girls" just signed for important work in Paramount's audible film version of the stage success, "Burlesque." They will appear as the chorus of Amazons; or "beef trust girls," in the several burlesque show sequences of the production, and they will recall vividly to many St. Louisans, who probably won't admit it, Billy Watson's aggregation of 200-pound beauties who used to cavort, more or less gracefully, on the stage of the old Standard Theater once in every season. Gone is the old Standard and gone, too, are the heavyweight show girls. The perfect 48 has given way to the shapely 16 and digging up the curves of other days was a real job.

Fred Datig, casting director at the Paramount studios and one of the veterans of the business, says that to find these 12 women was the most difficult assignment he has ever been given.

"Directors Cromwell and Sutherland wanted no woman who weighs less than 180 pounds," he explains, "and try to find in this day and age just one 180-pound woman who will consent to don a pair of tights and dance for an audience. I had to do everything except go into their homes at night and drag them away from their dinner tables."

Two of the first to be signed for the beef trust group were a mother and her daughter—a daughter who as an infant was the first baby to be used in a Paramount picture. The mother is Gordona Bennett, herself a member of the theatrical profession since she was 3 years of age, and who for many seasons was with Weber and Fields and that happy group known as The Gayety Girls.

Her daughter is now known professionally as Utahna La Reno. Utahna—laugh that name off—for the past three years, has been one of the show girls with the Main Street Follies in Los Angeles, a show that does a tremendous business on Saturday nights in a part of town that was once the busiest district. Baby Utahna La Reno (such was not her name in those days) was the gold-haired infant in "The Squaw Man," the first motion picture ever made by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co. Her mother had a small part in the same picture. Their present employment together in the beef trust chorus of "Burlesque" is their first for the Lasky company since that time in 1913.

Several of the women in the group tell little of their past history. Each, however, admits once having been on the stage. Some have assumed names for their present roles. One who has not, and who is rather proud of the novel name that she boasts, is Margaret Forty-four Acres, an Indian girl. And Margaret well qualifies for her last name.

W. U. Quadrangle Club In a New Musical Comedy

"SHIP AHOY!" the Washington University Quadrangle Club musical comedy, featuring Jean Bronenkamp and Melvin Maginn, opens its three-night engagement at the American Theater next Thursday night. The three-act, six-scene production will be played by a large cast and chorus chosen last October from a group of 300 tryouts. There are 30 coeds in "Ship Ahoy!"

The cast includes Jean Bronenkamp, prima donna; Melvin Maginn, first comedian; Gilbert Moore, leading man; Geraldine Meyer, ingenue; Charles Spoehrer, juvenile; Paul Chamberlain, Katharine Bush, Ruth Waldbauer, William Ogden, J. Gruner, V. G. Guilford and Lee Ward. Miss Waldbauer, comedienne, was recently crowned as Engineers' Queen at the university. Maginn is president of the Quadrangle Club and production manager of "Ship Ahoy!"

The opus was written by Ted Williams and Carleton Hadley, Washington graduates, who have to their credit two other successful pieces, "High Hat" and "Rosita," the 1928 and 1927 Quadrangle offerings.

Specially designed and constructed scenery, colorful costumes by Margaret Bishop Breen, and a 12-piece orchestra led by Williams, who composed the show's 15 tunes, are among the features promised by the Quadrangle Club. "Ship Ahoy!" has been in rehearsal since last November.

Those who have witnessed rehearsals of "Ship Ahoy!" state that the book of this year's show offers the best opportunity for comedy that has been found in any Quadrangle offering. Hadley wrote the book.

All dancing in the show was arranged and directed by Miss Lola Aguado, a Municipal Opera favorite. A large singing and dancing chorus, a specialty dancing chorus known as the Lola Aguado Girls, and three dance teams, Aguado and Sadlo, House and Steinmetz, and Menown and Frank carry the burden of the production's terpsichorean work.

Prof. Vladimir Jelinek of the university's English department served as dramatic director for "Ship Ahoy!"

Jeanne Eagels in "The Letter," at the Ambassador.

Katheryn Cravens in "Torchbearers," at the Players' Guild.

Day by Day —In— New York

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, April 20

SOME typical New Yorkers:

The typical stranger who rushes up to a celebrity in a public place and shakes his hand.

The talkative lady in an ermine wrap at a theatrical first night.

The slick-haired boy who checks his hat and walks about in hotel lobbies and coffee rooms.

The gushing lady who knows everybody you mention.

The sales girl who seems annoyed you are still there.

The dowager in a limousine who gazes at your noisy shirt through a lorgnette.

The rich idle lady who tries to make the world better by feeding pigeons in the public park or something.

The show-off who yoo-hoos and waves across a dining room.

The pest who expects you to ask him about his recent trip abroad.

The pale young thing who is starving for self-expression and is letting her hair grow.

The sport who smiles the hat check girl out of a tip.

The person in front who has seen the play and tells all about it.

The prim lady who dines alone and sits dreamily blowing smoke through her nose.

The fellow who hums the tune while dancing.

The fat woman with the inevitable Griffon dog.

The wrist-tapping cigarettist who sports a green fedora with a deep back dip.

The Greta Garbo copyist who chews gum.

The window mirror mustache fixer.

The upstart who forces recognition from a head waiter who doesn't know him from Adam.

The old bird who has two cocktails and wants to spin around in an old-fashioned waltz.

The mannish girl with the panther-like gait.

The salad mixer.

From the Folsom prison at Represa, Cal., comes an autographed copy of "Stealing Through Life" by Ernest Booth who writes: "With the good wishes from a city boy trying to make good in the country." Booth first made his literary efforts known through a series of fascinating tales in the American Mercury. He was born in New York and is now a "lifer" at Folsom. He made a number of thrilling escapes from various prisons and his knowledge of the underworld is profound and searching. His new book shows a rare understanding of crime and the criminal with no mawkish sentimentalities. He played a one-sided game, lost and has no recriminations.

Gilbert Miller thumbed a figurative nose at the American theater several months ago and sailed away determined never to produce here again. But he changed his mind and brought over the English company to present "Journey's End" and has hung up the outstanding hit record of the season. The play slipped in with little ballyhoo and knocked the hardened first night crowd into a sniveling wet-eyed heap. It is a war play that makes "What Price Glory" seem about as finished as "Peck's Bay Boy." But some day we wish that one of these producers who leave America for good would do so just to be different.

There is no workman who receives so many suggestions as to how to handle his job as a writer—and the more successful he is the more suggestions he receives. One of the best selling novelists, immediately after a book, receives about 100 letters a week telling him how his book might have been improved. He disarms each with a flattering: "Your criticism is absolutely correct. I am sorry the book is off the presses or I would make the suggested changes."

Short shavings: Trudy Ederle, the Channel swimmer, is almost stone deaf. . . . Too much diving. . . . If you haven't yet read "The Cradle of the Deep" by Joan Lowell you have missed an absorbing tale. . . . The talkies, starting off so conspicuously, are facing public yelps for placing best tickets with speculators. . . . Jack Dempsey is selling his Los Angeles home to make New York his permanent residence. . . . Louis Mann appeared the other day without a wide winged collar. . . . But he was all right again the next day. . . . John Golden put up $18,000 for Francine Larrimore's play "Let Us Be Gay," and hiked off for Florida without seeing rehearsals. . . . He returned to find an outstanding hit. . . . And will clean up a half million. . . . They call it "Golden's Luck." . . . Julia Marlowe walks on Park avenue in the late afternoon. . . . Few recognize her. . . .

'Torch Bearers' Last Play of the Season By Players' Guild

George Kelly's Comedy to Be Presented for a Week at Artists' Guild Theater, Starting Tomorrow Night.

"THE Torch Bearers," by George Kelly, last of the Players' Guild productions for this season, will have a week's presentation at the Artists' Guild Little Theater, starting tomorrow night. Conspicuous in the cast is Bessie Bown Ricker, identified specifically with the reading platform, specializing to a large extent in child impersonations which she has given to audiences all over the country. Mrs. Ricker is cast as Mrs. Nelly Fell in Kelly's comedy. Mrs. Kathryn Cravens is also a reader with a leaning to dialect stories. Mrs. Cravens is from Texas.

Other members of the cast who have been active with the Players' Guild productions are Blair E. Laughlin, Noel A. Grady, Virginia B. Myers, Sol S. Kohn, who has been featured in dramatics at Washington University and Charlotte Grace, who is known in many amateur dramatic groups and has coached plays in the public schools. Erie Applewhite, Robert B. Orthwein, James M. Carpenter, Isabel S. Carpenter and Melville Gordon.

Kelly's comedy, "The Torch Bearers" has been popular in the repertoire of many leading little theater companies and as it deals with the tribulations of an amateur dramatic society to present a play, the subject lends itself admirably to a group like the Players' Guild, which is selected in open competition from amateur volunteers.

"As You Like It" by Amateurs.

The students of the Morse School of Expression will produce Shakspeare's "As You Like It" in the Toy Theater next Friday, Saturday and Monday nights for the benefit of the patriotic and flag fund, sponsored by the Ladies of the G. A. R., American Circle No. 6. Harry R. McClain is directing the plays and the incidental music will be played by Miss Alice Hurigan.

German Musical Comedy Tonight.

The German Stock Company offers tonight, at the Jeffa Auditorium, as second last performance of the season, "Der Raubstrompeter" a musical comedy by W. Mannstaedt, in honor of the principal comedian of the company, Paul Gehring, who will play the title role. The entire company and chorus will participate.

Sumner Pupils in Operetta.

"The Belle of Barcelona," a Spanish Operetta by Cheney will be presented Friday evening at the Sumner High School by the combined boys' and girls' glee clubs and the Sumner orchestra. There are seventy pupils in the cast. C. S. Tocus is director of music at Sumner.

Webster Groves Guild in 'Aren't We All'

THE Webster Groves Theater Guild will present a Frederick Lonsdale's play "Aren't We All?" next Wednesday and Thursday evenings in the auditorium of the new Frank Hamsher High School.

"Aren't We All?" is a sophisticated comedy of manners in which Cyril Maude starred several seasons ago. In the local production Thomas G. Woolsey will be seen as Lord Grenham, the role played by Cyril Maude. Opposite him will be Betty Beecher as Margot, George S. Robins as Willie Tatham, her husband, and Louise A. Hyde as Lady Frinton. Others in the cast are Thomas A. Smith, Irene Flournoy, Irma S. Tucker, Allan McMath, Philip Viall, Cottrell Fox, Robert Turner and Donald McClure. The play is being directed by H. C. Butler.

Following "Aren't We All?" the Webster Groves Theater Guild will present three one-act plays in May as a closing program. These will mark the end of the Guild's second season. In the two years of its existence the members have produced a wide variety of one-act plays and a number of well-known three-act plays.

The Guild plans a very ambitious and active future. Having a variety of talent available, and the city and county from which to draw audiences, it hopes soon to be able to erect its own playhouse with every facility at hand for finished productions.

PLAN TO CONTROL BAY STATE PUBLIC UTILITIES OFFERED

Bill Designed to Make Municipal Ownership Easier and to Keep Rates at Lower Level.

OFFICIAL CALLS IT 'POWER TRUST' CURB

Counsel for Massachusetts Companies Opposes Law to Fix Sale Price of Plants by Court Action.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, April 20.—In an effort to keep public utility charges within reasonable bounds, the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities, which has been an outstanding advocate of the "prudent investment" theory of valuation as against the "reproduction new" yardstick demanded by some utilities and the railroads, has proposed to the Legislature now in session a new law designed to make municipal ownership easier and cheaper. Chairman Henry C. Attwill of the Department thinks it will be an effective curb on the "Power Trust" in Massachusetts.

Under present laws, if a municipality is dissatisfied with the rates charged by a local utility, its only recourse is to buy the private plant at a figure set by the owners. The Public Service Department proposes to amend the laws to enable the municipalities to buy all or part of the plant at a price to be fixed by the courts. Hearings on the bill were ended temporarily yesterday, but will be continued Monday.

The State power interests are opposing the measure, declaring that it is too drastic, encourages agitation for municipal ownership and would lead to "ruinous competition."

How to Control Trusts.

"What is a Power Trust and how is it possible to control it?" Attwill asked the legislators at the hearing. "Not by loud outcries and flaming headlines. Power Trusts are nothing but organizations that buy up the stock of local companies. I know of no constitutional way in which we can say that the stockholder cannot sell his stock, or that others may not buy it.

"The way to control is so to regulate the local companies that it will be unprofitable to buy up their stock at tremendous prices, then pyramid other companies on them and on the local earnings. There is no need to fear the Power Trusts if we control with vigor and have some way to regulate local rates with equal vigor. So long as the State controls the local companies, there is no need to worry over the Power Trusts.

"The Department believes that the public should say to the utilities: 'We will permit you to exercise monopoly control so long as you are willing to comply with the regulations that the people of the State believe should obtain. When, however, you are unwilling to submit to that regulation, you cannot have a monopoly, if the communities you serve desire to engage in business themselves.'

"This bill, we believe, will accomplish the result."

View of Power Companies.

The attitude of the power companies toward the bill was stated yesterday by Sheldon Wardwell, their legislative counsel.

"On the face, this bill appears to insure the investor the right to have his plant purchased in case a town is to acquire a municipal plant," he said. "In fact, the provisions are such that no company would dare to offer its plant for sale under its terms. The stockholder would be compelled to stay in business and maintain competition until the company or municipality went broke and sold out.

"The bill encourages the agitation either by the municipal government or by the Department for Municipal Ownership. It is intended as a club which will be held continuously over the investor to force him to acquiesce in anything which may be decided by the local authorities or the department.

"Perhaps the worst aspect of this bill is the continuous invitation it presents for political pressure and political oppression. It invites the municipal authorities to store up trouble, to continue agitation. It invites the department to crack the whip every time anything is done which is unpopular with the department, or if we Lappen to have a department that is politically minded, for other reasons. It invites agitation by other interests who may want to buy out the company as cheaply as possible.

Group Doubtful About Bill.

The Public Franchise League, a Liberal organization, is giving only luke-warm support to the bill, believing that it does not go far enough.

"An examination of the bill," said Wallace H. Walker, secretary of the league, "arouses grave doubts as to its efficacy to accomplish the desired results. Instead of squarely abolishing the necessity of the purchase of any part of the private plant, it leaves the way open for the city or town to be required to purchase a part or the whole thereof.

"Instead of being threatened with effective competition by the people, the ofending private company would be enabled under the bill as reported, to force at least three hearings before the department and two before the Supreme Judicial Court."

At the hearings a representative of the league urged that the "top limit" a municipality be required to pay for a private plant should not exceed 110 per cent of the cost of the physical property. This represented a compromise with the "prudent investment" theory of valuation.

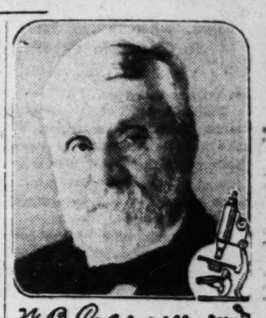
Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People



W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

GERMAN FORTUNES SHOW WAR SHRINKAGE

Only 33 Have Over $2,500,000, Whereas 229 Were So Classed in 1914.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 20.—None of the larger European countries, with the possible exception of Russia, suffered in the World War such a loss of private capital as Germany, says a report of the Government's Statistical Bureau.

In a compilation of the country's tax assessments for the last three years a comparison is drawn between the private capital of the present and that of pre-war days. It shows decimation of the roster of Germany's millionaires.

In place of 157,000,000,000 marks in private capital taxed in 1913 for keeping the army and navy up to the required standard, present statistics show a total of private capital of only 97,800,000,000 marks. Compared to 229 Germans before the war who were worth more than 10,000,000 marks (roughly $2,500,000), only 33 such fortunes are now recorded.

Some Save Fortunes.

Some families, like the Goldschmidt-Rothschilds of Frankfurt-on-Main, the steel trust Thyssens on the Ruhr, the Von Haniels of Munich, large landowners like Prince zu Stollberg-Weringerode, the ex-King Friedrich August of Saxony, the former Grand Duke of Sachsen-Weimar, and some others, succeeded in rescuing the greater part of their possessions during the inflation catastrophe. But the largest landowners, including Prince Pless, Count Henkel von Donnersmarck and Prince Radziwill, became Polish subjects when, by the Treaty of Versailles, large tracts of Silesia were ceded to Poland.

In 1913 there were 2791 persons in Germany with a capital of more than 3,000,000 marks each. This category of mark millionairies has dwindled to 465.

Lower Silesia Is Richest.

Heading the list of provinces with landowners worth 5,000,000 marks or more is Lower Silesia, with 17. Bavaria follows with eight, the province of Saxony and Schleswig-Holstein have six each. Upper Silesia has five; Westphalia and Rhineland four each, the Mark Brandenburg, Pomerania and Mecklenburg-Schwerin three each, and East Prussia only two.

Among the cities of Germany harboring millionaires Berlin is first with 290. Next is Hamburg with 112; Leipzig, 55; Frankfurt-on-Main and Cologne, 48 each; Munich, 42; Dresden, 39; Duesseldorf, 35; Stuttgart, 26; Bremen, 21—compared to 177 before the war—Chemnitz, 21, and Hanover, 19. In Berlin the largest fortunes of more than 5,000,000 marks are owned by 18 individuals—compared to 46 valued at more than 10,000,000 marks before the war.

The average business turnover of individuals throughout the Reich is $3577.50—or less than half of what it was in 1914. The best off are tailors, with an average turnover of $3448, followed by publicans with $2995, tobacconists with $2595, butchers with $2348, bakers with $2192, and shoemakers with $1682. The average capital of German physicians and dentists is $1584.25.

LARGE MIGRATION OF GREEKS TO ASIA MINOR AND AFRICA

72 Colonies Established on Dark Continent, With 77 Churches and 100 Schools.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, April 20.—The Greek population abroad, having since 1922 been greatly decreased in Asia Minor, is expanding widely through Africa.

During the cutting of the Suez Canal, a Greek established the Egyptian cigarette industry. Many Egyptian doctors are of Greek origin. Alexandria has several Greek schools and philanthropic institutions. Years ago Lord Cromer wrote that the Greeks were "the pioneers of progress in the Soudan."

There are Greek churches in Tunisia, Libya, Eritrea and Somaliland. Abyssinia possesses a considerable Greek colony and Tarafi, the Sultan, has visited Athens. In South Africa there are Hellenic communities in the Transvaal, Rhodesia and at the Cape. They exist also in Morocco and the Congo Free State.

In all Africa there are 72 Greek communities, with 77 churches, eight bishoprics, 100 schools and 10 Masonic lodges with more than 5000 members.

DANISH KING WILL REVIEW OLD LIFE GUARD COMRADES

Christian Later to Entertain Soldier Friends of 40 Years.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN.—King Christian of Denmark will celebrate his fortieth anniversary as a recruit in the Danish Life Guards on May 6.

His Majesty plans to be present at a parade of his old comrades in arms who survive after four decades. After the parade the veterans will march from their old barracks to Amalienborg, the King's residential palace.

They will be Christian's guests at luncheon and on a motor trip to the two other royal palaces near Copenhagen, namely, Fredensborg and Sorgenfri Castles, where they mounted guards as soldiers. In the evening the King will be their guest at a public dinner.

WOMEN'S VOTERS LEAGUE TO VOTE ON BY-LAW REVISION

Change in Number of Officers and Directors to Be Considered at Meeting.

Members of the League of Women Voters of St. Louis will meet Tuesday afternoon at Hotel Kingsway to vote on various proposed revisions of the by-laws of the organization, including changes in the number of offices and directors and increases in membership fees.

Under a plan proposed by the Board of Directors, the league would have a president, three vice-presidents and a secretary-treasurer, serving two years each, instead of a president, nine vice-presidents, a secretary and a treasurer. The Executive Committee would consist of five officers instead of four. Membership fees would be $2 to $5 a year for regular memberships and $10 and up for contributing memberships instead of $2 for regular membership, $5 for contributing memberships and $10 for sustaining memberships.

LOUISIANA PURCHASE DINNER TO BE APRIL 30

Motion Picture of St. Louis History and Lindbergh Flight to Be Shown.

The moving picture "The Spirit of St. Louis," originally produced in 1928 and lengthened from time to time to include the return of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from his trans-Atlantic flight, has been again rearranged and cut for showing at the annual dinner of the Missouri Historical Society, to be held April 30, the anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase.

The dinner will be held at Hotel Chase and will be open to the public. Louisiana Purchase day has been observed by the society each year since the World's Fair of 1904.

The historical film opens with the landing of Laclede and Chouteau in 1763 and traces the city's history through its early development, the transfer of Upper Louisiana from Spain to France and then to the United States, the great fire of 1849, and the World's Fair.

The Missouri Historical Society's first observance of the anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase, in 1803, was held in 1898.

GANGS OF WAIFS DISAPPEAR FROM RUSSIAN CITY STREETS

Homeless Children Are Being Cared for and Trained in "Communes of Work."

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 20.—Homeless children, who used to infest Russian cities, working in gangs and thieving or robbing pedestrians, are rapidly disappearing. As a consequence one may traverse some of the side streets now at night with reasonable expectation of arriving home without losing one's watch or purse.

In 1928 there were about 30,000 of these waifs in various cities. About 20,000 were picked up by various organizations last year and placed in institutions to be trained in useful work, fed and cared for until they have lost their gang instincts. More than 3200 were rescued from the streets of Moscow alone.

For years the waifs were an unsolved problem. Most of them lost their homes and parents in the civil wars and revolutionary fighting, but some took to the streets by choice, and these proved the most recalcitrant. Attempts by the Commission of Education to reclaim them by ordinary institutional methods failed because when the youngsters grew tired of routine lives, they ran away.

A special committee appointed last year has had success with "communes of work." Four of these centers were opened—in Rostov, Orlo, the Saratov district and Staro-Tcherkass. The Orlo commune owns a factory in which boys are taught to make harvesting machines. In other places they are trained as locksmiths, boilermakers and in similar trades.

SPECIAL MAIL CANCELLATION STAMP FOR AERO MEETING

Postmaster-General Asked to Authorize It for Mechanical Engineers Session May 27-30.

The Postmaster-General has been asked to authorize the use of a special cancellation stamp announcing the Third National Aeronautic meeting to be held here May 27 to 30 under auspices of the Aeronautic Division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, plans for which are now being completed.

Forty-three papers will be read at the meeting and the programs will be broadcast over national radio hookups, it was announced. Airplanes and dirigible motors from Scott Field will be exhibited at Hotel Jefferson, while airplane manufacturers will display their products at Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field.

Victor J. Azbe is general chairman on arrangements.

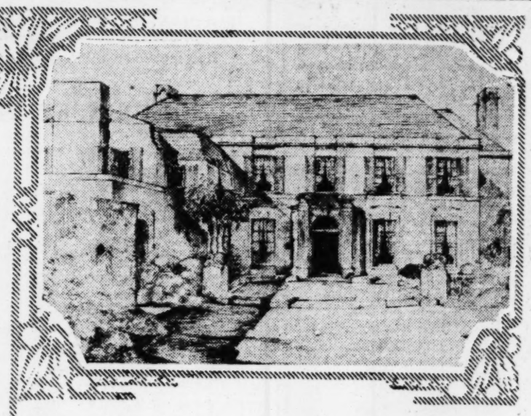
New Apartment and Country Residence Under Construction

Hawthorne Apartments at 4475 West Pine boulevard, approaching completion. It was financed by the New York Life Insurance Co., through the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co.



Entrance front of house being erected on the Ladue road west of the Country Club for Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lehmann. Ralph Cole Hall and Victor Proetz, architects.

$1,000,000 APARTMENT FOR SKINKER AND NORTHWOOD

16-Floor Structure Will Be Erected by Syndicate and Will Be Tallest in Vicinity.

Plans have been completed for a 16-story apartment for the northwest corner of Skinker boulevard and Northwood avenue, to be built by a syndicate headed by R. H. McRoberts. Excavation for the structure was begun yesterday. The cost, exclusive of the site, is placed at $1,000,000.

The site has a frontage on Skinker of 150 feet with a depth on Northwood of 144 feet. It is opposite Forest Park.

Negotiations for the ground were conducted by Harold E. Willson.

The building will comprise 46 apartments of 7 rooms and three baths, and eight rooms with four baths. Two high-speed elevators will serve the apartment. Plans include a garage which will be reached from the elevators.

The site is one block north of the recently completed Versailles 11-story apartment building, occupying a quarter of block, at the southwest corner of Skinker and Rosebury, and was promoted by Willson. This is now the loftiest structure on Skinker road. Plans for other large apartment buildings for Skinker road sites between Northwood and Clayton are progressing.

A Spanish style market has been planned for the south side of Clayton road, beginning 50 feet west of Skinker, and extending over the street car track on the south. The building will have a frontage of 150 feet on Clayton road extending to a private street on the west. It will comprise 18 stores and shops, grouped around a court, with entrances from Clayton road. The court will be finished in Spanish tile with a fountain in the center.

The building is to be erected by the F. W. Schramm Real Estate Co. The cost of the building, including the site, is estimated at $150,000.

MARCH BUILDING IN 25 CITIES SHOWS 18 PCT. GAIN IN YEAR

St. Louis, However, Shows Decrease Over March 1928—Chicago and Detroit Losses Heavy.

Official reports of building permits issued in 582 cities and towns made to S. W. Straus & Co. for March, 1929, were $407,365,423, compared with $254,456,185 in February, a gain of 60 per cent. The normal gain from February to March is 57 per cent, thus tending to indicate an upward trend which should soon manifest itself in actual building activities. Eliminating New York City's figures the March gain over February was 59 per cent, which compares with a normal seasonal variation of 56.4 per cent.

In the 25 cities of the country showing the greatest amount of building the total of permits issued in March was $287,627,874, compared with the February total of $174,128,635, a gain of 64 per cent.

Comparison of the figures for March with those of the same month last year gives a similar indication of an upward trend in building. In the 25 leading cities the gain over March, 1928, was 18 per cent, and over March, 1927, 21 per cent. In 250 cities the gain was 10 per cent. Due to local conditions in some sections of the country, however, the entire list of 582 centers revealed a gain over March, 1928, of only 2 per cent, although it is to be borne in mind that last March the same cities reported a loss of 4 per cent from the same month in 1927, and of 8 per cent from March, 1926. Also, it may be pointed out that monthly building permit records, as compared with the same months of the previous year, have shown a constant downward trend since July, 1928. These monthly losses were as follows: February, 1929, 20 per cent; January, 11 per cent; December, 1928, 11 per cent; November, 14 per cent; October, 1 per cent; September, 10 per cent; and August, 1 per cent.

New York's Big Lead.

An outstanding feature for the month was the large volume of building plans filed in the Borough of Manhattan, New York, amounting to $121,201,915. The total for New York City was $171,393,952. Doubtless some part of this volume might have been due to the pending Multiple Dwellings Bill, although it is to be noted that in February the volume of plans filed in the Metropolis was upward of $106,000,000, while in March last year, the amount was in excess of $107,000,000, which at that time represented more than 25 per cent of volume shown by the rest of the cities which reported to S. W. Straus & Co.

It is a matter worthy of note, also, that of the 25 cities which are leading the country in building activities at this time, 14 showed gains over March, 1928. Increases of impressive proportions were shown in Boston, Washington, Los Angeles, Akron, Providence, Denver, Oklahoma City, New Orleans and Indianapolis.

The heaviest losses were in Chicago, where a falling off of $15,000,000 was recorded, and in Detroit, where the decline was $7,000,000. Other cities where activities seemed to be losing momentum were Newark, Cleveland, San Francisco, Pittsburg and Houston.

Twenty states and the District of Columbia reported gains in permits issued compared with March, last year, while in 27 states losses were recorded. In this connection, it is of interest to note that Florida, where building operations have for some time been at a low ebb, reported an increase over March last year. Other noteworthy gains were shown in New York, California, Massachusetts, Indiana, Colorado, and Oklahoma. State losses of considerable magnitude were revealed in Michigan, Illinois, New Jersey, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas.

Although the volume of building permits issued and plans filed for March indicates the possible advent of greater activities that were enjoyed in the late spring last year, the full force of these gains has not yet been manifested in a larger volume of actual work. The labor demand, however, has shown a marked increase during the last 60 days due in large part, of course, to seasonal conditions. Wages in the building trades are the highest in recent years, with little likelihood of any reduction on account of existing agreements between contractors and labor groups. Organized labor is in a very strongly entrenched position. The wage index in the building industry has advanced from 229 to 233 in the last 12 months.

Building Prices Sustained.

An active demand for building materials during the past month sustained the prices of these materials. A number of lumber items reported increases. It is understood, however, that although the price of structural steel was quoted at 1.95c per pound Pittsburg bill.

WATERMAN AVENUE APARTMENT SOLD

Deal Also Is Completed for Building at Laclede and Euclid.

Negotiations were concluded yesterday for the southeast corner of Laclede and Euclid avenues, improved with stores and apartments, and a recently completed 24-family apartment on the south side of Waterman avenue just east of Skinker, involving a total of $650,000, as reported by E. A. Borkern & Co. and Stanley Epstein, Inc., respectively.

The Laclede and Euclid corner was purchased through E. A. Bokern and Adolph Hoeffer & Co. The first floor of the building comprises 13 stores and the upper floors are apartments. The site has 170 feet on Laclede and 170 feet on Euclid. Annual rentals approximate $25,000. It is the third building of its type recently sold by the Bokern company. The Hoeffer company represented the purchaser.

The Waterman avenue apartment was purchased by George W. Scruggs, treasurer of the St. Louis Car Co., for a reported price of $350,000, through Epstein. This is a multi-family apartment building, occupying a lot 164x224 feet. It is one of two new buildings erected by Sam Hamburg Jr. The other was sold several months ago.

54 VANDEVENTER PLACE SOLD TO CLIENT OF TERRY FIRM

Cornet & Zelbig report the sale of the residence, 54 Vandeventer place, to a client of the Albert T. Terry Realty Co. The property has a frontage of 67 feet on the south line of Vandeventer place, by a depth of 143 feet, containing a three-story brick residence of 14 rooms with four baths. It was sold for George C. Hitchcock, trustee.

SPRING SEASON OPENS AT CARONDELET PARK

Forty Houses Under Construction in Subdivision on Kingshighway S. W.

The spring season at Carondelet Park subdivision comprising a total of 23 acres, fronting 800 feet on Kingshighway Southwest, and 100 feet on the Morganford road, will be opened today. The Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co. is marketing the subdivision. Forty houses are under construction in the addition, and plans for many others are under way. Cottages and bungalows predominate. Restrictions prohibit the erection of other than brick buildings.

Every lot is on grade with solid ground, and all improvements have been constructed, including asphalt streets, concrete alleys, sewers, cement walks, water, gas and electric mains. The site is one block from Carondelet park, and is convenient to street cars, busses and schools.

METROPOLITAN LIFE LEASES NEW OFFICE

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. has leased for a term of years 3500 square feet of space on the second floor of the Commercial Building, Sixth and Olive streets, for its city account office.

This office, due to the great increase in this branch of the Metropolitan business, will require about two and one-half times the amount of space occupied by the present office in the Tower Building. Alterations to the space in the Commercial Building now are under way and are expected to be completed about May 15.

Negotiations for this lease were conducted by Clifford Abeles, president of the Commercial Building Co., for the lessor, and by Louis Levin of the St. Louis office and John VanHorn of New York of the Metropolitan Life.

nounced. As now contemplated, the proposed merger, all the details of which have been perfected, will be consummated May 18, when the buildings will be offered for sale. Office space in these buildings has always been at a premium.

There have been many proposals for the National Bank of Commerce and Federal Commerce buildings. These buildings which rank with the finest of their type in the city, notably are exciting the attention of large life insurance companies, both as investments and as quarters for their general offices. The Northwestern Life Insurance Co., now occupies several floors in the Bank of Commerce Building. The ground floor and basement of these buildings, equipped with safe deposit vaults, are attracting the attention of brokerage concerns. The Federal Reserve Bank formerly had its quarters in the building at Broadway and Pine, the ground floor of which is now occupied by the Federal Commerce Trust Co.

An Agreed Valuation.

The Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co., the name under which the Mercantile Trust and the National Bank of Commerce will function, with the completion of the proposed merger, has agreed to take over the building and site of the Bank of Commerce and Federal Commerce Trust Co. at a valuation of $2,750,000. According to real estate men, the buildings exclusive of the site, could not be reproduced at prevailing costs of construction for near that amount. The Bank of Commerce has agreed to deposit $500,000 in cash or its equivalent to protect the new Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Co in event of loss from the sale of the buildings.

Alterations and additional stories to the Mercantile Trust building at Eighth and Locust streets, to provide for the merged banks, will have been completed by the latter part of May. The corridor and balcony will be left intact. Neither will there be any change in the exterior of the building. The additional stories are to be constructed on the east side of the building.

Mercantile Site Benefited.

This section will receive new importance with the advent of the new big bank and trust company. Occupying the entire west half of this block from Locust street to St. Charles street, the Mercantile Trust site has a high potential value. Foundations of the present Mercantile Trust building provide for 10 or 15 additional stories, which is held as a valuable asset. The site is opposite the Federal Building block, which is embraced in plans for a huge department store, which it is believed soon will take definite form now that the site for the new Federal Building has been selected.

REMMERT CO. STARTS SIX NEW APARTMENTS

Excavation work has been begun by the William Remmert Construction Co. of Clayton for six new apartment buildings on Shirley drive and Hanley road. The company erected six apartment buildings on Shirley drive last year, all of which have been leased.

The new apartments will have four and five rooms, and will be equipped with tile baths, electric refrigeration, gas stoves, gas dryers, laundry trays, garage, screens, shades, curtain poles, electric lighting fixtures, awnings and incinerators. All the rooms in these apartments will be large and artistically decorated with Textone. Each apartment will have ample closet space.

Lawns will be landscaped. The buildings are Colonial in design and the exteriors residential in effect. The buildings, when completed, will represent an expenditure of about $300,000. This, with the work already completed, will make a total expenditure of $600,000. This property is immediately north of Country Club Court, a beautiful residence district improved by this company.

250 AT DINNER DANCE OF DARST REALTY CO.

About 250 persons attended the dinner dance given by the Joseph Darst Realty Co. at the American Annex Hotel Friday evening. Speakers were Joseph C. Darst, Joseph M. Darst, Edward C. Lough, director of sales for the realty company; Alderman Harry Wellington of University City, and Prosecuting Attorney Harry Castlen of St. Louis County. J. Miles Beach was toastmaster.

A bouquet was presented to Joseph C. Darst, president of the company, in honor of his thirty-ninth anniversary in the real estate business in St. Louis. Musical numbers and feats of magic by Will Lindhorst were entertainment features. The company announced the opening of its spring selling campaign, with cash prizes.

The speakers made optimistic utterances as to the outlook in the suburban realty field, especially at Darstdale, on Olive Street road, which the company is marketing.

SAVING the OLD FARM from the SHERIFF— NEW STYLE

Ralph Cox Re-enacts the Old Melodramatic Climax in Real Life When He Arrives —Via Airplane—in the Nick of Time.

Ralph Cox.

Dr. Henry A. Cox.

A plane! A plane! It circles over the father's house. A hand waves from the noisy monster of the clouds.

By JULIUS KLYMAN

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

KINGSTON, Missouri.

THE skies are drear and overcast. The relentless rain, dear reader, beats torrentially upon the courthouse of Caldwell County. Ah, woe, and woe again. The tearful elements play well their part, for tearful happenings are in the offing. And the Sheriff's hand itches to grab the mortgage hammer, whose bitter beat will drown out the cries of a loving father whose heart has loved too well a seemingly wayward son, a father whose small farm, which he holds so dear, must soon go to the highest bidder to pay for that errant son's debt. Such are the ways of this sad world. But stop! What is this? Yes, yes! Aid is nigh! And the old farm, the little farm, the farm of the father's heart, is saved.

This is not a reprint from the melodramatic stage of 50 years ago. It all happened. Really.

Now go on with the story.

Deep in the heart of Caldwell County—we may seem to be running to hearts today, but this is that kind of a tale—is the hamlet of Mirabile. It is on a hill eight miles west of Kingston, which is 12 miles south of Hamilton, which is some 40 miles east of St. Joseph.

Mirabile is, the folk thereabout say, an "inland town"; it is not on the gushing stream of a concrete thoroughfare, it boasts no railroad. Mirabile sits on its knob, quiet and unperturbed, visited occasionally by a farmer who wishes to buy his groceries at the hamlet's store or do some small business at Mirabile's bank.

THERE are other travelers, too, from the country roundabout; they come to see Dr. Henry A. Cox, the general practitioner of the vicinity, who, unable to play the swagger part of the city specialist, does everything from removing foreign bodies from the eye to performing tonsil operations, who waits on influenza sufferers and brings future Mirabile citizens into the world, and, by turn, walks across the dirt road and works his five-acre farm for all that is in it.

Dr. Cox lives in "the square-topped house just beyond the store." In this place Dr. Cox has lived for years, running from his potato digging on the farm into his small office at a patient's bidding, taking off his overalls and getting into the white coat of his profession. Country doctoring is not a remunerative business, and neither is his five-acre farm. Between the two of them, though, a conscientious man can eke out a livelihood—if he lives in Mirabile.

But there are six in the doctor's family; the physician, his wife, three boys and a girl. That's quite a few people to take care of if your circumstances are meager and you want to give all the young ones a good education. Dr. Cox always wanted to do that.

So when his oldest son, Ralph, who is now 27, came to him a few years ago and said he'd like to take a course at the Chillicothe Business College, not far away, Ralph's father thought it a worthy idea, and sent him to the institution.

They say that Ralph got along nicely. He learned to typewrite, he learned the secrets of shorthand, he knew when to say "Very truly yours" and when to say "Sincerely," and so equipped he started out to work.

But it wasn't long before he decided he wanted to become a telegrapher, and he went to his father and told him about it. Well, an eldest son is an eldest son, and telegraphy looked like a good business. But Ralph didn't have any money and his father wasn't very flush himself. What to do?

Just one thing, for the Chillicothe Business College, which is considerable of an institution, was the place where Ralph yearned to study the mysterious tickings and tackings of the telegraph key, and the Chillicothe Business College has a system whereby any young man or woman can come by their academic desires at a down payment of just about nothing. All the prospective student need do is sign a promissory note—he must also have a co-signer, preferably his father—and presto! board and room and tuition are his on the promise to pay for all two years after date.

The Coxes decided to sign a promissory note. They did and Ralph put his ear to the telegraph key and learned that so many dots and dashes mean such-and-such and so-and-so.

Ralph did very neatly again, so his father told me. He got through his work, became a telegraph operator and (it is his father's opinion) has "as good an education as any young man in the country."

Dr. Cox gloried in his son's finding his chosen work; he probably hummed a tune as he raked his hay and, with pardonable pride, felt he had done just about all he could for his boy. There was plenty of hard work for the country doctor, but the skies were azure just the same.

Dr. Cox forgot all about the note. Why shouldn't he? The boy had work; he was a good boy; he would pay the money when the money came due.

And the money came due in December, 1927. But it wasn't paid. The Chillicothe Business College waited, but no check appeared from its twice alumnus, Ralph Cox. And the days turned into weeks and the weeks into months, as they have a habit of doing, and still no check bearing the Ralph Cox signature came to grace the coffers of Chillicothe's prime educational institution.

MR. ALLEN MOORE, the business college head, is a jovial chap; he doesn't appear to be an ogre on wheels. But it costs money to do business, as any head of a business college ought to know, and Mr. Moore knows it. So after waiting a considerable time, he said: "Take a dictation." And he charged his attorney at Kingston to see what he could do about collecting that $199.73 from Ralph Cox.

The attorney got busy and he discovered that Ralph Cox no longer lived at his paternal home. Like a good attorney, he found the errant fellow's whereabouts—he was doing office work at St. Joseph. The barrister wrote a legal sort of letter, asking Mr. Cox to duly remit, and he sat himself down and waited for a monetary reply. The lawyer was disappointed.

But the attorney would not down. He wrote and he wrote. Then word came that Ralph Cox had gone to Kansas City, so the barrister transferred his correspondence to Kansas City. His results were quite a good as when Mr. Cox resided at St. Joseph.

Finally the barrister, O. J. Adams, gathered up the promissory note and went to Kansas City. Woe and more disappointment. Mr. Cox had moved to Tulsa, in Oklahoma, and Adams gave up the physical pursuit. After all, even a lawyer has his moments of dejection.

And still Dr. Cox, engaged in pronouncing measles and whooping cough upon small constituents, was unaware that Ralph's debt was unpaid. Had you asked him about it he would have told you that certainly the boy had made good his promise to pay by this time.

Well, by this time, Lawyer Adams was about through with arbitration. He corresponded with Client Moore in Chillicothe and Moore told him to invoke the hand of the law. Lawyer Adams then went into court and on February 13 of this year received a judgment from the Circuit Court against Ralph W. Cox and his cosigner, Dr. Henry Cox.

Now it was up to the Sheriff, and the Sheriff started in to do his stuff. Ralph Cox didn't have anything, as far as the Sheriff knew; in fact, the officer didn't know where Ralph Cox was. And so, by process of elimination, Dr. Cox was left to pay off the debt. But the physician, despite the fact that he had "just about lived in his automobile" during the recent influenza epidemic, had no money to meet the judgment, which now, due to attorney's fees and court costs and all those other little ramifications of the law, had jumped up to the neighborhood of some $275. And the Sheriff proceeded in the hard but correct manner of Sheriffs charged with doing their duty.

Dr. Cox owned a farm. Well, the county records showed that Dr. Cox had paid $700 for that five-acre farm 14 years before. What with its improvements it would be worth more than that now. The farm must be sold, said the Sheriff, and in March appeared, in the Caldwell County News, published at Kingston, the official, legal, formal notice of the sale.

"THE first thing I knew about it," Dr. Cox told me, "was one morning as I was coming back from milking my cow and I met our banker on the way to milk his. 'I hear,' he said, 'they're going to sell your farm.' 'Haven't heard a word about it,' I told him."

As Dr. Cox told me his story I looked on a wood "motto" hanging on his office room wall:

What is worse than owing money you can't pay?
Being owed money you can't collect.

Under which the physician has written in chalk, "We must have cash."

The farm was for sale! It would be taken from under the father's feet unless cash, $275 worth of it, was forthcoming, and that in a hurry. What of Ralph, the errant one, the boy who had not paid his honest debt? Must this poor, white-haired father pay? Verily, it looked that way.

Action! Action was the order! Ralph no longer was at Tulsa. Ralph was at Topeka, Kansas, and he was office manager for the Roy Morris School of Aviation. And Ralph was learning, also, to fly.

Dr. Cox sits himself down. He writes a note to Ralph telling of his sorry plight. There is little, oh, so little, time to lose.

And Ralph replies to his father's plea. He will be there, he writes, be there with the money—the old farm shall not be sold by a Sheriff.

The day before the sale is now at hand. That morning comes a telephone call. Ralph is on the wire. He leaves Topeka that day. Night comes. Another call. Ralph is delayed; he will be there tomorrow before the 9 o'clock opening of the Sheriff's sale.

THE fatal day dawns. What a day! The wind howls, the skies teem with the fury of vindictive torrents. Eight-thirty and no Ralph. No sign of Ralph. In 30 minutes the sale may begin. The father calls the Sheriff at Kingston. The Sheriff can do nothing; he must sell before 5 in the evening; so does the law direct. Ah, woe, woe.

Already at the courthouse are clustered a little group; they await the auction like vultures hovering o'er their prey. Several there are who want that property; soon one of them will have it for his own.

And Dr. Cox can only sit and brood in his unhappiness. But what is this? What rends the air with its diabolical roaring? The father rushes to the window. Heading toward his humble dwelling there appears from out the reeking skies a great, gray form. Straight for his home it comes. A plane! A plane! It whirls over the father's house. It circles shrilly above it, circles twice. A hand waves from this noisy monster of the clouds. Now it is gone, blustering, toward Kingston.

Kingston, it flies upon Kingston, arrives there, lets its presence be known by its strident tones. Down, down it goes. It makes for a field; it lands; before it can be stopped a figure in helmet and goggles, in puttees and leather coat, jumps to the ground as his companion pilots the dripping ship to safety and silence.

But the man who leaped from the plane does not stop. He runs, runs, hurries over the intervening distance toward the courthouse grounds. Straight to Lawyer Adams he rushes; from his pocket he pulls forth a roll of bills. "Here," he cries. "Here is your money. I—I am Ralph Cox."

And so he was, dear reader, and so was the old farm saved by cold cash, partly Ralph Cox's, partly borrowed from the aviation school's head.

And if I am any judge of roads, I wish to say that Ralph Cox, in continuing by air from Mirabile to Kingston, chose very wisely.

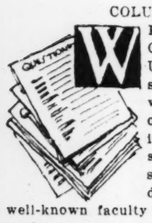
COLUMBIA, Missouri.



WHEN the Board of Curators of the University of Missouri had finished with the business of "purifying" the institution as a result of the recent sex questionnaire disturbance, two well-known faculty members and one student-assistant instructor had been dropped from the rolls. Their offense was that they had permitted the circulation of the questionnaire among 1000 students as a bit of research in an advanced sociology course, the document asking students to state anonymously their views concerning premarital and extra-marital intimacy between the sexes.

The ouster decree, at first unqualified, was later amended to effect the appearance of compromise by limiting the banishment of one professor to a year. This, it appeared, was a gesture intended to mollify a bitter resentment on the part of the alumni, the faculty and student body while at the same time appeasing the State Legislature's demand for heads. But it was a technical concession which in reality conceded nothing because it brought about a condition which would make reinstatement virtually impossible.

Two of the men were young and had been members of the faculty but a short time. They were unmarried and, however popular, had not become so settled in their jobs and environment that dismissal meant great personal hardship.

In the case of the third man, circumstances were different. Even if his sentence of banishment did carry a reinstatement clause, Missouri awoke slowly to the realization that for a slight academic misstep it had not only cast out its most famous scientist, but had ruthlessly disrupted the course of a useful life. It had drummed out an elderly, scholarly gentleman who had devoted 29 years to the education of Missouri's youth and who, in so doing, had built up at the university an intellectual sanctuary that to him was life itself. That man was Dr. Max Friedrich Meyer, professor of experimental psychology.

One of the oldest members of the faculty in point of service, Dr. Meyer was as much a part of Missouri atmosphere and tradition as the ivy-covered columns. He was a campus character. When, year after year, a man can appeal to the sense of humor of a student body and at the same time hold that student body's unbounded respect it may be generally assumed without further examination that he has the essence of greatness. Such a man was Max Meyer—and that is what the students called him until it drove him to cry in desperation: "Call me Max or call me Meyer, but, for heaven's sake, don't call me Maxmeyer."

New students arriving in Columbia each autumn with eyes open for physical evidence of higher education soon singled out a tall, lonely figure that walked with a jerky gait and came from the region, unexplored by freshmen, out west of Stewart Bridge.

"Who is that man?" the innocent would inquire, with awe in his voice.

"That man," the erudite upperclassman would reply with the confidence born of long familiarity with the subject, "is Max Meyer, the greatest psychologist in the world."

And the upper classman, parading his vast knowledge, didn't know how near the truth he had really come.

PROBABLY only a very young student would undertake to say definitely who is the greatest psychologist in the world, but it is safe for anybody to say that among the great names of psychology the name of Max F. Meyer would appear within the first ten.

Meyer's practice of drawing into his shell and allowing the soundness of his theories to speak for itself operated against widespread popular acclaim. He was never the man to play for popular favor. He avoided publicity, worked alone and promoted no intellectual fads. A few years ago Dr. John B. Watson, formerly of Johns Hopkins University, published a book in which he enunciated behaviorism. His theories eventually became an academic vogue. He is now generally known as the father of the behaviorist school of psychology. What is not generally known is that high on the attic floors of Jesse Hall—Academic Hall it was then—Max F. Meyer was teaching the principles of behaviorism for years before Watson's book appeared.

A stickler for exactness of expression, however, Meyer challenges the term, behaviorism. He says it is inexact and implies a fad. He calls himself an objective psychologist. He keeps hands off metaphysics, steadfastly refusing to traffic with such terms as "mind" and "soul."

"Where are they?" he asks. "Can you see them? A scientist's work must be confined to the things he can prove exist."

BORN at Danzig, Germany, in 1873, Meyer gained his education, or, rather, his "schooling," as he terms it, in the University of Berlin. There he attained his Ph. D. degree at the age of 23. For two years after that he devoted himself to research and then came to the United States. The circumstances under which he came seem particularly significant now, in view of the recent action suspending him from the University of Missouri.

In Berlin, Meyer was a pupil and research associate of Dr. Karl Stumpf, famous psychologist, and then regarded as the world's foremost authority on audition. After considerable work in audition the young student arrived at the conclusion that many of Stumpf's interpretations of the mechanics of the inner ear did not fit the facts. He propounded theories of his own and asked for permission to publish them. This, Dr. Stumpf would not permit. Meyer thereupon proceeded to publish them anyway. It was a characteristic destined to get him in hot water more than once. He was the sort of man who is most embarrassing to politicians and organizers. He was what they call bull-headed. He wouldn't fall into line and string along with the group against his own belief. The upshot of the Stumpf controversy was that it became impossible for Meyer to remain under the wing of his erstwhile master. Accordingly, he set out for America in quest of academic freedom. Not long ago a group of scientists working in audition found, after much experimentation and checking, that Dr. Stumpf's theories were incorrect. They hastened to publish what they believed to be original findings, only to discover that Meyer had published the same findings 30 years ago.

In the year 1900 the University of Missouri enjoyed the administration of a distinguished Board of Curators and a president whose ideas were on a high human and intellectual level. Many men afterwards to become celebrated authorities in their respective fields joined the university faculty under that regime, and among them was a young German scholar who came to teach the new science of psychology.

Dr. Walter Williams, now dean of the School of Journalism, but then editor of the Columbia Herald, was chairman of that Board of Curators and was most responsible for bringing Meyer to the university. With a genius for spotting good men, he quickly fastened upon the youthful Ph. D. when, after following several trails from Harvard, he found Meyer engaged in research in a small college. In later years, he often mentioned Meyer as his discovery and remarked that he never had reason to be ashamed of it.

Meyer soon justified the confidence placed in him. He was not content with teaching alone. He was, first of all, a creative scientist, with a passion for research. In his own psychology courses he was himself the most assiduous student. To students who came under him he was science in the flesh, more an intellectual ideal than a teacher.

AFTER a while the university allotted him several rooms on the fourth floor of Academic Hall to give him more space for laboratories. He made prompt use of them. There he designed and built the maze of intricate electrical equipment now to be found. There he wrote his books and built up what became virtually a Meyer school of psychology. He followed no trail blazers whose views disagreed with his. For most of his courses he wrote his own textbooks. Appearing at almost regular intervals and each representing a vast amount of research, these works tell the story of the wiry scholar's capacity for labor.

Among the first was "A Brief Manual for Psychological Demonstrations." Then there appeared "Elementary Laboratory Psychology." He was translator and editor of Ebbinghaus' "Psychology," and later, collaborating with R. M. Ogden, translator of Adolf Hildebrand's "Problems of Form in Painting and Sculpture." His most important works, however, were "Psychology of the Other One," "Abnormal Psychology; When the Other One Astonishes Us," "Fundamental Laws of Human Behavior," "Contributions to the Psychological Theory of Music" and "Introduction to the Mechanics of the Inner Ear." Several of these have been used as texts in the six courses he conducted and as texts or reference works in other universities. In the hands of the printers is still another work, "The Musician's Arithmetic; Drill Problems for an Introduction to the Scientific Study of Musical Composition." This is to appear at an early date.

Keeping psychology an elective course at Missouri, Meyer was able to confine his attention mostly to students who were interested in his subject. His courses never were popular at the university, because they were difficult, and Meyer himself was eccentric. He was blunt and ruthlessly sarcastic. Some said he would devote whole class sessions to tangling them up. Wild stories went around about weird experiments he performed, stories of the sort that go around every university campus. All freshmen, sooner or later, heard how "Maxmeyer" experimented on his own children, forcing them to go barefoot in the snow in order to note their reactions. The more timid students usually dropped out after the first course, but those hardy ones who came back for more came to know Dr. Meyer as the most kindly of men beneath his blunt exterior. To them psychology courses were a delight, because he made them so interesting and so amusing. He had a sly sense of humor and enjoyed himself never so much as when clowning.

UP AND down before the class he would pace with hands behind him, lost in deep thought. Then, suddenly, he would pause and fire at a startled student some apparently irrelevant and foolish question. Whether the student gave a canny answer or not, Meyer usually succeeded in tangling him up and provoking a laugh at his expense. But when the comedy was over everybody had something to think about and mayhap had learned a thing or two about psychology.

Dr. Meyer's eccentricities were not confined to the classroom. He was known as a man who had no normal vices or diversions. He never played bridge or golf or took part in any social activity. Though known to everybody, he had few, if any, intimate friends. He lived at home and in his laboratory, and was seldom seen on the street except between the two points. Neighbors called him a good husband and father and a good citizen. He had but one "dissipation." That was music. He never missed a concert and always came alone and sat well up in front. He had but one romance in his life.

In his first year at Missouri he married Miss Stella Sexton of Kansas City, a freshman member of one of his psychology classes. There was a campus joke about it for some time. Students used to say that Miss Sexton was the first freshman ever to get a Ph. D.

Though her course was interrupted and delayed by the duties of wifehood and motherhood, Mrs. Meyer kept after a college education until she had gained her degree. When,

AFTER masquerading as a man for six years in a prodigious tour of deception, which included even marrying a "wife" and posing as the father of her own small son, Mrs. Lillian Irma Valerie Smith, 32 years old, has stepped suddenly out of her masculine role in a denouement that has startled all of England.

Known in London and its environs as Captain Victor Barker, D. S. O., horseman, soldier, hero seven times decorated, and head of a family, she was unmasked a few weeks ago when bankruptcy proceedings resulted in her arrest and her appearance in court. The tallest and one of the most sturdily built of all the people in the courtroom, she maintained the dashing, warrior-like impersonation throughout the action; then she wilted when confronted with the necessity for a routine physical examination in the jail. Precipitately, she delivered herself of the astounding confession that she was a woman and the mother of two children, and then she fainted when compelled to face her own "wife" for identification.

The bankruptcy action appears to have been temporarily forgotten in the excitement, but Mrs. Smith is still being held on a perjury charge until the prosecuting authorities can figure out what other charges may be brought against her.

THE perjury charge against her was easy to get hold of, the specific complaint being that she swore in court her name was Leslie Ivor Victor Gauntlett Bligh Barker; that she was a retired Colonel in the British Army and had been an officer of a cavalry regiment during the World War. Meanwhile, Alfreda Emma Haward, her "lawfully wedded wife," is wondering what her matrimonial status really is.

And "Captain Victor Barker" Turned Out to Be a Woman

A Strange Masquerade That Was Revealed When the Principal Was Arrested for Perjury.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON.

AFTER masquerading as a man for six years in a prodigious tour of deception, which included even marrying a "wife" and posing as the father of her own small son, Mrs. Lillian Irma Valerie Smith, 32 years old, has stepped suddenly out of her masculine role in a denouement that has startled all of England.

Known in London and its environs as Captain Victor Barker, D. S. O., horseman, soldier, hero seven times decorated, and head of a family, she was unmasked a few weeks ago when bankruptcy proceedings resulted in her arrest and her appearance in court. The tallest and one of the most sturdily built of all the people in the courtroom, she maintained the dashing, warrior-like impersonation throughout the action; then she wilted when confronted with the necessity for a routine physical examination at the jail. Precipitately, she delivered herself of the astounding confession that she was a woman and the mother of two children, and then she fainted when compelled to face her own "wife" for identification.

The bankruptcy action appears to have been temporarily forgotten in the excitement, but Mrs. Smith is still being held on a perjury charge until the prosecuting authorities can figure out what other charges may be brought against her.

THE perjury charge against her was easy to get hold of, the specific complaint being that she swore in court her name was Leslie Ivor Victor Gauntlett Bligh Barker; that she was a retired Colonel in the British Army and had been an officer of a cavalry regiment during the World War. Meanwhile, Alfreda Emma Haward, her "lawfully wedded wife," is wondering what her matrimonial status really is.

Having had several weeks now in which to think the matter over, "Captain Barker" gives a terse explanation of why she affected her extraordinary pretense.

"I have lived an honorable and straightforward life," she asserts, "and have nothing to hide, but there was no place for me as a woman. The only way to keep myself and my boy was to become a man."

Why she deemed it necessary to marry a "wife" in order to become a man, she does not explain, but that episode seems to have been only one of several bits of virtuosity in her career. According to records now being unearthed, she exhibited a tendency to masculinity at an early age. And, indeed, after her marriage to Alfreda Haward, elaborated upon her husband role by being a "cheating" husband and conducting affairs with other women. Once "Captain Barker" went so far as to establish an apartment for the "other woman" and write his wife that he could love her no longer. That was in January, 1927. "Mrs. Barker," at that time, was in a London hospital recovering from an operation for appendicitis. Whether this letter was merely a final touch of art or a means of getting out of a perilous situation is not clear. Anyway, the cast-off "wife" returned to her parents, much broken up.

"I never for one moment imagined that my husband was anything but the person he always appeared to be," says Alfreda Haward. "More than once we went swimming together. When we were living near Oxford he often went bathing in the river—of course, in a man's ordinary bathing suit—and I also went with him to the public swimming baths when we were in Edinburgh. Nobody raised any question at this time. He had a number of scars on his back and neck. These, he said, had been caused by shrapnel. He was a man of very nervous temperament and highly strung. I often asked him what was worrying him and he would say: 'Oh, nothing at all. Only depression.'"

"Captain Barker," who is really Mrs. Lillian Smith, in boxing costume.

Alfreda Haward, the "wife" of "Captain Barker."

"Captain Barker" in dress clothes.

AS A GIRL, "Captain Barker" was Miss Lillian Irma Valerie Barker. Her father was Thomas William Barker, a substantial gentleman of Milford, Surrey. Since the unmasking of the self-styled war hero as a woman, many persons are now recalling that they always noticed something peculiar and had their own suspicions. They are going back into her early life and disclosing characteristics commonly calculated to lead to some mischief. In Milford she is remembered as a thorough tomboy, and at the convent school in Enghien, near Brussels, where she was sent as a girl, she shocked the nuns by smoking and dressing up as a boy.

When she returned to her parents in 1915, a young woman of 19, she became a scout mistress and startled the village folk with the first short haircut they had ever seen on a feminine head.

The war broke out and Miss Barker joined a woman's aid organization, which proved somewhat too tame for her. Late in 1915 she appeared in Bristol in khaki breeches, tunic and cap as second in command of a remount depot. She was shifted to the Women's Royal Auxiliary Air Force in France and served until near the end of the war.

Her military career was halted by one of three romances she acknowledged as a woman. Soon after reaching France she had fallen in love with an infantry Major—but he was captured by the Germans early in the war.

HER second attachment, Harold Arkell Smith, a Second Lieutenant in the Australian forces, she married, April 27, 1918, in Milford. The couple went to London to live, but the marriage lasted only six weeks. Mrs. Smith went back to her parents; Lieutenant Smith, at the end of the war, returned to Australia. He is a successful business man in Sidney at this time.

An Australian soldier was a partner of the third romance, also. They lived together in Enghien-les-Bains, near Paris, in 1919 and until 1922, when Mrs. Smith, with two children born during these three years, moved to a hotel in Littlehampton, where she was known as Mrs. Pearce Crouch.

In May they moved to a farm and Mrs. "Crouch" drove a horse and trap to Littlehampton to sell her butter and eggs.

It was here that she made her first essays at the part which she assumed completely a few months later. In Littlehampton she attracted attention by wearing clothes which made it difficult to tell whether she was a man or a woman—men's breeches, a long white coat, collar and tie. She had a mannish stride, smoked cigarettes and cigars and seemed pleased when her sex was mistaken.

Her hair was cut short. She walked into public houses and called for drinks around. Local people dropped her acquaintance, and when she attended a ball in a Littlehampton hotel, dressed as a man, and introduced herself as "Sir Victor Barker" the manager spoke to her about her behavior.

In October, 1923, complete estrange-

WHEN the baton of Conductor Arbos sweeps the air and the bows of the violinists describe their first downward stroke next fall there will be ushered in the fiftieth season of the St. Louis Symphony Society. The second oldest in the country in point of continuous existence, the orchestra's history goes back to quiet excursions into the realm of Handel and Beethoven in Mercantile Library Hall.

The season just concluded, one of the most successful in the organization's history, closed with a flourish. In fact, with such a flourish that those early audiences back in the '80s and '90s would have fallen off their seats, or, perhaps, have walked out in indignation.

The concluding number on the final program was Respighi's "Feste Romane," the composer's latest and also stormiest work, calling for all the bells, cymbals, drums and other percussion instruments that can be mustered. Under Eugene Goossens, the brilliant young Englishman, who was guest conductor during the last four weeks of the season, the orchestra achieved a volume of sound that fairly rocked the Odeon.

For the playing of this work, by the courtesy of Arturo Toscanini, who had the only score, the orchestra was augmented by 20 instruments, bringing the total to 97. This is the largest it has ever been. And it affords a striking contrast to the first little band that played under the leadership of Joseph Otten, Catholic organist and choral conductor.

Otten founded the organization which, after 26 years of slow but continuous growth, became the St. Louis Symphony Society. According to Ernst C. Krohn, who has written a history of the orchestra, the St. Louis Choral Society, which was destined to become the Symphony Society, was formally organized on September 1, 1880.

But preceding this by 20 years was the St. Louis Philharmonic Society, founded in 1860, and before that there had been various intermittent organizations. Edouard de Sobolewski, director of a Milwaukee orchestra, was engaged as conductor at a salary of $1000 a year, a sum which would now be considered modest for a single concert by a distinguished conductor. Regular series of concerts were given right through the Civil War and after, the last concert being on April 21, 1870. After six seasons Sobolewski resigned and was succeeded by August Waldauer.

It was this same August Waldauer,

HARTFORD, Connecticut.

WHEN prisoners have been locked in their cells for the night and quiet has settled over the jail, a strange, subdued cry sometimes is heard to echo through the dingy corridors of the woman's section. Jail birds sit up on their cots to listen, with mingled awe and curiosity, to the weird and unfamiliar chant. It is an invocation to Buddha, and the supplicant is a woman. She is lifting her voice in prayer to Gautama Siddhartha, most ancient of the Buddhist gods, that he may not desert her "in this hour of woe and darkness."

Mrs. Olive Storey Adams is the prayerful one who looks to the mystic gods of the Orient for solace and protection. She is sorely harassed, for this 31-year-old New England housewife stands charged with the murder of her husband. On the night of March 16, after a weird ceremonial dance in which he took part with her, she ended his life with chloroform while he lay asleep. She has stated that much in a signed confession. The other details of the murder and the factors leading up to it still lie tangled in such an intricate skein of romance, tragedy, mysticism and religion that the police have been unable to bring them clearly to light.

THE chances are that Henry Emerson Adams, meteorologist of the North Atlantic division of the United States Weather Bureau, would have been consigned to his grave without fuss and official inquiry had not the youthful widow, in a spirit of frenzied remorse, cried out her guilt. The "breaks" had been in her favor. Adams himself had saturated the fatal handkerchief with chloroform, as was his custom, to put himself to sleep. It remained for her only to keep it saturated until he was dead. Physicians readily attributed his death to accident. She had only to stick to her story. But when the police became inquisitive, she got frightened and confessed.

In the confession, which the police say she signed, she accused her husband of cruelty and infidelity. Her life, she declared, had been a torture. He had treated her first with indifference, then with contempt and finally with such cruelty as that of scarring her body with acid. It was his Oriental "philosophy," she charged, that caused him to ignore his marriage and consort with numerous other women who took his fancy. She told of years of near starvation, of frequent brutal beatings, of her husband's strange hypnotic power over her and his enslavement of her according to the rites of his strange mystic cult.

She related how other women had been brought into their home and how she had been forced to stand by and see her home converted into a seraglio. And she falteringly admitted how she herself, dominated by her husband's hypnotic power, had forsaken the religious teachings of her childhood and embraced weird and strange gods.

From her cell Mrs. Adams poured out the story of her domestic woes. At the bottom of all her troubles were the "other women," six by actual count and all known to the police of Hartford.

FINALLY, she declared, she could not endure her jealousy any longer. But on the night of the murder she danced with her husband and appeared to be gay. They danced in the nude and enlivened the evening with drinks. She thought it all out as they tripped and glided about the floor. With a pang, she recalled their school days and their childhood romance, for they were classmates and were married on the day after their graduation from the high school of Stoneham, Massachusetts, in 1917. Then followed other memories of orgies which had blighted her life. She remained firm in her purpose.

Flushed from five highballs, Adams finally brought the dance to an end. In his pajamas, the Government meteorologist went to the pantry, where, in the refrigerator, he kept a supply of chloroform to overcome insomnia, and which he called "the nectar of the gods."

He moistened a handkerchief with a few drops of the anesthetic and went to bed. Holding the handkerchief to his nose, he fell asleep. While he slept, Mrs. Adams added several more drops of chloroform.

"I had to do it," she declares. "I was at the end of my rope."

The deed accomplished, she lay down beside him and waited. His breathing grew lighter and less frequent, but when, after a while, he continued to breathe, she saturated the handkerchief a second time. Again she lay down. The breathing stopped. When she touched his body again it was cold.

With the coming of morning she called a physician and the doctor called the medical examiner. She told them of her husband's practice of fighting insomnia with chloroform and they were satisfied. The examiner entered the case upon his records as "accidental death."

All was well so far, but then there came a policeman to investigate the case—merely as a formality, he said. Detective Sergeant McSweegan, like the doctors, heard the story of the overdose of chloroform, but he did not react in the same way. He knew something of men and women. He recalled that once Mrs. Adams had made a formal complaint about her husband "running around with other women and trying to make a harem of 16 Grand street."

"Suppose you step over to Police Headquarters, Mrs. Adams," gently suggested the detective, "so we can get this thing straight."

Readily, she fell in line with the suggestion.

The questioning had not been long under way when Mrs. Adams broke out in protest against some of the queries.

"What's the row now, Mrs. Adams?" asked the imperturbable McSweegan.

"All right, I'll tell it all," she said as she plunged into one of the weirdest narratives in the criminal annals of New England.

"For twelve years," she related, "I have been my husband's slave, not his wife. He became so self-centered and egotistical through his studies of Buddhism that he did not look upon me as his equal.

"And this was strange, for if he had subscribed whole-heartedly to the tenets of the Buddhist religion, he would have become the type of husband with which no wife could find fault.

"Following the 'Middle Way,' by which alone good Buddhists can progress through successive lives to the pure ecstasy of Nirvana, the highest heaven, Adams should have avoided all physical desires, all selfish longings, all vain theorizings, and all ignorant prejudices.

"But where the flesh was concerned, he appeared to forget the teachings of Buddha. Not one woman, but six, shared his affections. Each new case of his friendship was more revolting than the last. His conduct at Cleveland, where he was the meteorologist for the United States Weather Bureau for several years, was bad, but nothing compared to his actions since his return to New England.

"Our home was a harem, but I was not one of the favorites. He used to bring women into our home, upon whom I would have to wait and serve, as if I were a menial. He had me enslaved. He had mastered me so that I was unable to resist his commands. I was like a puppet under the spell of his hypnotic eyes.

"Last September I left him and took my child, Ananda, my little boy, who is named after a Buddhist god, and went home to my home in Stoneham, a residential suburb of Boston. Something snapped in me. I said I was through with him. For a short time, I emerged from slavery. His mysticism, his ritual, his incense-burning had lost its power over me.

"I was beginning to turn my eyes to the gods of my old Puritanical fathers, the gods of a religious New England, when Henry came to Stoneham and ordered me to return to our home in Hartford. I refused. He promised to mend his ways and I returned for the sake of our boy. That was fate."

It was at this juncture that Mrs. Adams paused to tell the story of her husband's conversion to Buddhism, which she said was brought about through a Chinese laundry owner of Boston. This Chinese had great influence over her husband, and for a time directed all his affairs, said the accused woman.

"BUT, getting back to Henry's asking me to return to Hartford. Well, I came back. It was an ill day for him when he sought my return. That was what brought on this tragedy. And it brought out the great lesson of this whole affair—that the wages of sin is death.

"I see now, too, that virtue is its own reward. He came after me, he forced me back. But what was the use? He started all over again.

"Now that it is over, I can face the future calmly. The only thing I want is my boy. I want to see him, to hold him and tell him to beware of worshiping at the shrine of strange gods. With Ananda in my arms, I am not afraid of what fate has in store for me."

The son of the Adamses, who is in the sixth grade of the Hartford grammar schools, read of his mother's arrest on the bulletin board of a newspaper as he was returning from school.

"Where's my mother? Take me to her," he demanded of his maternal grandfather, George W. Storey. "I saw something about her on the paper boards. The other kids were 'razzing' me. I came home quick."

When his grandfather gently broke the news of the tragedy to him he said: "My mother didn't kill my father. I want to see her. Please take me to her."

When the police visited the Adams home, at the outset of the investigation, they found near the head of the bed a large shrine with a huge statue of Buddha. Incense was still burning before the brass image. On the walls of the room were shelves filled with books on strange Oriental philosophy. On each side of the figure of Buddha candles were burning with a flickering flame.

Henry Emerson Adams always wore a silver chain and silver Buddha around his neck. For several weeks prior to his death he had under consideration the abandonment of his work with the Weather Bureau in order to take up evangelistic work in the cause of Buddhism in Detroit, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis and Cleveland.

ACCORDING to friends in Boston, Adams proposed to make Cleveland the shrine of Buddhism in the United States, a project in which he is said to have received promises of aid from two graduates of Oberlin College, a former Methodist minister of Dayton, and two school teachers of Flint, Michigan.

A wealthy Cleveland woman, now in Miami, was the financial backer of the Buddhist movement, the activities of which Adams was to direct and for which he was to be paid a large salary. In discussing the religiously inclined philanthropist of the Ohio metropolis, Adams always referred to her as "the Yankee Annie Besant" and to himself as "the Yankee Krishnamurti."

Mrs. Nellie R. Storey, mother of Mrs. Olive Storey Adams, defends her accused daughter, and while lamenting the tragic end of her son-in-law, philosophically declares he brought about his own death.

She's been scrapping 'em on her own for a long time—how long, we shall never know—but at last we have come round to a realization of the help she can give us, and scientists are now busy providing training quarters for her, and arranging bouts with insect "push-overs," so that she can go out the more effectively after the real "bad eggs" that she has to put down for the long count.

Trichogramma minutum is a lady all right, but she is an insect also, and nothing invidious intended. You'd say she was rather a pretty lady if you could see her. But if by any chance you do happen to catch a glimpse of her you will pass her up as just another undersized gnat. For the ordinary midge or gnat is a pretty big insect alongside of Trichogramma.

She's so tiny she can roost on the end of an ordinary sewing needle like a cat on a fence-post, and not feel particularly crowded for foot room. One Trichogramma egg, if the moth or insect egg was only a little one; more if the food supply inside will rear a larger family of Trichogramma grubs. The mother insect has been known to deposit as many as 17 of her eggs inside the egg of a large tiger-moth.

HAVING deposited her eggs, Trichogramma goes on to the next victim and gives no further thought to the matter. The little grubs that hatch out in a few days, finding a rich food supply right in their mouths the moment they emerge from the shell, feed greedily and grow rapidly. Soon they fold themselves up into pupae, that strange transition form most insects go through, and after a little time emerge as full-grown Trichogrammas. These crawl out through a hole in the eggshell that has served as their nursery and are ready to mate and seek new eggs to puncture.

USING BILLIONS of TINY INSECTS to FIGHT MAN'S BATTLES

The Lady Wasp—So Small That She Can Stand on the Point of a Needle—the Leader in a War on Corn, Cane and Cotton Pests.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MEET Trichogramma minutum. And give the little lady a big hand. For she's a friend of yours, though you may not have known it. She's hardly big enough for you to see her without a magnifying glass, but she packs a knockout wallop for many a one of the insect thugs that are constantly threatening man's property and peace of mind.

She's been scrapping 'em on her own for a long time—how long, we shall never know—but at last we have come round to a realization of the help she can give us, and scientists are now busy providing training quarters for her, and arranging bouts with insect "push-overs," so that she can go out the more effectively after the real "bad eggs" that she has to put down for the long count.

Trichogramma minutum is a lady all right, but she is an insect also, and nothing invidious intended. You'd say she was rather a pretty lady if you could see her. But if by any chance you do happen to catch a glimpse of her you will pass her up as just another undersized gnat. For the ordinary midge or gnat is a pretty big insect alongside of Trichogramma.

She's so tiny she can roost on the end of an ordinary sewing needle like a cat on a fence-post, and not feel particularly crowded for foot room. On the egg of an ordinary moth, which is about as big as the head of a pin, she walks around comfortably, as a Plymouth Rock hen might walk on Plymouth Rock.

This little insect is very fond of taking little walks on the eggs of other and larger insects. She isn't just walking for fun, either. She has eggs of her own to lay, and, to her, the larger egg represents both nest and a food supply for her young ones when they hatch.

This container, which was sent across the continent by air mail, holds 100,000 moth eggs, each containing its Trichogramma egg.

She takes a few nervous steps around on the smooth oval surface, selects a suitable spot. Thrust—in through the shell goes the sharp, dagger-like ovipositor she carries aft. In a moment the moth egg has company—unwelcome company within itself.

One Trichogramma egg, if the moth or insect egg was only a little one; more if the food supply inside will rear a larger family of Trichogramma grubs. The mother insect has been known to deposit as many as 17 of her eggs inside the egg of a large tiger-moth.

HAVING deposited her eggs, Trichogramma goes on to the next victim and gives no further thought to the matter. The little grubs that hatch out in a few days, finding a rich food supply right in their mouths the moment they emerge from the shell, feed greedily and grow rapidly. Soon they fold themselves up into pupae, that strange transition form most insects go through, and after a little time emerge as full-grown Trichogrammas. These crawl out through a hole in the eggshell that has served as their nursery and are ready to mate and seek new eggs to puncture.

Trichogramma is a member of the wasp family, and her basic instinct, to find rich meat for her offspring to grow on, simply expresses itself on something she is big enough to tackle.

The egg parasitism of Trichogramma is different from that of most of her sister wasplets. These other egg parasites are very choosy as a rule; they will lay their eggs in only one kind of "host" egg, and hence they are valuable only against one kind of insect pest, or at best against a relatively small group of related insects.

But Trichogramma is not fussy. She will lay her eggs in any other eggs she can get at. She will not crawl through a crack to reach the eggs of insects that hide them, nor will she push her way through a silken web such as protects the egg masses of certain other insects. But woe to any kind of insect that lays its eggs unprotected in the open, if this nearly-microscopic wasp is around!

She will parasitize any egg into which she can stab that sharp ovipositor of hers. Codling moth, sawfly, European corn borer, sugar cane borer, gypsy moth, browntail moth, satin moth, tussock moth, spruce bud worm, even the harmless dragonflies—these and a host of others besides are all just so many omelet providers for the insatiable little Trichogramma. Houseflies and mosquitoes are among the comparatively few insects whose eggs she will not touch.

This universality of appetite is at once the benefit and the bane of Trichogramma, from the human point of view. She will conduct a sweeping campaign against a swarming, multiplying insect pest in one season, and all but wipe it off the map, but the following year, having reduced that particular shelf in her cupboard nearly to Hubbardian bareness, she blithely disregards that pest and turns to the eggs of some other kind of insect. When Trichogramma goes on an egg-laying rampage she's a bit temperamental. In one year, nine-tenths of the eggs of the cotton caterpillar moth, one of the worst enemies of the cotton crop, were parasitized by Trichogramma in one part of the South, but the following year the shortage of eggs of this species drove the little wasp elsewhere to lay her eggs. Similarly, during one year, Trichogramma killed 40 per cent of the eggs of the European corn borer in Massachusetts. But she did not repeat the performance, so the hopes of the entomologists fell again.

Caterpillars of the brown-tail moth.

The inconspicuous but devastating codling moth.

This, then, was the problem that confronted the applied entomologists, those warriors against the chitin-armored hordes that perennially threaten man and all his works. When there were plenty of insect pests, and hence plenty of eggs to be parasitized, there were not enough Trichogrammas to take care of all the business. In the years when Trichogramma abounded, there was not always a serious pest situation to handle.

How could the matter be brought under human control?

THERE was one precedent, already well established. Ladybird beetles, which are very useful to California citrus fruit growers as devourers of the destructive mealybug pest, have for some time been reared successfully by the agricultural workers of that State.

Potatoes are allowed to sprout indoors. Mealybugs are pastured on the sprouts and allowed to increase and multiply. Then ladybird beetles are turned loose to pasture on the mealybugs, and they in their turn increase and multiply. Finally, the millions of new ladybirds are gathered up, kept dormant in cold storage until wanted, and then released to clean up the pest-ridden orchards.

There was a young entomologist, named S. E. Flanders, who pondered these things in his heart. He was at the time working for a California walnut growers' association, and the thing that was threatening him with premature gray hair was the common codling moth. The same pest that is responsible for most of our "wormy" apples was playing hob with the highly valuable California walnut crop, and costing the growers endless money and labor in spraying and dusting campaigns.

Mr. Flanders knew that Trichogramma parasitizes codling moth eggs, but here, as elsewhere, she cannot be depended upon to be present in large enough numbers when the codling-moth outbreaks are at their worst.

So Entomologist Flanders methodically set about building a Trichogramma nursery. It might well be called a Trichogramma factory, for in the end he developed a method that would produce a million of these insects a day, in a building only 25 by 36 feet in floor size. These could then be distributed to the growers at a very small expense—a package of 100,000 eggs goes by airmail for 35 cents, most of the weight being in the container itself. Released from their mailing-tube prison, the newly-emerged insects wing their way through the walnut groves, seeking codling-moth eggs to conquer.

MR. FLANDERS based his mass rearing of Trichogramma on the same principle that had already proved so successful in the production of ladybird beetles by the million—the deliberate encouragement of a pest under controlled indoors conditions. He arranged trays of common white corn in racks, spreading out corn by the ton, and then turned one of the worst of granary pests, the grain moth, loose to do her worst. Before long the rearing cages were swarming with moths, anxious to lay their eggs.

A grain moth has one reaction at egg-laying time that is almost mechanical—when she comes to a crack she wants to drop an egg into it. Mr. Flanders provided cracks, most generously. He let the moths crawl on screen cloth, which is almost all cracks, and, finding that a gentle current of air would hasten the egg-laying process, provided that, too, by means of an electric fan. So the moths laid their eggs through the screen and the eggs dropped into a trough, whence they were gathered up by the laboratory assistants.

Here, then, was a fine mess of nursing bottles for potential Trichogramma babies. How arrange their nursery to best advantage? Simplicity itself. A piece of stiff paper, about four by ten inches, is thinly coated with sticky shellac. Over this the moth eggs are dusted, adhering to the shellac and giving the general effect of a coarse piece of sandpaper. Approximately 160,000 moth eggs can be stuck to one of these strips.

Then the strip is bent around end to end and slipped inside a tin-bottomed mailing tube, about the size of a common tomato can. This is the maternity ward for the female Trichogramma, the nursery of the babies and, finally, the traveling carriage when the new crop of insects journeys to the pest-threatened orchards to do battle with the codling moth.

The cylinders with the egg-laden strips within them are turned upside down on glass shelves, and female Trichogrammas, eager to lay their eggs, are liberated inside them. The little insects clamber over the thousands of moth eggs, stabbing and laying. Soon every one of the hundred thousand moth eggs harbors its Trichogramma egg.

Then the lids are screwed down on the mailing tubes, and the hecatombs of assassinated moth eggs, loaded with trouble for the orchard pets, are "ready to roll," as they say in the artillery. If there is a war going on at the moment, they are mailed out to the beleaguered orchardists. In a few days the eggs within the eggs have hatched, the grubs have completed their development and the adult Trichogrammas are ready to go to work in the open. But if all is peaceful along the orchard front, the potential flying armies are put on the reserve list by the simple expedient of piling their containers in a refrigerator. When their services are needed, all that is necessary is to warm them into action again.

In many places the use of Trichogramma has been considered as of possible value in fighting insect pests. This is notably so in Louisiana, where the planters are even more worried over the wickedness of the cane borer than they are over the tariff. In Illinois, the defenders of the corn belt hope to enlist the aid of Trichogramma against their arch foe, the European corn borer. In New England, whose classic elms are threatened by the gypsy moth, the browntail moth and the tussock moth, this same little ally on wings will probably prove of value if California methods can be worked successfully in the latitude of Boston.

One very curious thing has been learned about Trichogramma that is probably of a good deal of help in her peculiar way of living. Tricho-

The Bullet-Headed, Volcanic, Teutonic Director Who Jarred the Big-Money Men of Screendom.

EIGHTH of a SERIES.

In the TINSELED MOVIE WORLD at HOLLYWOOD

By JIM TULLY

Author of "Beggars of Life," "Jarnegan," Etc.

HE HAS the neck of a wrestler and the bullet-head of a bruiser in fiction. Deep wrinkles run across his forehead. The first wrinkle above his eyes is about four inches long. His forehead narrows until the top wrinkle is very short and is lost in the close-cropped hair that forms a V in the center. His eyes are those of a man who has fought great odds.

This Austrian—sometime soldier, and sometime everything—a wrapper of bundles at $7 a week, a bad singer in a German rathskeller, a fly-paper salesman, a Deputy Sheriff, a track walker while learning to speak English in America, a dishwasher, a life guard, a riding master, an "extra" player in the films—is now one of the most dominating individuals who has figured in the screen world. He throws his shoulders forward when he walks—like a champion middleweight strutting down the aisle to defend his crown. He is a born actor. He does not come into a room like anyone else. He always makes an entrance.

Once within, he stops with heels clicked together, his body erect, his bullet-head thrown back on his powerful neck—like a well-trained gladiator who has cleared a path for an Emperor.

Von Stroheim ended his long wandering in San Francisco. While broke and hungry he obtained a job at Lake Tahoe as a life guard. As such he could do everything but swim. It was soon learned that he knew more about horses than swimming. He was given a position as riding master. That fall he came to Los Angeles with a carload of horses.

Now a man who cannot swim but hires out as a life guard will either become famous or go before a Magistrate. Von Stroheim is not a man of many ideas, but of intense concentration on those that he has. The comrade of horses got a cheap room and decided to enter pictures.

He walked every day to a studio which could be reached only by motor at 40 cents a round trip. He had not the 40 cents. So each day players now forgotten whizzed by the plodding figure on his eight-mile hike.

In a game that is mostly bluff the life guard who couldn't swim was bound to come into his own. He became an extra player.

We were at the time a nation of Hun haters. The shrewd Von Stroheim took advantage of this. No one could play the hated German as well as he. While the souls of other Austrians were promenading to God out of holes that bullets made, Von Stroheim was preparing to vault into a golden saddle, the stirrup of which was held by an illiterate producer. And still, there are those who claim that he has no sense of humor.

Von Stroheim became famous with the direction of his first picture, "Blind Husbands." It remains to this day one of the finest of pictures. It is told with the relentless truth and restrained detail of De Maupassant.

He was long in selling the idea of "Blind Husbands" to Laemmle, the little producer who some years before had operated a magic lantern show. Laemmle had faith — after many days—and after Von Stroheim had spent hours innumerable in waiting upon him. Life may kill this Austrian . . . it will never defeat him.

He called his first picture "The Pinnacle." Mr. Laemmle is reported to have said: "No von vill go to see de pinochle—ve vill call it 'Blind Husbands'—den all de vimmen come."

The women came, and saw the Austrian play the lead. One lady critic, with the vicariousness of middle age, called him "the man you love to hate." And so the dominating ex-track walker became established as a great screen actor and a great director.

There must certainly be a strain of sadism in Von Stroheim's nature. Indeed, more than any other person in the film world he has stirred the so-called sadistic tendencies which are said by psychologists to lie dormant between the conscious and the subconscious mind. While too self-centered and too intense to see life whole, he transcribes, faithfully and vividly, that part of it which he does see.

A pioneer in the making of sophisticated pictures, this—at least psychological—sadist has many of the illusions of Dr. Frank Crane. He believes in miracles and fortune tellers. He would not miss church on Sunday if the President invited Mencken to a beer party, and if Nathan, uninvited, brought a pretty damsel along.

While naive in his attitude toward life, he is honest in conversation. If he has inhibitions, he is aware of them. This makes him the leading citizen of Hollywood. Sufficient unto himself, he is never seen where shallow shadow-people commingle.

He is guilty of tremendous rages. At such times he will take off his coat and trample upon it. When the rage has subsided he will dust it off and put it on again.

Money is of no value to him. Men who owe him hundreds have borrowed of him again and again. He has been known to say: "Are you sure that's enough? You may have more."

He is immaculate in his dress and clean to the point of passion. He has filmed a scene all day in a dirty cellar and come out as spick and span as when he entered.

He talks in jerks. His ideas seem to flow too fast to be lucidly expressed in a foreign tongue. He will go far in art. Life still hurts him.

Unlike most directors, many of whom are morons, Von Stroheim has a torrent of talent. He has touched genius once or twice. So far he has not conformed to the financial wishes of producers. Capable of earning $150,000 a year, he has preferred to fight on alone while owing for the furniture in his home. When producers were rushing him he said: "Real art cannot be limited as to time. Turning out pictures with the regularity of a sausage machine is bound to make them as like as sausages in a string." Again: "Most of them (motion picture players) are not actors but types. They cannot submerge themselves into a character." And again, about art in America—its greatest ill: "Moral provincialism."

Not a widely read man, he is fond of two writers—Zola and Norris. He has much in common with these men. All three are realists with little flair for beauty.

While an extra player Von Stroheim met Gibson Gowland, a stolid Englishman, the very twin of McTeague, the monumental Norris dentist whom Von Stroheim loved. He said to Gowland: "Some day I shall direct McTeague and you will play the lead." Eight years later Von Stroheim directed McTeague. Gowland played the lead. "Greed" was considered a better title for it.

VON STROHEIM'S great battle with the producers has been his consistent refusal to keep within the limitations of commercial pictures. He seems to feel that producers are artists and that motion pictures are an art.

He spent two years in the filming of "Greed." After it was filmed he labored many weeks over several hundred feet of film. At last the finished product was ready for studio executives. It was, I believe, in 42 reels. It would require about eight hours to witness a picture of this length. He was prevailed upon to cut the picture. The ex-soldier wept as he cut a scene here, a scene there. Finally he rebelled. He would cut it no more. It was now in 20-odd reels. The alien hands cut it to conventional length.

The man suffered during those months. That I know. It was as if a body of producers and shoddy scenario writers had ripped whole pages from the brain of a real creative artist and made of them what their little minds conceived.

A British foundation of arts and sciences wrote and asked Von Stroheim if it would be possible to buy the film in its original length for future generations. But "Greed," in its original version, so far as I know, has been lost to the world.

Von Stroheim has moral and physical bravery. During the filming of "Greed" Gowland refused to have a professional knife-thrower hurl knives at him. Von Stroheim, with, "You yellow Englishman," stood against the wall. The knife flashed through the air, exploded an electric light and grazed Von Stroheim's ear. Not a stern expression never left his face. But his example was not followed by Gowland. A double later dared to do what the genius had done.

MAE MURRAY was furious with him when he directed her in "The Merry Widow." Whether or not she was fond of intelligent direction the quarrel reached its climax when the patriotic Miss Murray is reported to have called him a "dirty Hun."

The Austrian said no word. His strong brain kept the anger in his soul. He turned and walked off the set—his military heels clicking.

Now when an ex-comrade of horses like Von Stroheim is insulted, somebody must apologize. But that was not considered at the time.

As he left the set another director walked on. Loud cheering ensued. The new director bowed. But the cheering was for the departing Austrian. It came from the extra players—people who needed the money desperately. Tawdry misfits of life many of them were, but they had certain ethical standards. They refused to work until Von Stroheim returned.

The strong Austrian had impressed upon the extras the man of his personality. Somebody must have apologized. He was called back to direct. The extra players then took up a collection and bought their bullet-headed general a present, set with jewels. Greater love have no men than those who take a chance of losing their jobs—for the sake of a discharged boss—and then go out and buy him a present upon his return.

One of Von Stroheim's best pictures was "The Merry Widow." It was also a financial success.

There are those who rejoice in Hollywood.

The economic lash has trained many a fierce animal. Perhaps the lion is tamed at last. I hope not.

(THE END.)

The extra players refused to work until Von Stroheim returned.

"How I used to dread washday! But now I don't mind it at all, for Rinso does the hard work for me. Rinso soaks away the dirt—and the clothes come whiter than they used to when I scrubbed them. This way is so easy and safe for the clothes. And for my hands, too.

"I like Rinso suds—they're so thick and creamy in spite of our hard water. I use Rinso for dishes, glassware, and all general cleaning."

Thick suds—in hardest water

Rinso is a compact, granulated, hard-water soap. One cupful gives more suds than two cupfuls of puffed-up soaps. All you need, even in hardest water, for whitest wash ever!

Rinso is endorsed by the makers of 36 leading washers. Great for tub washing, too; saves scrubbing . . . saves the hands.

Guaranteed by the makers of LUX—Lever Brothers Co., Cambridge, Mass.

cording to his father-in-law, "the soul of courtesy and chivalry and an ideal lover. He was extremely well read, fond of music and seemed to be a most gallant soldier. He told us that he had been awarded the D. S. O., but he was very careful not to obtrude his war record upon us. We only learned by careful questioning how he got his D. S. O. He got it for rescuing a wounded officer during the war."

Mr. Haward cashed a check for nearly $5000 for Captain Barker, and the check was duly honored.

THE wedding took place in November, 1923. Captain Barker gave his wife jewelry and other beautiful wedding presents. They lived for two or three months at the Grand Hotel at Brighton and Captain Barker eventually became overseer on a farm near Uckfield. For a time he played with a traveling theatrical company, but was finally dismissed because of his weak, rather feminine voice.

A problem of the unmasking is Mrs. Smith's child, eight-year-old Tim Barker, now in boarding school. He has always called his mother "Daddy," and is immensely proud of "Daddy's" war record.

Captain Barker deceived old soldiers with his stories of the war, for he detailed the places and personages of Sandhurst and Mons and of the early battles of the war with complete exactness. He was President of a club of Mons veterans.

In Brighton he gathered a large circle about him. He drank his whisky and soda in the bar and entertained his associates with his war experiences and his sparkling conversation. In Andover, where he entered the antique business in 1924, he rode regularly with the Tidworth Hunt —Lillian Barker had been taught to ride almost as soon as she could walk.

One error—he joined the Andover cricket team, and even his explanation that he had been wounded in the shoulder during the war did not entirely free him from suspicion aroused by his peculiar throwing style. At the end of his theatrical engagement in 1927 he lived for a time at Hampton-on-Thames. He was popular as an all-around sportsman and an excellent boxer.

Captain Barker appeared in London with the "other woman" in an expensive apartment.

HE JOINED the National Fascisti movement and gained some repute in this new circle for his feats of strength and his unusual boxing ability. At one time he was arrested for unauthorized possession of a revolver, but was discharged.

At last he opened a restaurant, which, after a particularly promising opening, failed and involved him in the bankruptcy proceedings which finally brought about his exposure.

After his exposure, many people found that they had been suspicious of him all the time. But though no man may be a hero to his valet, less subtle impositions are possible, for B. Wrigley, Captain Barker's valet, never suspected that his master was not a man.

"Every morning I had to take the Major"—Mrs. Smith was particularly fluent in the way of honors, ranks and titles—"his shaving water, and I often saw him with his face covered with lather, as though he was just going to use the razor. . . . Generally he went out of the flat wearing a uniform, saying he was going to the War Office, where he had a staff appointment." The valet added that the married life of Captain and Mrs. Barker was most amiable.

After his bankruptcy the Captain went to work in a hotel. Following his arrest, his locker was broken open. It contained two pieces of ribbon, one blue and one red, wrapped in a piece of paper under his dress clothes; an eyebrow pencil, a bottle of lash dye, a well-used powder puff, a safety razor and a safety-pin stand.

director of the "Beethoven Conservatory of Music," and Dabney Carr, amateur flutist, who founded the St. Louis Musical Union and gave concerts for eight years.

The real history of the St. Louis orchestra, as it exists today, begins with the conductorship of Alfred Ernst, a temperamental young man of 26, a talented pianist and conductor. Ernst improved the orchestra in every respect.

Then came Max Zach, and it is upon his regime that St. Louisans are prone to look fondly back. He almost immediately discontinued the choral section and the organization became a purely orchestral one, taking the name of the St. Louis Symphony Society. Zach conducted his first concert in St. Louis November 12, 1907.

Under Zach the orchestra had a quiet and happy career. He knew the organization with unfailing thoroughness and he commanded the respect of his men by his quiet dignity. He was inclined to give modern music a hearing, but not to the neglect of the classical.

On January 22, 1921, Zach conducted a concert, and less than a week later he was dead. The season was finished by Frederick Fischer, who has been assistant conductor for nearly 25 years, and three guest conductors, Rudolf Ganz, Dirk Foch and Theodore Spiering. Ganz was chosen, but after five years he resigned to return to the concert stage as pianist.

Since the departure of Ganz the orchestra has been under the direction of world-renowned conductors, and will continue so during the fiftieth season.

MAX MEYER—Musician, Psychologist and Physicist rolled as a freshman in the School of Engineering and, unusual as the calling is for a woman, is studying to be a mechanical engineer. During laboratory periods she wears overalls and tinkers with greasy motors. Otto also is an engineering student and Harold a graduate engineer.

THE conspicuous flair for engineering in the family appears to come naturally. Dr. Meyer himself is something of an electrical engineer as well as a psychologist. Indeed, his versatility and tremendous range of information are little short of amazing. He is a first-rate linguist, physicist, musician and inventor. His laboratories bristle with formidable and complicated electrical devices which he designed himself for making psychological tests.

He is also the inventor of a quarter-tone organ. Other quarter-tone organs have been constructed, but none on the principle of this one. Here one sees each key cut in two, the tips providing the medium for tones lowered a tempered quarter-tone. The instrument is capable of outwailing any saxophone on the Orpheum circuit, but it wasn't made for that purpose.

"Its real purpose," says Dr. Meyer, who willingly demonstrates it to a visitor, "is to encourage composing of singable music which contains such harmonic effects as are unrealizable with ordinary semi-tone intervals."

Although he can see little use for it in the interpretation of Occidental music, he declares it is well suited to the tones of Oriental music. Thus far, he has composed his own music for it, making use of a special staff and incidental markings, which are unintelligible to the average music student.

This strange product, said to be the only thing of its kind ever built by a psychologist in a university laboratory, was exhibited in 1917 as a feature of the American Psychological Association's conference held at Ohio State University. It was displayed along with a vast array of his other devices for measuring mentality, emotions and reactions.

ALL of his complicated laboratory equipment—some $8000 worth—stands idle now. Its creator has been suspended for a year and there is no one else in the university who knows how to operate it. Technically, it is the property of the university, but Dr. Meyer refers to it as his "intellectual property."

It is the same with his advanced courses. Five of them have been dropped because there is no faculty member qualified to take them over. Until the beginning of the current semester he never had a teaching assistant except laboratory assistants. He conducted the whole department alone, teaching six courses. Those offered this year were "Instincts and Habits," "Abnormal Psychology," "Music Systems," "Social Psychology," "Employment Psychology" and "Stuttering," the last of which, he explains, is not a course in which the student is taught how to stutter. At the time of his dismissal a total of 109 students were enrolled in these courses. Miss Dorothy Postle, who joined the faculty February 1 to teach one section of the "Instincts and Habits" course, is now conducting both sections, but all the advanced courses are gone.

Even the elementary courses, it is found, cannot be conducted satisfactorily without Dr. Meyer's supervision—and that is no reflection on Miss Postle, for she came as an assistant and not as a department head. Dr. Meyer, therefore, is remaining unofficially in his office for the present.

I FOUND him there a short time ago, poring over his grade books and getting his effects together for removal after 29 years of faithful service. Gray-haired and fragile, he presented a pathetic figure.

"It's all very well for the Board of Curators to terminate my services," he explained, "but somebody has got to be responsible for my students. They are here to get knowledge, to learn something about psychology, not merely to get academic credits. The only solution is for me to remain as an adviser unless the board decides that my mere presence here soils the moral atmosphere. So I am going to stay around for the rest of this term. After that it's all indefinite. I don't know where I'm going. I can't make any plans."

The Board of Curators had suspended this man because "We feel that his usefulness has been impaired."

Chloroformed Her Husband

England Yankees are accustomed."

Since her incarceration Mrs. Adams has been visited several times by the mother of her dead husband. The first of these visits was to obtain consent of the alleged murderess to her mother-in-law becoming the guardian of Ananda Adams, the 11-year-old son.

Mrs. Olive Storey Adams asked that her own father be made guardian of Ananda, but finally agreed for the child to go to his paternal grandfather and grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Adams of Stoneham. At the present time the innocent victim of the tragedy is in Boston with his grandparents.

The meeting of the bereaved mother and her accused daughter-in-law was quite prosaic. There was no reference to Adams' death. Both women were constrained and obviously under great mental tension. On the first visit the mother-in-law was accompanied by Ananda, who ran to his mother's arms and hugged her.

"Mamma, come home," he begged.

After leaving the prison, Adams' mother broke down and sobbed.

"But I don't hate her," she said. "I'm sorry for her and pity her. If I could help her I would."

Of the six women blamed by Mrs. Adams indirectly, for the tragedy, three are Massachusetts women, one living in Stoneham and two in Boston; two formerly of Cleveland, one of whom is now living in New York City and the other in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

One of the women named by Mrs. Adams has disappeared from this city, the police stated.

When Mrs. Adams goes on trial in June in the Superior Court, the five alleged paramours of the slain meteorologist will be called as defense witnesses.

Insects Fight Man's Battle

gramma is one of those peculiar females who doesn't need a mate in order to produce offspring. She just lays her eggs, and they hatch quite as efficiently as though there had been a paternal ancestor. And in some strains, at least, they're all girls.

Other females will produce nothing but male offspring; but surely this can't go on indefinitely. Still others have families nearer the ordinary 50-50 sex ratio. This is one of the things that entomologists are puzzling over.

One German entomologist has reported evolutionary changes in his rearing stocks, of the kind usually called mutations—sudden appearances of individuals quite unlike their parents, whose peculiarities continue to be inherited if the line is kept pure.

One such mutation might prove practically valuable. This is a wingless form, which seems to be normal in other respects. If wingless Trichogrammas could be got on the large-scale producing basis, their use would be made independent of the wind, which, of course, always threatens to carry off the tiny winged insects. They could simply be turned loose on foot to range over twigs and leaves like doughboys cleaning up a trench system.

But whether this suggestion should prove practicable or not, the practicability of the alliance between man and his tiny ally, Trichogramma, has already been demonstrated, and campaigns against the hordes of six-legged enemies will undoubtedly go on, with the economic entomologist in the role of liaison officer. All the diminutive lady wasp needs is the intelligent direction of scientists and she will stage a clean-up campaign amazing in its scope and thoroughness.

THE girl of his dreams! So she seemed—at first glance.

She danced wonderfully, too. Yet before the music stopped, the dream had vanished.

"Thanks for the dance," he murmured politely. But how different his real thoughts! He didn't come near her again all evening.

A humiliating experience. But it could never happen to Betty today. For she finally discovered what was spoiling her attractiveness. "B.O."—Body Odor! And then she found an easy way to overcome this unpardonable fault.

Betty is now admired, sought after by everyone. Read her story that follows.

"'B.O.' certainly fooled me for a long time.

"It was my doctor who told me why we're so rarely aware of our own body odor. The sense of smell becomes deadened to a familiar odor. But even on cool days, the pores give off as much as a quart of odor-causing waste, he said.

"Now, on his advice, I use Lifebuoy all the time and never worry about 'B.O.' Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather purifies. You do feel cleaner, fresher after a Lifebuoy bath.

"ALL ABOUT SHAKSPEARE"

Or the Pocket Biography of the Bard of Avon.

P. G. Wodehouse.

THE SHAKSPEARE anniversary this month makes it almost imperative for this newspaper to publish a few brief facts about the fellow, just to show that we have our fingers on the public pulse. William Shakspeare, or Shakspere, or Shikspur—he was still trying to decide how to spell his name when the grim reaper appeared—was the Noel Coward of his day. He not only wrote plays of a high order of merit, but also acted in them; and there is no evidence to prove that he did not get dramatically moral with sound effects at selected points in the drama. Indeed, if only William had been a better dancer, the resemblance might be said to be one of the most complete and striking in the annals of the stage.

Born in the year 1564, and baptized April 26, it was not immediately that the Bard of Avon turned his attention to the stage. In his early youth he seems to have had the idea that there was a good living to be made out of stealing rabbits from the preserves of the local squires, and it was only when approaching years of discretion that he got onto the fact that the big money lay in stealing plots. In the year 1591 he began to write plays, and from then onward anybody who had a good plot put it in a steel-bound box and sat on the lid when he saw Shakspeare coming. In all England there was not his equal in this particular form of larceny. He was the forerunner of the dramatizer of novels.

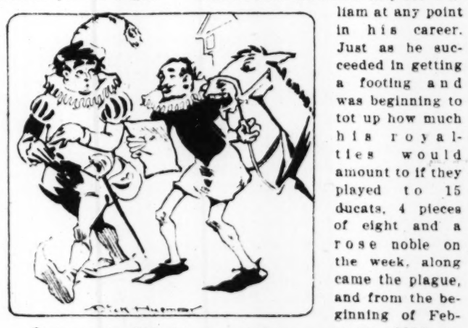
There was, of course, some excuse for this trait of his. He was the official playwright to a company of actors, and they sweated the poor man to such an extent that there was really hardly time for him to think up his own plots. In those days a good run for a play was two nights, and anything over three was sensational. This made it pretty hard for Shakspeare. Indeed, it is a wonder that Shakspeare did not get brain fever. A less tough man than Shikspur would have cracked under the strain.

HE WOULD dash off "Macbeth" on Sunday night for production on Monday, and on Tuesday morning at 6 o'clock, as he lay in bed thinking, "Well, that's that!" Around would come Burbage in a frightful state of excitement. "Good heavens, Bill, why aren't you working? Don't you know we've got to give 'em something tonight?" "What about 'Macbeth'?" Shakspeare would ask sleepily. "'Macbeth' finished its long and successful run last night, and it's up to you to push out another." So Shakspeare would heave himself out of bed, dig down into the box where he kept other people's plots, and by lunch time he would hand Burbage the script of "Hamlet." "How do you like it?" he would ask. "Rotten!" Burbage would reply. "But it'll have to do."

A playwright cannot give of his best under these conditions, which accounts for a peculiarity in Shakspeare's work that, we believe, has hitherto escaped the notice of critics; the fact that, while his stuff sounds all right, it generally doesn't mean anything. It cannot be doubted that, when he was pushed for time, William Shakspeare just shoved down anything and trusted to the charity of the audience to pull him through.

As, for instance, in "Romeo and Juliet," Act One, Scene One. "Who set this ancient quarrel new abroach?" Of course, he knew perfectly well that "abroach" meant nothing, but it sounded darned good, and Burbage was popping in and out every two minutes, asking him when the deuce he was going to get the thing finished; so down it went.

There seems to be no doubt that Shakspeare had the usual struggles of the beginner who tries to break into the play-writing business. Tradition says that he started in a modest way by holding horses at the doors, and a moving historical picture might be painted of the future king of the English stage trying to read Burbage the opening scene of a comedy while the latter flitted past on his way to the Mermaid Tavern (the Elizabethan Lambs' Club), and at the same time endeavoring to elude the attentions of a peevish mustang who was trying to bite him in the back of the neck. Eventually, however, merit came to the top, and our hero found himself a member of a London company and was able to stand with his co-workers in the Strand, telling everyone how he lifted them out of their seats when he played the ghost at Ippleton-cum-East-Wobsley-in-the March.



Trying, under difficulties, to read Burbage the opening scene of a comedy.

Shakspeare's first play, according to the authorities, was entitled "The Contention of York and Lancaster (2, 3, Henry VI)." One is forced to admit that, as a title, it could be improved, but the Encyclopedia Britannica says that was it, so there can be no mistake. Of course, they had no electric light signs over the theaters in those days, so that it didn't matter how long you made the name of your piece. But even so it would have had more of a punch without the numerals.

Things were not made easy for William at any point in his career. Just as he succeeded in getting a footing and was beginning to tot up how much his royalties would amount to if they played to 15 ducats, 4 pieces of eight and a rose noble on the week, along came the plague, and from the beginning of February, 1593, to the end of December the theaters were closed. Bearing up as well as he could against this blow, he wrote "Titus Andronicus," and got it produced in 1594.

Back came the plague and shut the theaters again. But you cannot keep a good man down, and by that time Shakspeare had started to steal his plots, so that he could now produce dramas almost without conscious effort. The result was that when the theater opened again he bobbed up like a tidal wave and had "The Taming of the Shrew," "Love's Labor Lost" and "Romeo and Juliet" put on before the year was over. After that, they saw that it was no good closing the theaters.

OF HIS first piece little is known, but the fact that it is said to have been written in collaboration with Marlowe, Greene and Peele makes it seem probable that it was a musical comedy. No doubt Shakspeare wrote the original book, Marlowe added extra scenes, Greene contributed additional lines and Peele inserted supplementary material. It does not seem to have been a great success, thus emphasizing the hopelessness of trying to do a piece of this kind without Will Rogers or Beatrice Lillie.

A good deal of mystery surrounds both the private life and the artistic career of William Shakspeare. Nobody seems to know what he did with his time, where he lived, whom he married and what he looked like. He is generally supposed to have married Anne Hathaway, but there is an entry in an existing register relating to the marriage of "William Shakspeare" with "Annam Whately de Temple Grafton." One can only suppose that the clerk was a weaker speller than the bridegroom himself, and that this was his plucky, though scarcely successful, attempt at "Anne Hathaway."

As regards his appearance, there are 16 portraits of him in the book of reference to which we owe so grateful a debt in the compilation of these few kind words, and, except that they are all solid on the fact that he never shaved, each is absolutely different from the other. Either Shakspeare sat for his portrait on the correspondence method, describing by letter what he looked like and leaving the rest to the ingenuity of the artist, or else the standard of art was low in those days. Of course, it must have been difficult to paint Shakspeare's portrait. He was always either rushing onto the stage to play a part or else seated at Burbage's desk in the room marked "No Admittance," hustling away at a new drama; and you had to get the best view of him that you could through the keyhole.

This is no time to touch on the Baconian controversy, beyond saying that many people, quite sane in other respects, believe that the plays were written by Lord Bacon and that all Shakspeare did was to practice spelling his signature on the covers of the typed script. As there is no record of Bacon making any protest during his lifetime, this seems incredible. Nobody who had contributed even a line to a play could refrain from going about the place during its run, telling people that he really did the work.

Why EXPERIMENT
DENTIFRICES?
—it's risky

You can't go wrong if you use the world's most popular dentifrice—Colgate's. In addition to polishing, its penetrating foam washes away the decaying particles which lurk in tiny crevices.

MILLIONS of sensible people have realized that Colgate's is more than a surface polisher; that it is the protective dentifrice whose penetrating foam successfully washes away all those decaying food particles and mucin deposits lurking in the tiny crevices which ordinary toothpastes cannot reach.

Millions of people have been impressed by the fact that more dentists recommend Colgate's than any other leading dentifrice.

Also Colgate's has won friends because of its economical price—a 25c tube of Colgate's contains more toothpaste than any other leading brand selling at 25c.

Why not accept this widespread acknowledgment of Colgate's as doubly superior?

When you brush your teeth with Colgate's, you do more than safely polish the surface. Colgate's penetrating foam possesses a remarkable property ("low surface-tension").

FREE—

and only 25¢

The famous 25¢ tube of Colgate's contains more toothpaste than any other leading brand priced at a quarter. This is because Colgate's is the largest selling dentifrice in the world—and volume production, everybody knows means low price.

This means that it can penetrate* into every tiny crevice. There it softens and dislodges the decaying impurities, washing them away in a detergent wave.

In this foam is carried a fine chalk powder, a polishing material used by dentists as safe yet effective in keeping teeth white and attractive.

If you have not yet become acquainted with Colgate's, may we send you a generous trial tube and an interesting booklet on the care of the teeth and mouth? Just mail the coupon.

*How Colgate's Cleans Crevices Where Tooth Decay May Start

Greatly magnified picture of tiny tooth crevice. Note how ordinary, sluggish toothpaste having high "surface-tension" fails to penetrate deep down where the causes of decay lurk.

This diagram shows how Colgate's active foam having low "surface-tension", penetrates deep down into the crevice, cleansing it completely where the toothbrush cannot reach.

ELO ASBESTOS PANELING

The Modern, Fireproof and Permanent Material that Reproduces the Exquisite hand-carvings of Early Masters.

The mellow color, texture and charm of antique French hand-carved oak woodwork are embodied in this Elo paneled Lobby and sturdy Information Desk from the offices of Lyon & Taylor, Architects, of New York City. The design is the Gothic Elo, carried out into the furniture as shown here. To the eye-delighting richness and decorativeness of the paneling, are added the exceptional fire-resistance and durability of the material itself.

FOR most of us, the beautiful, hand-carved wood panelings that we would choose for our own, are far beyond reach in the matter of price, as well as in availability. But—that doesn't preclude one's embodying this fascinating artistry into home, apartment, office, church or other edifice.

For, a comparatively inexpensive material is now available to you which faithfully reproduces the exquisite handiwork of luxurious Gothic, Tudor or Jacobean panels. This material is Elo Asbestos Paneling—a durable, charming product, easy to apply, and unusually fire-resistant.

In Different Designs

Elo Asbestos Paneling is made in a number of different styles and designs, among which are the Gothic, Tudor and Jacobean styles. It includes not only paneling but also whole plain sheets of "lumber." It is made by the Certain-teed Products Corporation, manufacturers of many lines of world-known building products, from a French process using cement and asbestos in special combination.

Our Fifteen Years of Service Stand Back of the Satisfying Elo Properties

Having put Elo to innumerable tests of actual usage, before we agreed to back it, Sears & Piou are now ready to broadcast its merits. We are the distributors, in St. Louis and vicinity of Elo, and we will assume full responsibility for the satisfactory workmanship and for the installation of all Elo Paneling sold under our name.

We know that this product has qualities of adaptability and flexibility for general usage, not possessed by wood. It is absolutely fire-proof and would be given highest insurance rating by any insurance engineer. Its permanency is only rivalled by metal and stone. The many types of rooms wherein Elo has been applied, throughout the country, are convincing testimony as to its practicability.

the GREAT DROWNED RIVER of NORTH AMERICA?

© ASSOCIATED SCREEN NEWS, LTD., MONTREAL

Do you know that the vast St. Lawrence estuary is the result of a river drowned by the sea?

Years before the reckoning of time, the St. Lawrence was a normal freshwater river flowing to the Atlantic. Then, as the young world cooled, came one of those gigantic subterranean upheavals. The river bed dropped away. The Atlantic surged in. Even the counter-flow from the five Great Lakes could not stem this expanding rush of salt water . . . not until it had reached almost 1,000 miles inward!

The gigantic result

Today the lower St. Lawrence is a long arm of the sea . . . averaging 5 miles wide, broadening to 10 miles, 20 miles . . . 90 miles as it merges into the St. Lawrence Gulf.

America's second largest seaport stands at its head . . . Montreal, 1,000 miles inland. The old river bed, now many fathoms drowned, is the estuary's deep central channel. Huge ocean greyhounds can ply its course full steam ahead.

It forms the shortest and most direct route between America and Europe. 215 ocean freight and passenger vessels . . . 1,600,000 tons of cargo . . . is its record per month.

In the Delightfully Contrasting Homes of

MRS. FREDERIC CAMERON CHURCH JR. of Newport
AND
MRS. JOSEPH LEITER of Washington

THE FORMER MISS MURIEL VANDERBILT, Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church Jr., is one of the most popular leaders of the younger set. She keeps magnificent stables at Dudley Place, her Newport home.

MRS. JOSEPH LEITER, a woman of rare tact and unusual charm is a favorite Washington hostess. Her sumptuous Dupont Circle home is the scene of many smart functions during the season.

"DUDLEY PLACE" is the Newport home of Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church Jr., (the former Muriel Vanderbilt)—an old Colonial house occupied by Lord Dudley in Revolutionary times.

With rare taste Mrs. Church has enhanced its historic charm, preserving the fine old wood panelling, and furnishing the house with genuine early American antiques of mellow beauty. Priceless old hunting and riding prints hang on the walls, and hooked rugs add gay spots of color.

A charming contrast is Mrs. Joseph Leiter's mansion in Washington's exclusive Dupont Circle. Decorated in an age of extravagant taste it is filled with precious bibelots, brocade hung walls, satinwood panelling, and exquisite murals by François Boucher.

For each of these homes—so charming yet so widely differing—the choice was beds, springs, and mattresses by Simmons—the world's foremost manufacturer of bedroom equipment.

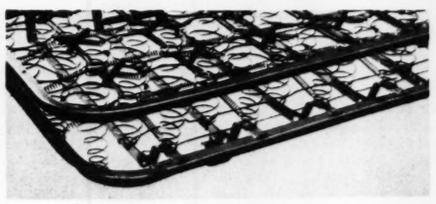
Mrs. Church chose quaint Simmons "spool beds," No. 1850 finished in maple, which, to quote her, "harmonize perfectly and are exceedingly comfortable." Her Beautyrest Mattresses and Ace Box Springs are covered in rose damask in an all over pattern.

Mrs. Leiter, too, is enthusiastic about her Simmons equipment. She chose beds No. 1581, with rounded headboard and low footboard, to harmonize with the room. Of her mattresses and springs she says, "And the marvelously comfortable Beautyrests and Ace Box Springs are as smart as one could wish! I chose the beige damask cover in contrast to the soft blue of beds and hangings."

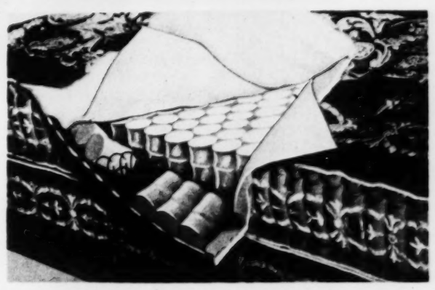
In all better furniture and department stores you will find them—the Simmons Beautyrest Mattress, $39.50 and the new Simmons Ace Box Spring, $42.50. Simmons Ace Open Coil Spring, $19.75. Simmons Beds, $10 to $60; No. 1581, $32.75; No. 1850, $37.50. Look for the name "Simmons." The Simmons Company, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco.

LAVISHLY DECORATED GUEST ROOM in Mrs. Leiter's Washington home. Elegance and magnificence characterize it, from the blue brocade hung walls and matching blue hangings, to the taffeta skirted dressing table, topped by a gorgeous gilt framed mirror. The beds by Simmons, No. 1581, are painted blue-green with apricot trim, and the spreads are of Alençon lace and flesh silk. This bed also comes in peach, mahogany and walnut finishes.

EARLY AMERICAN GUEST ROOM in Mrs. Church's Newport home, with the fine old panelled doors and mantel that date back to Revolutionary times when Lord Dudley occupied the house. The chintz hung walls in vivid blue and orange and the blue painted woodwork are daring but delightful notes in a room furnished with early American pieces. Mrs. Church chose quaint "spool beds" No. 1850, from Simmons, finished in maple. This bed also may be had in walnut, green-and-ivory, and gray-blue finishes.



SIMMONS ACE OPEN COIL SPRING—the perfected open spring—wonderfully resilient, low in price. Light weight, with coils close together, affording individual freedom of action. Smooth finished border protects sheets. $19.75



SIMMONS BEAUTYREST MATTRESS and ACE BOX SPRING, supreme achievements of the Simmons Company, world's largest manufacturer of beds, springs, and mattresses. The Beautyrest has hundreds of individually pocketed fine wire coils which extend all the way to the edges, affording the utmost in resiliency. Upholstered with thick layers of felt. The new Ace Box Spring, equally resilient and long wearing, has the same stitched sides and neatly taped edges. Both covered in damask—two patterns, six pastel shades.

Every detail of my appearance, especially my hair, is so important in every role I assume, that I cannot afford to take chances. That is why I always insist upon a Frederics Vita-Tonic Permanent Wave. I know it will be exactly as I wish it—soft, natural and lustrous.

Renée Adorée

Renée Adorée's Wide, Natural Waves Win Admiration

Many people think that the lovely waves of Renee Adoree's hair are natural. This charming Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star, explains, however, that the naturalness of her soft, lustrous, flowing waves depends wholly upon the New Frederics Vita-Tonic Method of permanent waving.

There is one sure way of getting this same natural effect in wide, silky waves. When having your hair permanently waved, look for the name "Frederics Vita-Tonic" which is always imprinted on the wrapper used on each tress of hair.

Those shops which excel in their work have trained Frederics operators whose skill in permanent waving is unsurpassed.

Send for the booklet, "The Glorious Gift of Lovely Hair" which tells how to care for your wave, and a generous free introductory tube of the new Frederics Hair Trane Cream, for keeping your wave orderly or for setting finger and water waves. Merely fill in and send the coupon.

This mark of quality will be found on all Frederics products. Look for it every time. It is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Melba Skin Cleanser unlike ordinary creams ..... actually Penetrates really cleanses .....

Mary Ella Ide

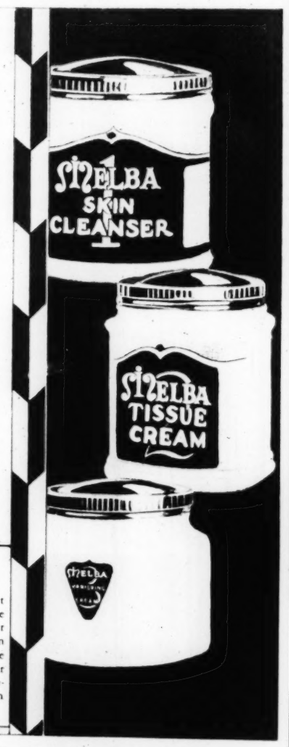
"THE secret of a perfect complexion is absolute and thorough cleansing of the skin", says Miss Ide, whose skin is satiny-smooth—lovely. "That's why I use Melba Skin Cleanser!"

Ordinary creams cleanse only the surface of the skin. For a flawlessly lovely complexion, you need the penetrating action of Melba Skin Cleanser—the thorough cleansing of this specialized cream, which seeps into clogged pores, flushing them of the "dirt bandits" which rob your skin of beauty.

The Melba Home Beauty Treatment

Use Melba Skin Cleanser before retiring, to cleanse the clogged pores. Remove with Melba Facial "Petals". Then stroke Melba Tissue Cream gently into the skin—to nourish the the tissues, to "firm" the facial contour. In the morning, remove Tissue Cream. Before you powder, apply a film of Melba Vanishing Cream. Delicately cool—it helps keep pores invisible; provides a smooth, velvety base for "make-up".

At all good drug and department stores . . . Send 25c for trial set of the three Melba Creams with booklet: "The Melba Technique—the Way to Charm".



MELBA BEAUTY Creams

PARFUMERIE MELBA, Inc., 233 Spring St., N. Y.
Paris New York Toronto Chicago Los Angeles

Make this Test

On your forearm, stroke a bit of Melba Skin Cleanser, beside it, a bit of any cream you use for cleansing. Watch Melba Skin Cleanser melt and penetrate into the skin. See your "other cream" still on the surface. Decide for yourself which cream penetrates—really cleanses.

Slimness
is as important as ever . .

Curves are in!

These lovely Garments by Nemo-flex give the grace the mode demands

THE MODE of today is more feminine than it's been in years. The slim figure of youth remains, but slenderness takes on the added charm of curves, lines flow smoothly but are never angular. The new fashions call, in fact, for the figure of true womanly proportions.

In Nemo-flex foundation garments this new ideal has been realized. Corsets, girdles, combinations, brassieres and bandeaux are designed to mould curves softly, give symmetry, enhance grace.

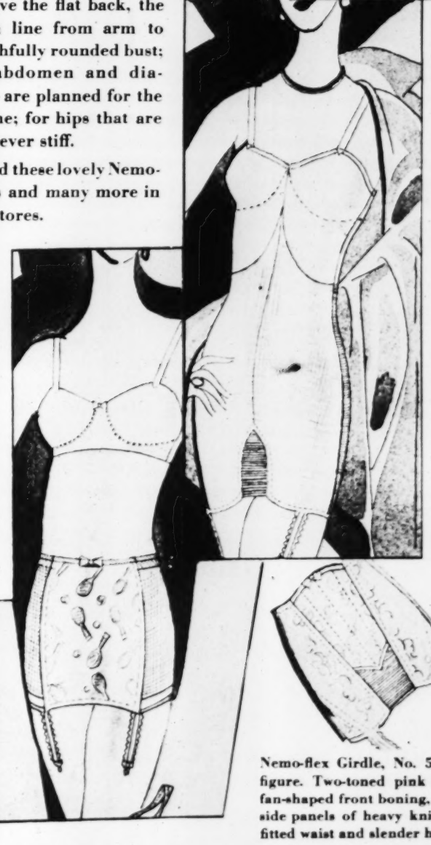
They achieve the flat back, the long, smooth line from arm to hip; the youthfully rounded bust; control of abdomen and diaphragm; they are planned for the fitted waistline; for hips that are slender but never stiff.

You will find these lovely Nemo-flex garments and many more in all the good stores.

Nemo-flex Combination No. 96-101, grooms the figure to grace and slenderness. Wonderlift Inner Belt (patented) upholds abdomen. Two-toned pink brocade and soft ribbed rayon. $10.

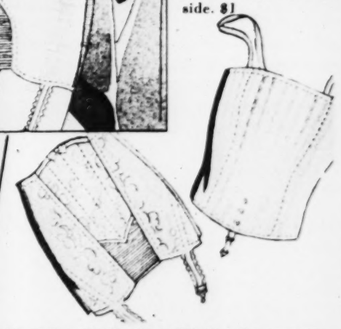
Boneless Combination, No. 32-500, of rayon-checked fabric. Cupped bust softly moulds the slender figure; brassiere top of double tricot. $5.

Hip-Depth Nemo-flex Brassiere (below) No. 100-33 of rayon striped pink coutil. Hooks down over corset in front, fastens at side. $1



Nemo-flex Bandeau, No. 150-19, of double tricot with fitted yoke and cupped bust for curved, youthful line. $1.50.

Tennis Girdle, No. 203, for the gay and active. Pink brocade with ball and racquet design, wide elastic panels. Four bones in back, two in front. Side front fastening $2.



Nemo-flex Girdle, No. 556, for the average figure. Two-toned pink and white brocade, fan-shaped front boning, two bones in back, side panels of heavy knitted webbing. Gives fitted waist and slender hips. $5.

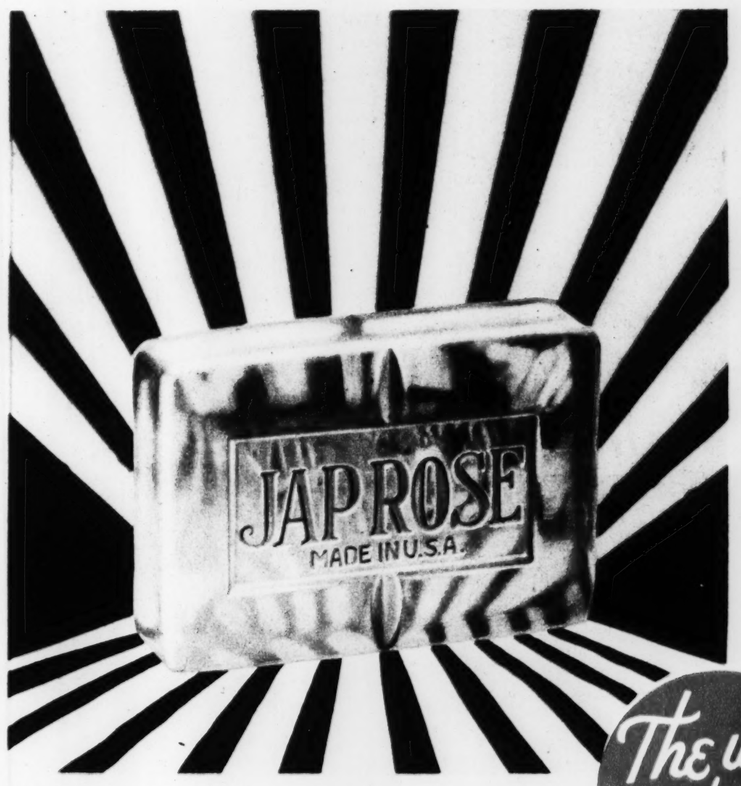
Glycerine, First of Beautifiers

The fine textured skins and lovely complexions of millions of women prove the truth of Deite's statement: "Glycerine is an actual cosmetic," while Goodholme, another recognized authority, recommends it because of "its healing as well as protective qualities." Absolutely pure is the glycerine used so generously in making Jap Rose Soap.

YOUR SKIN T-H-R-I-L-L-S WITH DELIGHT!



The way to save

A NEW experience—distinctly felt but not easily described—is brought to you by JAP ROSE Soap. Instantly you feel its stimulation—a positively t-h-r-i-l-l-i-n-g sense of perfect cleanliness as the thousands of pores in your body tingle pleasurably with new life and animation.

Skin specialists of international renown attest and explain the remarkable properties of its pure glycerine. They will tell you how this lovely skin stimulant penetrates deep into pores daily clogged with dust and impurities and empties them; how with the other tissues thus cleared and circulation stimulated your skin tingles and THRILLS with the rose tinting fluid coursing through the veins beneath.

Never has another toilet soap won such unanimous praise from smart women as well as clean cut men as Jap Rose has received everywhere. Do you know—have you personally felt the thrill of a Jap Rose bath, a Jap Rose shampoo, a Jap Rose cleansing of your face and hands? Don't wait. Economize! Tear out the money-saving shopping reminder below.

JAP ROSE SOAP

Not for twenty-five cents would it be possible to produce in small quantities, a soap of Jap Rose quality.

For highest-grade glycerine is only one of more than two score ingredients of this visibly pure pore cleanser. The precious oils of the palm kernel and the cocoanut, oleumregina, spirits of wine and Bulgarian attar of rose—all these and more contribute to the Jap Rose thrill.

Physicians and beauty specialists alike know that your choice of soap is more important than perhaps you realize. See this jewel-like cake, feel its thrill just once and you will be convinced.

STOCK GAINS MARK START OF NEW WEEK

asing Credit Conditions Stimulate a General Recovery in Prices — Volume Increases on Rally.

ATE IS REDUCED ON BANKERS' BILLS

ublic Utility Shares Are in Brisk Demand — Few Soft Spots in the Motor Group.

y the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Easier redit conditions, favorable trade ews and earnings statements, an timistic statement on business y Secretary of Commerce Lamont nd a new crop of merger rumors rovided the background for a road advance in prices in today's tock market. Gains in a long list f active issues ran from 1 to early 12 points, while Adams Express soared 21 points in a small urnover.

Rails were practically neglected ith the exception of New Haven, hich crossed par for the first ime since 1913. The stock sold s low as 9⅝ in 1923, when receivership was threatened.

Revival of activity and strength n the motor accessory shares, org Warner and Spicer Manufacturing each climbing more than 4 oints, was associated with rumors hat Ford was placing large contracts for bumpers and other quipment. Borg Warner also is expected to figure in a new consolidation this week.

Large Blocks of Simms Taken.

Simms Petroleum was taken in locks of 5000 and 10,000 shares, attaining a new high for the year t 39. Most of the other oils were uiet. Union Carbide, United Aircraft and Corn Products all moved to new high ground.

Wheat futures sold down more han 2 cents a bushel, corn declined half a cent and cotton fell back about $1 a bale.

Foreign exchange trading was uiet, with the leading European urrencies holding firm pending the meeting of reparations experts tomorrow.

Call money renewed at 7½ per ent and was in fairly plentiful upply at that figure. Time money, hich ruled firm around 9 per cent during the credit stringency around the first of the month, was quoted s low as 8 for the short maturities.

Bankers' Acceptances were reduced ⅛ of 1 per cent. The second reduction since March.

Few Soft Spots.

A few soft spots cropped out in the motor group as a result of the earnings statements being published by some of the smaller companies. Jordan showed a net loss of nearly $800,000 for 1928, and Hupp's first quarter earnings were only $1.10 a share, as against $1.60 in the corresponding period last year.

Public utility stocks were in brisk demand on merger rumors and reports of new alignments in the eastern field.

Adams Express soared 21 points. American Telephone ran up more than 7 points to a new high record of 236½, closing at 234¾. American & Foreign Power, American Power and Light, Federated Light & Traction, North American Co. and Western Union sold 3⅝ to 7½ points higher, closing 3 to 6¼ points net higher.

New high records for the year to were established by International Business Machines, Union Carbine, American Can, United Aircraft, Wright Aeronautical, Borg-Warner, Consolidated Film preferred and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. Mexican Petroleum, which hasn't appeared on the tape for several weeks, selling ex-dividend $43, changed hands at 295, as against the previous sale of 240.

Opening Is Higher.

Strong buying support came into the stock market over the week end with the result that many leading stocks opened 1 to 3½ points higher.

Montgomery Ward opened with a block of 5000 shares at 126¾, up 3¾, and General Electric jumped 3½ points on the first sale. Initial gains of a point or more were recorded by Radio, United Aircraft, American Smelting, Columbia Graphophone and National Cash Register.

Closing stock prices with other tables and market news will be found on pages 30, 31, 32, and 33.
